

Factors to consider when comparing what I say to my healthcare records:

The following are liabilities for Wells Fargo (collectively "Healthcare Fraud Factors")-

1. My PTSD- My PTSD is a liability for Wells Fargo because the crimes and abuse of Wells Fargo & Wells Fargo's various accomplices are what caused my PTSD. I'll reference this as "PTSD Diagnosis Liability."
2. My symptoms of PTSD- My symptoms of PTSD are a liability for Wells Fargo because they are evidence that I have PTSD. I'll reference this as "PTSD Symptom Liability."
3. My pain and suffering- these are a liability for Wells Fargo because they represent a cause for me to be paid damages by Wells Fargo and the various entities that Wells Fargo has induced into criminal behavior. The more pain and suffering I have, the stronger is my legal case against Wells Fargo et al. I'll reference this as "Pain And Suffering Liability."
4. My impairment and loss of ability to produce an income- these are a liability for Wells Fargo because they are causes for Wells Fargo to pay me damages. The more impairment and loss of ability to produce income that I have, the stronger my legal case is. I'll reference this as "Disability Liability."
5. The crimes and civil law violations that have occurred, specifically Wells Fargo's involvement in these crimes and civil law violations- these are a liability because they are evidence of Wells Fargo's character problems, dishonesty, and criminal and civil culpability. I'll reference this as "Criminality Liability."
6. My mental wellness and the fact that my belief that these crimes and civil law violations occurred is not a symptom of any mental illness- this is a liability for Wells Fargo because Wells Fargo's plan, the entire time, has been to make my belief that these unlawful acts occurred out to be symptoms of my mental illness. Disproving these claims and exposing them as deliberate fraud will further expose Wells Fargo's character flaws, dishonesty, civil and criminal culpability, and complete lack of decency. I'll reference this as "Mental Wellness Liability."

To address these liabilities, healthcare providers can, in my medical records:

- Discount my PTSD, deny my PTSD, express doubt about my PTSD, or refuse to engage in a discussion of my PTSD. Avoiding any hard, definite acknowledgement that I have PTSD or that Wells Fargo & Wells Fargo's various accomplices caused my PTSD is in Wells Fargo's favor. This item pertains to PTSD Diagnosis Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.
- Attribute my PTSD symptoms to some other cause. For example, making my hostility out to be a side effect of Adderall, or my agitation and irritability out to be a symptom of a purported disturbance related to bipolar disorder. These are both absurd. I have been taking Adderall for nearly 20 years, and it wasn't until April and May 2019 that I began to report bouts of hostility. This is at exactly the same time that I begin to report and exhibit clear signs of traumatic stress and PTSD. Note that my hostility was extreme, following the onset of my PTSD. I screamed and cursed, extremely loudly, to Atrium Health staff over the phone, on at least one occasion. I cursed at them on other occasions. I also explained to them the involuntary nature of my irritable angry outbursts and hostility. The extremity of my behavior, and how completely out of character it is, is another dead giveaway that this is not caused by my medication.

My bipolar disorder has been stabilized with Zyprexa, and its generic equivalent, Olanzapine since 1999. There has not been a single episode related to my bipolar disorder since this time, except for one occurrence that resulted from temporarily adjusting my medications. Once I was put back on a significant dose of Olanzapine, my bipolar symptoms went away. There is no reason for these symptoms to pop up out of nowhere 19 or 20 years later.

The providers that make notes stating such things are knowingly and deliberately lying, at the direction of Wells Fargo and/or the Justice Department, in each case. The items under this bullet point pertain to PTSD symptoms Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.

- Fail to record, in my medical records, a diagnosis of PTSD, even as I am clearly exhibiting severe symptoms of PTSD. This item pertains to PTSD Diagnosis Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.
- Fail to record, in my medical records, the symptoms of PTSD that I report and exhibit in my appointments and other communications with healthcare providers. These two items pertain to PTSD symptoms Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.

- Fail to record, in my medical records, the pain and suffering that I report and exhibit in my appointments and other communications with healthcare providers. This item pertains to Pain And Suffering Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.
- Fail to record, in my medical records, the impairment and loss of an ability to produce an income that I report and exhibit in my appointments and other communications with healthcare providers. This item pertains to Disability Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.
- Make notes, in my medical records, that deliberately misrepresent the severity of my impairment. This item pertains to Disability Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.
- Fail to record, in my medical records, my descriptions of blatant criminal behavior, and my accusations of criminally and civilly unlawful behavior on the part of Wells Fargo and/or Wells Fargo's various accomplices. This item pertains to Criminality Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.
- Fail to record, in my medical records, my legal arguments for why the behavior of certain parties constitute a criminal offense. In many appointments with Atrium Health and Novant Health, I would list the elements of a given crime, under the law. Then I would explain how the actions taken against me by certain parties meet those elements, element by element. This item pertains to Criminality Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.
- Fail to record, in my medical records, the evidence that I have for the crimes committed against me; this includes evidence of criminal behavior that is contained in my medical records, for instance the civil commitment custody order, on file at Atrium Health and readily accessible by Novant Health, that has blatantly forged dates. In many appointments with Atrium Health and Novant Health, I would list the elements of a given crime, under the law. Then I would explain how actions taken against me by certain parties meet each element. This item pertains to Criminality Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.
- Fail to record, in my medical records, the extremely suspect details of certain events that have occurred and that I report to healthcare providers. This is things like:
 - the way Jenny conned me into calling the crisis line and letting them come to my apartment.

- that I am essentially 100% certain that one of the crisis counselors is Jenny's personal friend.
- the exchange that the officer who processed the petition, Christopher D'Avanzo, has with the guy at the door at Atrium Health (where they collude to falsify the timestamps on the custody order).
- The obviously forged/falsified timestamps on the custody order.
- the fact that Christopher D'Avanzo is Jenny's personal friend.
- how Jenny told me that the magistrate's office is directly across from Atrium Health's inpatient unit (a deliberate lie, attempting to make a rationale to explain away the fact that the officer didn't have the custody order in his possession. It doesn't help her, but poor little Jenny tried).
- The fact that, after I had deauthorized Jenny's personal cell number with Atrium Health no less than 5 times, the finance lady, named Shirley, at Atrium Health is calling Jenny, on Jenny's work number, looking for me and needing to get in touch with me. As of the time Shirley calls Jenny, on June 6th, 2019, I do not even know Jenny's work number. When I call Shirley, Shirley claims that I had left Jenny's work number as an "alternate contact" when I did my intake paperwork at Atrium Health. I did my intake paperwork at Atrium Health in 2011, 5 years BEFORE I met Jenny and 6 years BEFORE Jenny had that job.
- The fact that Shirley, the woman who claims that I gave Atrium Health a number that I do not even know as a contact for my account, repeatedly asks for my full social security number, under false pretenses, when I call her. Shirley's attempts to get my full SSN become increasingly desperate and motivated, as the call progresses.
- The fact that Atrium Health Corporate Privacy confirmed with me, on a call that I secretly recorded, that the only purpose the finance department has for my full social security number is to file a Medicaid application and order my medical records.

These items are all things that I have pointed out to one or more healthcare professionals (M.D.s, NP psychiatrists, PA, etc.), often numerous times, and pertain to Criminality Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.

Note that, as of the present day, only Atrium Health and Novant Health have participated in healthcare fraud. This is excluding the single instance of healthcare fraud by Mobile Crisis.

- Deliberately make, in my medical records, made up and known to be false accounts of me suffering from serious mental illness symptoms. This includes, but may not be limited to, claims that I suffer from "paranoia", "delusions", "paranoid delusions", "psychosis", "mania", "delusional disorder", "amphetamine delusional disorder", "schizophrenia", or "schizoaffective disorder", and claims that I am "manic and psychotic", "paranoid", etc. This item pertains to Mental Wellness Liability from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.
- Deliberately and consciously exclude any statements I give, information I provide, or facts readily on hand that would indicate that I am mentally well. By mentally well, I mean specifically in terms of having an absence of bipolar disorder type I symptoms, and an absence of symptoms of any of the other various conditions, that they make knowingly false claims that I suffer from. The main point of this is that I am fully in contact with reality; I believe that I have been subjected to crimes because I absolutely have been, and the evidence that I have been subjected to crimes is undeniable.

By systematically leaving out the ample evidence that indicates that I am totally fine (except for having extremely severe PTSD and being victimized on an ongoing basis), Atrium Health and Novant Health can lessen the legal liability of Wells Fargo and Wells Fargo's various accomplices. This item pertains to Mental Wellness Liability from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.

- Mischaracterize what I say in a way that is technically true, or close to true, but that is deliberately misleading, and would lead a third party (like the social security administration or a jury) to believe I suffer from mental illness symptoms. For instance, I tell a Novant Health provider about Atrium Health's crimes. Through Novant's healthcare information exchange, this provider has ready access to the evidence of crime that is on file with Atrium Health (namely the civil commitment custody order with the forged timestamps). I provide many suspect details to this provider.

What does this provider record, on the notes for my appointment, concerning this? Does she report that I accuse Atrium Health of crimes, for which I have a significant amount of evidence and a narrative full of suspect occurrences? Nope. She reports that "he" (meaning me) "...has a severe mistrust of Atrium Health." This is consistent with a bullshit narrative about me being paranoid. It sounds like something you would write about a person suffering from paranoia. It is not consistent with the actual, reality based, narrative of Merideth Snapp being a perpetrator of state sponsored crime, and me having conducted a brilliant criminal investigation on what seems like my entire city, using my eminently logical and rational mind, as well as my abnormally acute ability to perceive and discern reality.

- Fail to include large portions of my medical records, when my medical records are requested by third parties (student loan people, DDS, etc.). The portions that will be excluded will largely be documents that I have sent detailing my symptoms and impairment, and documents I have sent that provide a narrative, a rationale, or evidence, concerning my criminal victimization. This has the effect of making sure that no third party ever sees what a case I actually have.

It also has the effect of making sure that I get denied disability benefits. Getting approved for disability benefits would strengthen my legal case, due to the social security administrations high standards for what constitutes a disability. The goal of the healthcare fraud is to nuke my civil case and extend Wells Fargo's criminal impunity into civil impunity. This is why part of the effort included deliberate and conscious attempts to make sure that I was denied for disability benefits. The items under this bullet point relate to PTSD Symptom Liability, Pain And Suffering Liability, Disability Liability, Criminality Liability, and Mental Wellness Liability, from the Healthcare Fraud Factors.
