Other than that I think everything else is fair game. Can't exactly remember. It will be fine. Just as long as they ask questions on anything they don't understand. There are a few customers that I do almost every single time but won't hurt for someone else to do them once, as long as they ask questions

Sounds great. I just got frustrated because someone had deleted my note about the CERTOC in ETRAC and it caused me to get an error. It wouldn't be a big deal if my quality wasn't already tanking, and it just makes me feel like I've got too much to keep up with. I've got 6 to 11 people doing my customers and I can't keep track of everything everyone of them is doing. But it just got me flustered. I'll be back in action tomorrow

Hey just a heads up. I was going to have .25 hours over 40' after Holidays and PTO. I figured that was fine so I put it in my time sheet rather than staying 45 more minutes, then at the very last minute I got several pings from my offices and a call from one of them. So I ended up working about 40 more minutes. It put me at 41 hours but none of it is overtime because of the holiday

Message 122.

2018-04-28 15:20:51

Clint:

Hey man, sorry to bother you on the weekend, but I'm at least going to be out of work Monday, and possibly Tuesday. I'm increasingly getting in a condition where I cannot do my work and shouldn't be there. I am probably going to call the short term disability claims administrator for Wells Fargo Monday and see what they need. I will see my doctor on Wednesday.

Message 123.

I truthfully don't think I should be at work at all next week and until I get better, but I don't have much PTO left and until I can get disability funded I need the money. For most of last week I just handled footwork for my offices and got a few things done, and then helped people that had work handed out to them. I did very little productivity. If this creates an issue then I can just go unpaid next week or take what Little PTO I have left if it covers a whole week. Idk but I've used a bunch. I don't see me getting much done like I normally do if I come in.

Depending on how bad off I get I could possibly hand out my work and then answer questions that people have

Message 124.

Message 128.

2018-04-28 15:29:59

Too bad to get it done. 4M Feeders and Herd Co needs their stuff saved to WLIS. I don't save it at check in because they come in zip files that have a bunch of docs. I always save them around the time I use them.

Yeah the bad thing will be if this is an indication that my new medicine isn't working. That will mean I will have to try another replacement. And that process is a nightmare. Absolute and total hell. I went through this for about 6 years when I lived in the mountains

Message 194.

2018-04-30 15:29:29

Clint:

What happens is you have to take one medicine after another. They put you on something and it doesn't work, or it gives you some nightmare side effects, so they put you on another one. And this is repeated nonstop until they find something that works, which in my case never happened last time.

Message 195.

My only options are 1) the old medicine I am getting off of which is going to give me dementia 2) the new medicine I am on now or 3) whatever New medicines they have came out with since 2006, because I've been on literally every single other one

Just checking on you and also mentioned stuff not getting turned around quick enough. I told her to reach out to Patrick or Omer for urgent requests and were doing our best on the other things, but it's busy season. Also, told her to contact me if she had issues. She was very understanding.

Message 428.

2018-05-30 17:34:55

Clint:

So 40 hours is fine or 50

Or whatever. I just want to get my offices straight. Also going to get some feedback on what kinks were in the process with me gone. This is the experiment I've wanted to do for a while. Whatever went wrong, if anything, we can set up a system to address it and document it. That way it won't go wrong in the future.

Message 429.

Then I can quit worrying about how they will survive once I'm gone for good. I have always wanted to set it up so that they will be happy forever.

Message 430.

And the stuff taking too long, I think the issue there is a lack of communication. That's my guess. They pound you with work nonstop, but don't need 80 to 90% of it. So what you do is constantly negotiate and figure out what the 10% is and get it out early or at least on time. My strategy is to get the 10% out early and also to once in a blue moon give freebie rushes if I have to push out stuff over and over and over for the same office person. It's kind of like "everything you've got has been on hold for weeks, so you're due one ahead of time" and I do that even if all the stuff that is kicked out hasn't been needed and still is not. If you can do that they will be happy as hell and won't care that 80 to 90% of what they send in is late.

Message 431.

2018-05-30 17:37:04

Courtney:

It's probably not the best representation, as it's busy season and we are down a few analysts. The communication is definitely key!

Message 432.

2018-05-30 17:37:07

Sent

That's just my guess of why things are taking too long, but I'd wager high that's exactly it. If you communicate nonstop you won't miss stuff. And yes, Julie is awesome. The best person you will ever meet. All the bad things that were said about her by the last Charlotte people are ridiculous. Reflects on them not her. They sent her garbage work

Message 433.

2018-05-30 17:37:45

Message 437.

2018-05-30 17:41:09

Clint:

And I agree not the best representation, but it's better to err on that side than the other. The worst case scenario end of the spectrum is better than the other end, because we will catch more kinks in the process. The goal is not to judge the analysts doing the work, it is to see where things, processes don't work as they best could

Message 438.

2018-05-30 17:42:42

Clint:

Like I've had this quirky little island that's pretty separated from the rest of what our Dept does, and I've made it work like a charm. I have a ton of knowledge and first hand experience, but there is no way to know where the gaps are that I need to fill in.

Message 439.

2018-05-30 17:49:41

Clint:

And I know with this transformation project we are out to standardize everything, and I agree that that is a good process, and I think that for food & Ag it needs to largely mirror what I've been doing. I think food & Ag needs to be its own thing, like GIB.

Message 440.

It is hard as hell to get these things right and make it work, and I am not sure that anyone could ever come up with a better model than what I have. I have worked too hard for too long. Tweak the model, yes. The more eyes and minds are looking at it the more ideas for improvements we will have, and a good number of them will work. But to start from scratch and build something from the ground up is a disaster waiting to happen. There's a way out, and that is to put yourself through hell figuring out these half assed balance sheets and nutty customers for years, and to also live on the telephone with 20 + office people for years and years. What you will end up with is something just about exactly like what I have, and I've already done the work. No need to repeat it that I can see.

2018-05-30 17:53:40

Ag guidelines will be addressed in time. Now that they are hammering out the general industry across the groups (going great too) and RE, the specialized stuff will start being analyzed, discussed, and signed off on. BBG does Ag too, so I'm interested to hear more from their folks too!

Message 441.

Yeah that will be interesting. I've seen a bunch of BBG sized Ag customers. 2 of my current PMs in AU 199448 used to do deals that size under another AU that I had.

That AU is gone, but I think that previously they had their spreading under BBG. I will ask them.

I'm come in today with a ping about "you need to turn in some items" do you think I don't know that? Did I not tell you yesterday that I would be turning in a huge load of work over the next few days? Have I not told you people to LEAVE ME THE HELL ALONE when I'm killing myself for your benefit, or what I thought was. You don't give a shit about the relationship with the offices or about the offices period. You people only care about your reports that go to senior management, who are clueless. That place needs to be transparent and inform the front offices that your purpose is not to help them, but to make meaningless reports look the way you want. And you cannot deny anything I have just said. I've broken my neck telling you people how things are, and you compulsively come back with this report bullshit. Those items in my queue are 3 that are not needed because the office person is on PTO, 2 of which I know for certain she will not even need for a good bit after she gets back. The other one is also not needed, I called the offices and asked them. Which by the way it's not a bad skill to have to call the office, if the Dept ever changes its goal to actually knowing what is going on. Your reports are worthless and the people who read them are worthless. I told you I was prioritizing and trying to get them what they need. I told you multiple times this week. And I STILL get more SLA report bullshit! So don't tell me you care about the offices getting what they need more than the reports. Talk is extremely cheap at your Dept flat out lies. I'm trying my absolute hardest almost all the time almost all day. I get up every hour or 90 minutes to go chat with someone or listen to music.

Message 453.

With all these grievances I know you are a caring person and cared about me. I am sorry we have to part on these terms but that's how it is. I might not live to see tomorrow or I might live to be 120 years old, but either way my life is too short for this. I cannot be made more miserable than I already am every other day

Message 454.

2018-06-15 16:38:23

Clint:

I'll beat the hell out of myself when I mess up. You don't have to worry about that. There is no need to have 3 managers and an employee email me to remind me I have past dues, as if I don't know and as if I haven't worked there for 4 and a half years, and as if I don't know that job better than anyone else. I don't care what you expect to see. I only care that my offices get everything they need. I don't want to hear from you about anything else and if you had any integrity as a Dept you wouldn't care about anything either

Message 455.

2018-06-15 16:45:10

My offices are happy, QA is happy, which by the way I spent a good 2 hours making notes in that spread I was working on. Had I not done that I could have turned it in last night at least by 2:30 and I wouldn't have to deal with pings I've told you disturb me when I get them. QA would just be miserable trying to figure out what is going on, and someone, probably all 3 of us would get yelled at. But I'm breaking my neck trying to avoid that, and then deal with this ridiculous bullshit as a consequence. The way life works is you can't have everything. You can either have a bigger car that gets less gas mileage or you can have a smaller car that has less space. So you have to pick what you want and you guys don't get that. I do because I'm doing the work, and my best call is to not worry about the SLA report because it doesn't benefit anybody at all. The people who think they are benefiting from it have no clue what they are doing and are delusional, and I can prove it. Someone needs to tell them to their face

My offices have been ready to blast your management and are probably at least going to say something to you

Message 464.

Clint:

I'm trying to make it a constructive situation but all that place knows how to do is get in my way and make me miserable

Message 465.

Courtney:

Clint, I know you are upset and frustrated. I was reaching out because I just want to make sure you are ok. I understand if you don't want to talk today, because you are frustrated. We can speak on Monday morning (maybe 9am?), if that works for you. Also, please know that there are resources should you need them (i.e. EAC).

We want you to take care of yourself and not worry about work right now. Also, you didn't enter your hours, so I want to make sure we get those entered.

Courtney:

I want to make sure you get paid for your time.

Message 468.

2018-06-15 17:27:58

I'm sorry to hear you worked so late. We never want anyone to work hours like that and I hope you didn't feel like you needed to!

Message 469.

2018-06-15 19:16:51

Clint:

I am ok. I appreciate your concern and believe it is genuine. I'm just sick of this Dept putting me through hell. It is good but never permanently good. I am no longer kidding myself that it will be pleasant place to work. That is always fleeting and it's more bullshit and misery coming down the line.

Message 470.

A few suggestions for management, since they feel the need to gang up on me when I'm extended 99.999999% and pointlessly tell me about the .000001% that I'm missing.

Message 471.

Tip 1: do what the hell you say you're going to do, or acknowledge that you will not do it.

Message 472.

I have been yelled at over this. When I trained some new food & Ag people a long time ago under Jessica, we had a backlog of work. I told Jessica I needed more overtime to get caught up. She said Bill had capped me at 55 hours. I told her the work was just going to pile up. I had just trained new food & Ag people and we had about 6 that were supposedly able to do it. I was asking them to take work and they were not, except Eric, who took 15. He was supposed to have them done by day 2 or the SLA and turn them into QA. What instead happened was he pinged me one day and told me that he was going to have to put all 15 back in my name. They had been pushed out without asking the offices, and soon after my offices were asking about a bunch of it needing it fast. It put me in a crunch. That's why I was so worried about work piling up.

Message 473.

I was a little intense and came across as pretty much abusive to Jessica, without intending to. I didn't mean to come across that way. I had also been out of tune with the impact my behavior and over pessimism about newer people people I was training was having on her. This was just terrible and I regret it to this day. So she tells Bill.

Message 474.

Bill then proceeds to pretty much yell at me, telling you "you said you're going to let the work pile up", which is not what I said. I said it will pile up. He then says "Clint, you're a smart guy, how many people do we have doing food & Ag". I cannot remember what I told him, but the real answer was 2, if we're lucky. The rest of them are too busy or won't take any, or take them and then put them back in my name at a rate of 15 at a time.

Message 475.

That's why I was worried about work piling up. So we have two choices, either we have 6 people doing my work and I don't have overtime, or we have 2 people doing my work and I do. Those are the 2 ways that the work will get done without risking the offices not getting all kinds of stuff they need in time and in good quality.

Yelling and someone overtime because they have 6 people helping with their work, when in reality they have one or 2 isn't right. So the takeaways there are a) do what you say you're going to do and b) know what the hell is going on in your own department

Message 476.

Bill then tells me, again in a very intense manner still bordering on yelling at me, that I have came up in a discussion from senior management over the amount of overtime I was getting. This was communicated in a way that made this out to be a problem that had recently came to their attention and was kind of under the microscope. That brings me to another related point-

Message 477.

2018-06-15 19:29:08

Clint:

2: know what the hell is going on in your department, and don't sit in silos isolated from everyone else.

Message 478.

How much do you have to get paid to make notes so that the others in management know what's going on? I get paid $60,000 a year and write half a novel every six months in MRA files.

Message 479.

When I first took over food & Ag it was intended for me to get all the overtime I wanted all year long. They wanted to have one dedicated analyst because they had had problems before with getting passed around when reaching out for help. They were told, to senior managements knowledge, that they would have one analyst with a few backups playing a minimal role when I took PTO. This obviously mean I would be working overtime all year long because they never get that slow.

Message 480.

For $300,000 a year, could someone notate this in a system or shared something another or communication log ?

Message 481.

Or does that take $1,000,000 a year? How much do you have to make before you're expected to communicate anything?

Message 482.

So it pops out of nowhere as a big issue that ultimately results in me getting yelled at. Senior management sent it to Bill to address, and he wants to do what they want him to. They were asking why this should be, when others were working 40 hours etc.

Message 483.

This would have been a great opportunity for whoever this senior person is to actually learn what goes on in his freaking Dept. There are endless opportunities like this I am finding. I am lost as to what these people are paid for. I continue to give them the benefit of the doubt and assume there is something I am missing, against all the evidence I've seen, but so far this looks like the biggest joke circus there could possibly be.

Message 484.

They're not allowed to know what happens. They're not expected or not able to communicate with one another. They don't do anything but look at numbers which mean very little and create counterproductive incentives. If the bank's looking to cut costs there are some serious $$ being slurped up by these people. I can train some high school kids to read spreadsheets, and they'd do it for way less than whatever these people make

Message 485.

2018-06-15 19:30:03

Clint:

And again, this is not news to me. Shouldn't have been news to them. Senior management knew it when I agreed

Message 486.

2018-06-15 19:30:18

Clint:

But they've got to learn everything from scratch

Message 487.

2018-06-15 19:31:14

Message 488.

Message 490.

Message 491.

2018-06-15 19:36:52

Clint:

There is absolutely no point to get an email from 1 of my peers and 3 managers about items in my queue. For 4 and a half years my offices haven't missed getting something they need on time or usually ahead of time, except the one month when I was out and YOU guys screwed it up! What does that add up to? Do you not have sufficient proof that they're going to get what they need? Do I need a flawless record for 10 years? Or maybe 20? What does it take? And do you have amnesia? Have you forgotten this the past 700 times I have told you?

Message 492.

2018-06-15 19:58:11

Clint:

And if you're so scared to talk about what's going on and why we have past dues to these senior people, I would have been happy to. That is a serious taboo I know, but may be necessary. I would have handled that too.

Message 493.

I could explain to them that what I'm doing is getting my offices what they need. I would explain that I have far more to do than I could reasonably get done for a few reasons. One is that I had to deal with issues that were created while I was gone, which were entirely not on me and were in fact the result of management dropping the ball. I had to chase some things around, make corrections, and I took notes about the issues that I had.

Message 494.

I would explain that this SLA report is fairly useless, and that certainly in the big picture what mattered was the relationship with office. I would explain that spreadsheets and PDFs are digital things that don't really exist. I would tell him that I spent several hours being in contact with my offices to figure out exactly what they need.

Message 495.

I would then explain that the big thing on their list was a very difficult customer with a P-Card that the office was writing up a line of credit. I would explain that it took dozens of hours and going back with the office to figure this customer out, but that due to my extremely hard work at all hours of the night we had made tremendous progress. I would explain that it was about to be finalized in half an hour, and that the office is booking the deal and documenting their approval with my spreads. I would explain that we're a bank and the way that banks make money is we lend money to companies like this and charge them interest. I would explain that looking at spreadsheets and PDFs is not a revenue generating exercise and doesn't really further anyone's goals. I would explain that although I had to work an extraordinary amount of time to get these spreads done, that my time is peanuts relative to the revenue our piece of the revolver gets, because I don't get paid as much as report readers like him. I would explain that the time I spend on these spreads meant that we would be looking just about bulletproof if any regulator or RAR auditor took a look at the offices or the relationship.

Message 496.

I would explain that the items on that list are not needed because the office people are on PTO and have told me they don't need them. I would explain that the way it works is that offices get stuff in, and they or their interns or FAPs send it to us, but that it is rarely the occasion that the timing it is sent in matches the relative urgency of what is needed. I would explain that some deals are always more pressing than others, and in any and all such cases the offices would prefer to have what they need over management having a report look the way they want it and having a spread hit their teammates inbox while they're on vacation. I would explain to them that the name wholesale loan services implies that we are a service business that serves our offices, and that everything we do should contribute towards that goal, and if our report gets in the way of that then so much for our report

I don't need 1, 2, or 3, or 4 or any managers or employees emailing me with this stupid pointless garbage.

I'm doing you a favor. You're not doing me one. And you have the nerve to tell me "we don't expect" when I'm putting myself through hell working myself to death.

Clint, I respect your decision to resign, and also want to make sure you are okay. I know you said that you were okay on Friday, but want to be sure that you are not having any thoughts of self-harm. I want to remind you that you can contact EAC at 1-888-327-0027 and you may continue to do so for 30 days following your resignation. Also, if you feel that you returned from your Leave too soon, please let me know today. I wish you the best!

Message 503.

2018-06-18 22:26:03

Clint:

Hi Courtney I am as ok as I'm going to be and there is no reason for you to be concerned. I wanted to make some things clear. Now that I am no longer an employee I can share some more personal details that maybe I could have shared the whole time. My reason for doing this is I feel I have given the wrong impression to you and Christian and I am sure others. I am diagnosed with 2 conditions, one called Autism Spectrum Disorder Without Accompanying Intellectual Impairment and another called Bipolar Disorder. I also suffered extremely severe child abuse from a extremely early age and was abused very badly on and off up until age 13. Autism is something you are born with. Bipolar disorder is a little less clear and may be a consequence of my life, or genetics, or something else. Whatever the case, all of this together causes me to be hypervigilant and to experience life very intensely. You and Christian seemed puzzled by my behavior, but went out of your way, in a way, to try work with me. I am concerned that the way I acted and have acted at WLS may have given the impression that I am self centered and maybe a little spoiled. Neither are the case. I care very much about everyone else there, and about people in general. I don't know how to get this across because looking back lots of my behavior looks like evidence in the other direction, mainly as it relates to management and QA. But I did help other analysts all I could and did everything I could to get along with QA too. Right before I had that falling out with Elena I had, maybe a week or 2 earlier, made a special folder for her specifically on the shared drive where I put statements and supporting info about my customers for her easy access. She had disturbed me for years with the way that she made what seemed to me to be extraordinary efforts to find something wrong with people's work, and also with her personality quirks, including what I perceived to be rudeness towards me and others. There had been several times where she had frustrated me so bad that I had to go home. I told Shana this, and we had a discussion. Shana explained that these personality quirks I described was just how she was, and that she was the same way towards everyone else, even Shana. Shana offered to say something about it but I felt for Elena and said no that's just who she is and we all have limitations. I can imagine her culture in Eastern Europe being different and I think it is also important for her sense of self for her to see herself as an expert at what she does. This is a typical pattern I have, where I get amped up make people out to have bad intentions and then feel bad about myself and feel concern for them when I calm down later.

Message 504.

I very much appreciate the effort you and Christian made, and that you gave me the benefit of the doubt when I tried to explain to you how I work. What I was trying to say apparently didn't get across the way I thought it did. Christian is a great guy and I enjoyed talking to him and working with him. He was kind and supportive to me. You were also extremely supportive and made a big difference in the level of stress I was under when you became my manager.

Message 505.

What I was trying to get across is that I do not need to be managed and do not like to be managed, I suppose is one way to say it. To me this seems entirely defensible because I care extremely about all the things that should matter to our department, and I am self motivated to get things done. I see my role as a performer, and a resource for others as it relates to job knowledge. I see management's role as a resource for me, as a performer who can do what I do better than them and knows far more about what actually needs to be done. Their job is to ask me what I need, not to pointlessly exercise authority by telling me the obvious or bossing me around.

Message 506.

I also tend to stretch myself as far as I can go, and caring about things so intensely I'm kind of overwhelmed most of the time. My offices send me requests and questions and it puts psychological weight on me every time they do, and then I am often in the middle of figuring out something that is very complex and/or frustrating. I don't like to be told I'm doing anything wrong either, because I beat myself up in my mind all the time and am very disturbed every time I make a mistake. That's why I just want to be left alone. I can't deal with much more than I already have.

Message 507.

The past several days I had spent 30 hours or maybe more working on what had to be the hardest spread ever to come across anyone's desk. I had to manually consolidate

2. entities, and that was only after several rounds of going back and forth with the office. The agent bank sends us statements for something around 20 to 30 entities, and our old process was to consolidate them all. Then we got a FYE CPA statement to compare to the FYE company statement, before we got this 3/31 that they were writing up the revolver on. We'd been having monster adjustments every time, and had come to the conclusion that it was because we were including too many entities. It took us forever to figure out what was what, particularly me. There were 8 entities listed in the combined CPA statement, and after spreading 7 of those we still had a monster adjustment. So we figured that some of the others must be missing and I suspected that some of what we received were entities that fell up under each other in a sub consolidation, if you want to call it that. So what I had to do was pull up all of what we received for the FYB and cross reference all of those entities with the combined. The CPA statement debt schedule had what looked like maybe 40 or more facilities, and I tried to track them all down on the individual statements the company sent. I tracked down a bunch of numbers like that, the idea being that if we could match totals we would know who to include and who not to. To make a long story short, there was a hell of a lot to figure out. Of those 11, 3 to 5 had dozens of balance sheet accounts each, up to 50 or more income statement accounts, 3 or so had very few numbers, and the rest were kind of inbetween. The CPA statement was combined only, no consolidating schedule, which meant that I had to play with these several hundred accounts and compare my totals with singular line items on the CPA statement. Once I finally figured out who to include, I told the office we should respread the FYE company statement, now that I knew who to include and had a good idea of what accounts went where. The purpose of this was to reclaim some of my time, and for them to use in their analysis to show the company's accounting vs the CPAs,

Because it turned out we were going to have a monster adjustment any way you sliced

it. I was the one who figured out why. I could tell that the company was using accelerated depreciation, which over the god knows how long they've been in business had reduced cumulative earnings on their internal records, which I could tell were used for tax purposes once I had everything worked out. I told the office they would be allocated a regular charge for 12 spreads and would help me tie production numbers to the days I had spent. They said it was worth that to them and to do it. So of the 30 hours or more I worked on what ended up being 36 spreads, I probably spent 18 figuring out what the hell was going on + making notes and 12 actually spreading them.

This was what the offices needed the most. It was the hardest thing I'd ever seen, and came at the right time just when I get back. I would have turned in 80 items or more if I stayed Friday, including 4 that were from that list-4m and herd co, which I had already done the spreads. The office didn't need the CRTs for a long time but I would have done them anyways just to claim some of my time. These were also 2 of the spreads my office was pissed off about waiting so long for. They had been in my queue for 30 + days, per the email. I got back on 6/4 and the email was sent on 6/15. Do the math and that means 20+ days of this fell on Christians watch while he didn't bother to call my office to see what they needed. He told me they should have called him so he knew they needed stuff. If he knew how things work as well as I do, he would know that it is self evident the offices need stuff, by the mere fact they send it in. They don't send it in for no reason, and when Patrick has 130 something items in his due and past due, and some of them are out there for 15 days or maybe more,

It is safe to assume that more than 11 of them are probably needed. He should have been proactive the way I have been for years. It worked 100% of the time, not 99%, not 99.99%, not any % less than 100%. He probably can't call every office he has as one manager (although I would debate that) but not every office has 150 items getting piled up. So we have him dropping the ball, apparently due to not knowing the offices workflow as well as I do, and thinking it is beyond the scope of his responsibility to call them once in 30 days, when I call them every single day, and here I'm getting sent emails telling me what I need to do, when I've been fixing the mess he created the whole time I've been back. And I'm not trying to be critical. He's a good dude and has lots of character, and it's an easy mistake to make. I see his side of it as well. But given that I thought I had made it clear I will get everything done the way I always do, and that I don't need manager inference and it disturbs me, and that I beat myself up long before anyone else even has the opportunity to, and that I had told you both that between Thursday and Friday I would be turning in a load of work it made me very mad, especially after I had been there till 3:30am. And that was why. I had intended to stay until 12 midnight, but then this consolidated spread kept dragging on. I didn't want QA to be in misery, or me to be in misery if they send me some change I have to fight them over. They have an hour or whatever to review it, which isn't going to be sufficient when it took me over 15 hours just to figure it out. So I made notes and triple checked numbers and made MRA accounts that explain what I'm doing. I had nothing on the board and I knew that somehow I was going to get some message or email that would piss me off, even though I thought I had made it clear that that was not needed. So I'm thinking I clock out at 12 and then I'm not having any #s, so I'll stay until 1. Then 1 turned to 2, then 2 turned to 3,

At which point MRA shut down for maintenance for 15 minutes, and I was exhausted and finally gave up at 3:30.

It was 98% done at that point, but I didn't want to send it to my office at that hour because I figured they would contact you guys and you would worry. That is also why I didn't put in my time, in case you guys saw it. And then sure enough when I come in this crap I didn't want to deal with and I knew would piss me off was waiting on me.

Message 508.

I was often revved up like this at my previous jobs too, but never as bad as at this job. This place has put me through hell on and off

For years. The big one was this SLA garbage, that no one who knows how the offices workflow works could possibly come up with. This was back when I was having very bad health problems and would feel tired often. For Months and months I was miserable, and would go home and pace the floors being furious. I was ready several times to walk out, having no job waiting on me or source of income, knowing that had I done so I most likely wouldn't be alive for another week.

That's the main reason I was so happy with you.

Message 509.

And where it ultimately doesn't fit is I am not interested in playing the game with our metrics and management. In my view, if I am working myself to death doing exactly what needs to be done, and this doesn't jive with our reporting because management several levels above us has no idea how the day to day business goes, that's a sign that management and our reporting need to be addressed. But in the corporate world, the tendency is to just play along and give them what they want to see. I would have been happy to call whoever these people are. I would start with the lowest and explain why things are the way they are, and if he/she isn't comfortable or I can't reason with them, I'd get the number of whoever is above them that they may be afraid to talk to and call that person, and I'd keep going.

I'm not joking. And I wouldn't refrain from telling any of them they are ridiculous if it's justified. But that doesn't fly and people don't work that way, except me.

Message 510.

So this is an overly lengthy explanation, but I just wanted to give you the background and you can share it with others in management. I very much regret that I have probably come across as self centered and uncooperative many times while I have been there. And I was flat out abusive to Jessica without intending to be a while back when she was my manager. I had 0 ill intent but was stuck in my own head oblivious to the effect the way I was acting had on her. I wish all of you the best as well and hope things go great for you. You need to keep Patrick as long as possible too, by the way.

Message 511.

And to answer your questions-

Message 512.

1. no I didn't return from leave too early. I could have stayed out another week and been slightly better, but I think I was good enough to come back
2. No, I'm not thinking of self harm, and that is not your territory, as much as I appreciate you caring. I've got multiple doctors I see

Message 536.

2018-10-25 16:02:04

Clint:

And it's probably a good idea to start looking. India seems to be the direction the Dept was going. I'm not sure that in 2 or 3 years there will be a need for 3 managers in Charlotte

Message 537.

2018-10-25 16:04:36

Clint:

I'd say Pete amendola is safe until he retires, but whoever takes his place may not be. That role could go to India too. I don't really see any role that couldn't go to India in the long term, or somewhere else overseas. And I think that is going to be the environment we work in, in the near and medium term future. You will be competing with a good portion of the entire world for work in whatever you do

Message 538.

2018-10-25 16:53:52

Courtney:

I appreciate that! Possibly! Leaning towards business initiatives consultant, risk/compliance, or some sort of project management position. I still have a few years worth of project work here, if I want to stick around. We're pretty much maxed out with India at this point, at least for a while. Automation is really the future of spreading. Yeah, India is definitely the best low cost staffing option at this point.

Message 539.

2018-10-25 18:46:03

Clint:

I agree with the automation thing to an extent. I can see that being 100% on 10ks and 10qs, but I think for the first few phases of automation there will have to be human intervention on middle market deals. I don't think the technology exists or will exist in the next 5 to 10 years to make accurate judgment calls on how to spread internally prepared statements.

Message 540.

With the deals I worked, there was so much to figure out and if you didn't invest the time in a lot of them, you couldn't get something the office could use to make a good decision with. And the risk ratings get jacked all to pieces if you don't do them right. That happens all the time.

Message 541.

2018-10-25 18:47:20

Clint:

And I wasn't alone in that. When I was helping jenny we had to pull multiple documents on the deals she did for Atlanta. I mean it was like a Chinese puzzle of some sort figuring out the sub debt

Message 542.

2018-10-25 18:47:52

Clint:

For one deal. Atlanta bonded warehouse company

2018-10-25 18:49:00

Sent

If you're going to get something accurate and usable, it takes real analysis on many of those deals. Computers aren't good with that kind of analysis

Message 543.

2018-10-26 09:30:04

Courtney:

For more complex situations it may require a little bit more human intervention at least initially. Over time, the technology will learn and be more capable.

Here is an example of what I am talking about with the big picture focus

Message 944.

2019-04-27 21:47:20

Clint:

When I got Katie Xie's customers back I did a cert for this customer. She'd been pricing their ratio every quarter and so had everyone else.

Message 945.

I dug into the numbers and figured out what they were doing, and figured out that their numbers were wrong. Took me 2 hours and put them on a higher pricing tier.

Message 946.

Company had a consistent $100MM balance on their revolver. We owned a big chunk of it.

Message 947.

Had I priced the number like it had been for 2 years or more, it would have taken me 2 seconds. The difference in revenue from the revolver for that quarter was $30,000

Message 948.

2019-04-27 21:48:04

Clint:

$30,000 is far too small for the bank to care about, in terms of dreaming of policy changes

Message 949.

2019-04-27 21:48:15

Clint:

To be blanket applied to everyone

Message 950.

2019-04-27 21:49:07

Clint:

So my #s weren't as good over squandering 2 hours on a difficult ratio, when that 2 hours cost the bank less than $55 and paid half my salary for the year

Message 951.

If I am reporting my net income, depreciation, interest expense, taxes, amortization and current portion of long term debt on a financial statement that will be used to test compliance, that's what you should be worried about me telling lies about, given that the people doing the checking can do basic arithmetic.

Message 1119.

If you can add, subtract, multiply and divide, you're going to nail their ass based on the financial statement every time no matter what their certoc says. The policy would be tell the truth on the financial statement and lie to your heart is content on the certoc.

Message 1751.

2019-05-11 21:56:35

Clint:

Ands it's not what they know per se. I guess that is part of it. We have one fact that I was in a mental hospital, which people will sometimes call a mental institution, and that term just sounds bad.

Message 1752.

It may be that the plain fact was said like that. Or it may be that some horribly exaggerated thing like I thought was being said back home was. The way the exaggerated thing would have gotten said was if my ex friend deliberately said that to Abbey and she said it.

Message 1753.

I told him when we were friends the things I thought people might be saying. He is plenty cruel enough to say that to spite me.

Message 1754.

Outside of that there isn't anything I have told Abbey about myself that could be all that damaging, or at least that I wouldn't be able to explain to people and be comfortable with.

Message 1755.

And since her sole source of info was this extremely cruel person who tells horrible lies about people, she has certainly heard some bad things about me that were not true and god only knows what they were.

Message 1756.

As I said before, people can be close minded. Especially if it involves things that they've never been exposed or close to in their lives. I have friends that have been to mental hospitals which is likely at least part of the reason why it isn't something I have a negative view towards. That and I have strong feelings towards mental health being extremely important and am truly mind blown that people still choose to stigmatize it. I know it bothers you deeply to know that people might view you in a negative light because of it, but I say screw them. They are not worth a thought. Anyone who could possibly view you in a negative way because of your time in a mental hospital or for any of your life experiences is not worth your time!

99% of every wrong thing I have done or bad thing about me was before I or around when was 18. And none of it was that bad. I know for a fact that Abbey has been told totally false things about me, and that when she was asked she would have repeated them. I just have no idea what. I will drop the subject with you though as there isn't much more you can do to help me. And again, I apologize. This causes me unbelievable pain at times and I can't fully control myself when I break down over it. You've been my sounding board lately and I end up texting you at the crack of dawn.

Message 1845.

2019-05-12 18:55:11

Clint:

And I will never get an answer the way I am doing it. Abbey is a fugitive in multiple states according to her sister. The person who would have "informed" her of things about me is the worst person you'll ever meet. He has had intimate relations with underaged girls god knows how many times, against their legal and in one case against their psychological consent, I believe this for certain and will testify to it in any court of law at any level.

Message 1846.

So I have a few options. One is to tell everyone I meet about Jenny and Tunny, maybe show them pictures, and explain they may say negative things about me because they have associated with a fugitive and a racist sociopath, and that they are liars and have lied to me repeatedly. Also explain to them that they may be prejudiced against me over my health history, which they had no business of knowing and telling others, particularly if they did it in a pejorative or bigoted way.

Tell them to let me know what is said if they hear anything and take anyone who repeats whatever it is to court for defamation. Also explain that they have probably shared false and defamatory things with others at Wells Fargo and to watch out for them.

Message 1847.

Another option I have is to tell Jenny's church about this situation and her repeated lying and other ethical problems. Tell her that she has difficulty admitting she did anything wrong and that she needs to work on this cause it has destroyed me and nearly cost me my life. They may be able to fix her.

Message 1850.

2019-05-13 20:33:54

Clint:

I will assume I can since our last conversation was ok. Please keep it from getting to Jenny if you can. I won't see my doctors for a while most likely so if between now and then you change your mind just let me know and I won't say a thing. I probably won't say a thing anyways. And ignore that last message about showing people pictures, etc. I've been a wreck over this and I get in intense emotional places and say things I do not mean. It was the thought of turning against people I care about that had me so broken down the first time I texted you about this in the past week. There is almost no chance I could ever do anything to make life hard for Jenny or even Tunny, although I think Tunny is less handicapped than Jenny. I want good things for them all.

Message 1851.

I sent Tunny a message on Facebook the same day I messaged you. I was begging her to tell me. I was in tears and broken down completely. I saw that she had read them and I typed her a message saying if she would tell me it would be between she and I and that I would make her church any kind of website they need for free and also manage their server for free. Website is bare minimum $5,000 to $10,000 at the going rate. Godaddy and other companies charge $120 a month to manage a server.

That is a scam and ridiculous but the fact stands that I was going to do it for free of charge for years for her.

Message 1852.

She blocked my messages however and when I sent it, it bounced back. That's the kind of person I am. I forgive people and have mercy. They do me wrong I respond with mercy and kindness. That is what happens over the long term, it is always short lived when I am mean about things and start to see people as evil. I think my behavior in big or small ways while at the bank reflects that. I always acknowledged my role in things and I tried very hard to see the other person's side.

Message 1853.

On the various times I have been broken down and almost ready to die over this, I have occasionally messaged her and said cruel things about her involvement with her church. My intent after I calmed down was to at some point get ahead and send her church money to make up for that.

Message 1854.

I appreciate again your time and that is for sure the last thing I will say unless you bring it back up. I know your life is hard and full of responsibilities.

Message 1855.

And please feel free to tell me if you can think of any behavior I had while at WFB that betrays what I just described. Also let me know if you ever recall me doing something dishonest or lying. I do not think there is one single instance but I would be curious to hear if anyone had that impression ever.

Message 1858.

Courtney:

Ok, all caught up. I don't have any issue with you sharing our discussions with your doctors. I won't say anything to Jenny, I don't speak to her. Glad you determined the picture showing and church outreach are a bad idea. The part about information about your health circulating around wells, I would doubt. Tunny has never seemed like the type to talk about others. I have also never heard anyone speak of your health history either. Heck, Christian was oblivious about your diagnosis until I had to loop him in because of his need to know with all of the hr conversations. As far as I know, no one is aware of anything regarding your health. Unless of course Tunny has information like you think, but I doubt she's mentioned it to anyone.

When I originally contacted you with the handicap question, I was thinking that maybe she has some sort of emotional or mental problem that is some sort of retardation. She didn't seem that way to me the whole time I knew her. But I thought maybe the reason she won't tell me is that she is unable to really understand what it means when I suffer and hurt like I do.

Message 1878.

This last time I text you about it I had dropped the handicapped thing for the most part, but after talking to you and doing my own research that's when I figured it out. She has extreme difficulty admitting she does something wrong. Every single thing about her that has ever not made sense to me made sense in light of that.

That and the psychological condition behind it.

Message 1879.

And the problem is also that they know what was said and I do not. So it probably was something fairly benign and to them it's not a big deal. They are probably thinking "it's nothing anyways. So no need to worry about it". But I don't know and this type of thing destroyed my life and has the potential to irreversibly destroy it again. And the continual hiding it from me just made me wonder worse and worse what it could be

Message 1880.

2019-05-13 22:08:57

Clint:

And it may not have been benign. That may be why they had that reaction but then they realized it wasn't true. I can speculate forever and a day. I guarantee you that Abbey has been told awful things about me that are 1000% not true and horrible by this guy I told you about. And if she repeated them I am sure that would be enough to turn anyone against it. That's the case even though I don't know what was said. I know how this person is. If you want I will give you an example of how he talks. I saw a side by side with this girl he was deceiving that I talked to. I heard about something from him first and then I heard the actual truth from her.

This guy is literally Ted Bundy. He has no heart, no soul, and he is unbelievably narcissistic.

Message 1881.

So I might actually have that going for me. Whatever was said might be so extreme that it is easy to brush off as false.

Message 1882.

2019-05-13 22:12:30

#1 and #3 are the primary concerns, and they will shut their mouths real fast when they see what happens to them if they try this in the new game. Their hit and run won't work. If you choose to do something like this, just be mindful of what you're writing about/sharing. Obviously you won't share more than you are comfortable with about yourself, but be mindful of what you write about others. You don't want to deal with the possibility of a libel suit.

Message 1903.

And if people are saying such horrible things about me that put me through what I went through for years before and what I have went through for 1.5 years here, I have nothing to lose. I almost lost my life in both places.

Message 1905.

But the issue I have is that people say this behind my back and then won't tell me or admit to it. So as soon as I leave the room it is said and then I never get a chance to respond. I only speculate about what Is said.

Message 1906.

Here it was done out of not knowing what is true and what isn't largely, I think. And I'm not sure that anything that bad was said.

Message 1907.

But back home it was a deliberate attempt to ruin me that was behind it, and the people involved have plenty about themselves that they like to hide.

Message 1908.

So the idea is you want to talk behind my back, but instead let's put both our lives under the microscope in front of the whole world. I'm comfortable with every actual fact about myself, and let's see if you are.

Message 1909.

And the "you" is whoever says something about me.

Message 1910.

2019-05-14 14:02:31

Clint:

And this is a side note, but you are confused about when I told you my diagnosis. That wasn't until I left. I told Jessica about my autism around Dec of 2016. Then when Marco was my manager I called HR and told them I had a mental illness but didn't specify what. Jessica had given me that number and I thought I was supposed to call them. So that was when my "disabilities" were formally documented

Message 1911.

2019-05-14 14:06:22

Clint:

The reason I told you when I left was I had been talking to a psychologist about how to get along with people better and she had made some observations.

Message 1912.

I thought about some of what she said and thought maybe I hadn't been fair to you and Christian or maybe that I hadn't acknowledged my role.

Message 1913.

I don't think that anymore. I think I was more than fair and I think it is beyond shameful how I was treated at that bank. But at the time I thought maybe I should explain why I act the way I do. I was also self conscious of somehow coming across as self centered over what Bill said in that meeting. I had no idea what the hell made him think that and I still do not. But I didn't want people thinking that and thinking I didn't care about them.

Message 1914.

And that section will include a part where they can request whatever type of derisory information they would like about me. I will tell them of where to start looking if they want to hear that I am XYZ or that I have done PQR, on the following conditions- 1) they tell me what was said and who said it

2. their communication telling me what was said and who said it would be licensed to me to distribute publicly, and my license will include rights to sublicense it to every single human being on earth to virally spread everywhere
3. if they have some sort of Audio or video or png or jpeg or any other evidence that supports what is claimed the same terms apply. It will be licensed to me and I will make sure it is spread as far and wide as possible as fast as possible

Message 1916.

You told me about your autism diagnosis before that point. It was not too long after I became your manager, if I remember correctly. Not sure specifically when. You had mentioned it over a lync message one day. You might have mentioned it to Christian around the time you left. As far as your treatment goes, I'm curious about what you think was shameful. Bill? Christian? I'm guessing things that I wasn't involved with because I feel you were treated quite fairly and often afforded a great deal of flexibility. You were never scrutinized any more than any other analyst and treated just as we would the other CAs. I'm glad you thought the legal aspects of the website you are considering creating. And just so you know, related to my plan to make a public website with every detail about me and hammer people if they say something about me, it is extremely and I mean very extremely unlikely that it will ever involve the people here who have heard things or who might have.

Message 2003.

I agree with you that they probably know any horrible thing about me is not true by now, if they heard it. I also agree that they will not repeat anything that will be damaging due to people's biases, even if true.

Message 2004.

The latter I don't care if they repeat and they'll have a hard time beating me to the punch cause I'm going to clear up everything.

Message 2005.

The former, the only way they would be involved is if they said something about me that was untrue again. Then I would have to address them publicly.

Message 2006.

I told you before that my fear was that they have heard some exaggerated thing about my hospitalization. The reason for that was that is what I thing people say back home. Abbey hasn't lived in that area for a long long time. So whatever she heard she had to get from elsewhere. Her sister is in the mix in that area pretty frequently. So in Dec 2017 when this first happened I thought she had heard something from her.

Message 2007.

But I recently talked to her sister. We were friends in high school. She thinks very well of me and says she never talks to Abbey bc Abbey is a sociopath and stole her identity.

Message 2008.

So that rules her out and that sort of rules out what was said being this exaggerated thing about my hospitalization. The only way the exaggerated thing about my hospitalization was said was if my ex friend said it to spite me. He knew of the things I had speculated people said and he might have told Abbey that, or he might have said something like "he claims that he was there cause his mom was worried but I guarantee you the real reason"

Message 2009.

So we have what Abbey knows, which is that I was at a hospital. He has without a doubt made me out to be the devil and said god knows what. Between those two I can pick apart what was said but nothing specific on what he said.

Message 2010.

This girl he was deceiving told me that he didn't care about me at all and I would know if I knew what he said to her about me. But she wouldn't tell me because "I don't want to hurt your feelings and it is so horrible"

Message 2011.

2019-05-14 16:31:44

Clint:

And by the way, it begs the question very strongly why I was ever this persons friend.

Message 2012.

Message 2014.

2019-05-14 16:37:46

Clint:

When I contacted this girl that my former friend was deceiving and manipulating, we talked for weeks and weeks, and one of the things she told me about was that she had some health condition where she has to get infusions. She told me about how she would tell him about it on the phone and would often be balling her eyes out over how sorry she felt for the people in this clinic.

Message 2015.

Well, I had heard this same thing from him, when they were on supposedly good terms. He told me about her infusions several months before.

Message 2016.

Here is how he put it-

The short story is I met him first when I was 15 and he was 22. Me and a few of my friends went to his place fairly regularly until I was 17 and now and then to about 18 to 19.

Message 2023.

Every single person who knew him knew that there was something extremely bad wrong with him. He tortured animals for a hobby for one thing.

Message 2024.

Around the time I was 26 he and I started hanging out again and he acted different. He wasn't being racist or anything. Told me he didn't want to be that person anymore. He was a great friend to me and would do all kinds of stuff to help me.

Message 2025.

Then he had to have brain surgeries. He had one after another and he started being the bad version of himself again. He became intolerable to be around. I thought that when I moved to Charlotte I would be rid of him. But nope he wanted to drive 2.25 hrs on the weekends to come up here.

Message 2026.

The whole county has something against me, except him, for the most part. His family is very well respected and powerful up there, and he is the most vengeful person you will ever meet. They are well connected with law enforcement in multiple counties in that area.

Message 2027.

So he could burn down my families property if he wanted

Message 2028.

2019-05-14 16:47:38

Clint:

So I didn't want to piss him off cause out of the whole county he would be the worst person to have as an enemy. So I tried to manage the situation. Tried to change him. Then he got mad at me and booted me from his life. Surprisingly, other than what we're talking about here, he doesn't seem to be doing anything too extreme to get back at me.

Message 2029.

2019-05-14 17:01:31

Clint:

And if someone from my work or personal life up here said that they "heard such and such" from "so and so" to someone, but didn't state it as being true, they would quite likely be exempt from getting hammered publicly. The real culprits I am after are the "so and sos" who spread this garbage in the first place.

Message 2030.

I'm sure that I could track down the paperwork my mom filed to get me hospitalized. It will snow the "she's worried about me" and whatever things I was doing that worried her.

Message 2031.

I can also document that I have saw probably close to dozen different doctors on a regular basis for over 2 decades, and that not one of them thought I was dangerous to people in any way.

Message 2032.

And if I get ahead I might contact the police in the various states abbey is a fugitive in and offer to help find her by paying for detectives. If anyone could get it out of her they could.

Message 2033.

2019-05-14 17:15:17

Clint:

My various doctors have almost all spoken of me in the best way.

Message 2034.

And that is part of the reason I want to get behavioral science experts involved in my web project. They can verify if what I say is credible and if what others say about me is credible. I think I have a possible incentive to offer them, in that I am a pretty good clinical specimen due to the circumstances that I was raised in and my reaction to them and how I ended up. From day one of seeing this counselor at age 12 or 13, I was different from other children who had my behavior problems. The way I acted towards him is not typical at all. I diverge very sharply from the path that most who have my background and my severe childhood behavior problems take. I diverged within probably 15 minutes of the first visit with that doctor.

Message 2035.

2019-05-15 18:59:58

Clint:

This is the last I am speaking of this to you, or I hope so. You have asked me to get help from my doctors and I will.

Message 2036.

But they won't be able to help me. This whole thing has continued to destroy me day after day.

Message 2037.

I have no option but to seek the answer somehow.

Message 2038.

What do you think the possibility is to get all people who have heard whatever it was that was said together and have a call with me?

Message 2039.

My priorities are:

Message 2040.

1. I want to make sure that no one ever talks to any of these people again

Message 2041.

2. I would very much like to know what was said, as it is being said elsewhere I am sure

Message 2042.

3. I would like to make sure that whatever was said doesn't make it any farther.

Message 2043.

Those are my priorities in order. I feel I deserve all of them but will take what I can get.

Message 2044.

We can all sign a nondisclosure agreement and if people are concerned about some HR provision I can sign something releasing all parties from responsibility or obligations.

Message 2045.

There is no help for me until I get my answers. I will be in hell for the rest of my days is how it's looking. There is more to this than can be explained in any short time.

Hi! Sorry I didn't get around to your other texts yesterday. The later half ended up being a cluster eff because of school madness. I'm glad you're going to talk to your doctors and I hope that they can help you in some way with the situation.

Regarding a call with the involved parties (I'm guess Jenny, Tunny, maybe Abbey?)... I would doubt that all would agree if you had been aggressive towards them at any point. I know you said you lashed out at them. People tends to become defensive and guarded after that. I think it would be unlikely.

I was extremely happy when I came to the conclusion that the reason I wasn't being told was some HR thing. I thought that all I would have to do is make everyone understand that I'm not going to use HR stuff to beat them over the head and ruin them somehow. But that wasn't the case.

Message 2056.

This was around Feb to March of his year. I have done so much to help both of them, Jenny and Tunny, but Jenny has a much bigger balance. I was more and more baffled by why Jenny wouldn't tell me, and at times I thought that she was this person who just didn't care and who had exploited my kindness and the situation she created

Message 2057.

2019-05-15 20:42:15

Clint:

I have been devastated by this and on the verge of death constantly, and she has been my only friend for the most part. So she's got to monopolize all of my problem solving and people helping stuff that I am always doing

Sent

That's why this last time when I text you I thought I could get over it for good.

Message 2059.

I had figured out why she wouldn't tell me. It is because she can't admit she did something so wrong to herself. I have determined that Jenny tries to be perfect in everything she does because to her to not be perfect in thought and deed and everything else makes her a bad person. In other words, she cannot separate her actions from who she is.

Message 2060.

So that made me feel much better, that I hadn't been brutalized by someone who didn't care about me

Message 2061.

2019-05-15 20:48:18

Clint:

And the thing is this is not something all that wrong, what she and Tunny and whoever else heard it and possibly repeated it did.

Message 2062.

There might be some HR rule that would allow me to whack them over the head with a ton truck, to speak metaphorically. But I don't care. I am not someone who looks for reasons that my rights were violated so that I can take advantage of any and all situations.

Message 2063.

She had very understandable and very typically human curiosity. What is wrong is letting it go on for so long and letting it destroy me more and more. And I have even forgave her for that.

Message 2064.

The issue is that a good number of people back home are out to destroy me

Message 2065.

2019-05-15 20:50:07

Clint:

And they do not need to be talked to about me with anyone. The major problems with that are 1) they are going to paint me in the worst light possible, deliberately and even when they know it isn't true and 2) they have made multiple attempts on my life and will use any info they get about me to further terrorize me or try to kill me again

Message 2066.

2019-05-15 20:51:33

If I seek legal help over this all bets are off the table once they get involved.

Message 2144.

I've made 3000 attempts to settle this peacefully. I've begged on the verge of death for help. I've offered multiple times repeatedly to just let people explain and no harm will come to anyone. I've compulsively made excuses for grown adults as to why they shouldn't be held accountable for their behavior, including the consequences that any reasonable person would say they should face.

Message 2145.

In return for this I have been lied to and left to be in misery over and over. I don't want to go to battle over this but at this point I see no choice and I have less and less reason to feel sorry for all involved.

Message 2146.

The fact of the matter is that I have be done a massive wrong in the eyes of the law, almost certainly. I am being extremely generous on the terms I am offering to put this behind me, and I am holding the people responsible to a 10,000,000x lighter standard that has ever been applied to me anywhere, including at this bank that treated me so shamefully awful many times.

Message 2147.

Had I went outside the workplace to get information about Tunny's health and false things about her life, then spread them all over the place and it destroyed her, we wouldn't be having this conversation. It wouldn't be at all questionable whether it is or is not a good thing for my church to be notified of my shortcomings. This is all in the light that I suffer from multiple conditions that are labeled as disabilities, and that no such generosity has to be applied to my situation as I apply to Jenny to make a psychological trait a disability.

Message 2148.

This is not how anyone else would handle this situation. I cannot be more willing to work with people.

I have mercy on people or at least try to, but this is not going to go on forever. There is no need for me to have this discussion and I do it out of kindness and of not wanting to hurt people, who are quite comfortable letting me live in misery.

2019-05-17 11:23:17

Clint:

Or maybe we could do this. If someone can send me an anonymous email to brokerc3@gmail . com with what “might have been said”

Message 2151.

I don't want to cause a big ruckus over this. It destroys me on and off. I actually was pretty ok yesterday and am getting better I think.

Message 2152.

Now I am not so much worried about something horrifically false that people are believing as I am just hurt that I wanted to keep all that place away from Charlotte and that has been ruined.

Message 2153.

I know that many people in wells

Fargo heard whatever it was. The extreme reluctance to talk about it worries me at times. I can only imagine what horrible things might have been said.

Message 2154.

I would by far prefer to have a call with everyone involved. Jenny won't join I don't think. We probably wouldn't even tell her until it already happened, at the most. I think that if she sees that I am cool as a cucumber after the fact and that I don't hold anything against anyone she might be easier to get to talk.

Message 2155.

I want to be at home if we have a call so that I can record it for my records. Also so that I can be where I am comfortable. I will likely break down at some point when we talk. I might break down several times. But it will solve my issue. I will be a ok after the fact.

Message 2156.

2019-05-17 13:00:30

Courtney:

I'm sorry this continues to cause you suffering, but like I said, I haven't heard any discussion (whether true or false) about your health or past. I know you think whatever it was has spread around Charlotte and/or the bank, but I really think it is much more isolated. I highly doubt Tunny would share any such information if she had it. I'm also not sure what she would have to gain from sharing it. She has been in another department for well over a year at this point. I'm not sure if the timing at which you think she heard information about you (was it told to her by Jenny?), but I never heard anything of it while she was with or since she's left us. I also don't remember seeing her act any differently towards you. From my interactions with her, I believe she is a person of integrity that wouldn't spread other people's business whether true or false. Also, I'm still curious about the comments regarding your treatment while you were at the bank. I believe you were treated fairly and often afforded additional flexibility with your schedule to accommodate any of your health needs because we believed that was the right thing to do. Regarding a call, I honestly don't think those that you believe might know information (other than Tunny, Jenny, and the Abbey girl) would agree, especially if these are people you have lashed out at and demanded information from. How do you know that this isn't isolated to just Jenny and her inner circle of friends and/or family that she may have shared this with...possibly extending to Tunny since you believe Jenny shared with her? Who else are you wanting to involve?

Aren't you ultimately worried about sharing details of your life with people that likely don't already know and have no business knowing?

Message 2157.

2019-05-17 13:01:19

This is what I typed her after I figured out what her issue was. It was several days later, but she said she felt like I was trying to make her a witch like the Salem witch trials

Message 2406.

2019-05-17 18:42:59

Clint:

But I will tell you this. I never thought you were a witch. I thought you were a good person who cares about people but for some very strange reason wouldn't tell me.

Message 2407.

You are human Jenny. To be human is to do things that are wrong in big or small ways. There is no one who is exempt. Jenny the good person can and will do things that can be seen as morally wrong and are hurtful to others.

Message 2408.

The things like this Jenny does say nothing whatsoever about Jenny the good person. Jenny is a good person before she does them and Jenny is still a good person after she does them. Jenny is a human being just like me and the limitations that all human beings have will make it inevitable that she will not be perfect in thought or deed.

Message 2409.

The destruction I caused others before I had reached my 15th birthday is impossible to measure. I was absolutely horrible to other children from the ages of 9 all the way into high school. Some of these children had to talk to school counselor over what me and my friends put them through. One came to school crying in fourth grade. Without a doubt I have caused one or more of them pain and emotional problems that they still suffer from today. I cannot imagine the pain of being a child who only wants to have friends like all the other children, but who is instead made a sport to entertain me and the rest of the children who got entertainment out of being cruel to them. I cannot imagine that pain; I only know that it has to be unbearable. I did that. I did that to innocent little children. I took part in ruining their childhood and messing them up for life.

Message 2410.

After all of this I still say I am a good person today. It is because my mistakes do not define me. My actions were not so much a reflection of me as they were a reflection of my limitations. To be that person who hurts children is not much less than the best I could have aspired to given my life and the fact that my brain wasn't half developed at my age.

Message 2411.

I am a good person because I have enduring qualities of trying to do the right thing, and of caring about others. That I cannot escape my limitations 100% of the time and that I do things that are hurtful and cruel does not make me any less a person, it just makes me a person.

Message 2412.

This is how you are too Jenny. You have good intentions for everything you do. You are as good as a person can get. I think you have a different definition of what doing something wrong means than I do. According to your definition I can tell you 100% you have never done anything wrong in your life, period. Not a chance. Would bet my immortal soul.

Clint:

And I will tell you completely honestly, I had hoped that you knew more about this. You seemed to have a lesser opinion of me after this happened, and so did other managers. This being seen as a bad or stigmatized person seemed to be all over the place. I saw it as another example this blatant disrespect you and Christian had for me the day I walked out, and this disrespectful attitude and way of being treated is the big reason behind why I left that bank.

Message 2683.

It was all of management as far as I could tell, and then Tunny, Ryan, Terra, and some others in their circle seemed to have this perception of me.

Message 2684.

I don't know what it is, and I leave open the possibility that I have had a misperception somehow, but it seemed no mystery to me at the time and I have trouble seeing it any other way.

Message 2685.

I stick to my words that you were a good manager and I will still say that to everyone, and I don't mean it as a personal attack at all. I am just being honest with what I think.

Message 2686.

I thank you again for taking time to talk about this. If this conversation has been dominated by addressing my needs, I am sorry. It has been I think and I don't mean to be self centered. I am very impressed with your history and your pool trick shot heritage.

Message 2687.

I tend to dominate every conversation I have as a rule and I don't mean to always have the spotlight on me. I just never run out of stuff to say and I have been not doing well over this

Message 2688.

2019-05-19 07:58:03

Clint:

I just had to get that off my chest. Sounds like you've taken the weekend off. I'm starting to try to see this as something positive. I break down almost every day still but I think I had to confront all the stuff I tried to leave behind. These people will follow me to the ends of the earth and I've got to do something about them. It sucks that it had to be this and I don't know how I will get the truth of it. I would like the idea of a call or something with people. Or if someone could send me an anonymous email with what was said and/or assurance it isn't being said any more. Both would be preferable but anything is better than nothing.

Message 2689.

If people are worried that they have violated some law or some HR something which would mess up their career I will sign whatever they need to make sure they don't worry about it.

Message 2690.

That's just an offer because I think at times of getting legal help over this and I would prefer not to. I try to drop it over and over, but it comes back and it would get rid of it if I could just talk to people. And I want to tell Tunny I am sorry for being cruel to her. I'll do that at some point in the distant future. I will send money to her church. So for the umpteenth time I'm going to try to drop it.

And it's your turn to unravel or at least dominate the conversation for a bit. I've enjoyed hearing about your history and lack of religious convictions

And to me it is quite the opposite. She has taken advantage of all my kindness. She has done a lot for me too. But she is saying that this situation has made her realize she needs to take care of her. But all I have been doing is trying to get the truth that she has, and she is the one who started this destruction. Had she not done what she did this situation would not exist. Message 2755.

If you could let them know that I suspect that people outside of the bank have said some things about me that made it inside the bank, and that they are very hurtful no matter what they are, and that anything extreme is definitely false, and tell them I have good intentions and mean no one no harm. Apologize to Terra for the message I sent her. Apologize to Tunny also, and let her know that I wasn't joking at all when I told her I was in tears. That I had broken down repeatedly that day and on the other times I talked to her. And ask them to please keep whatever it was to themselves. If any of them have any influence over Jenny, see what they can do to keep her from talking to these people. Explain to them that people have bad intentions towards me, etc.

Message 2756.

I think you are right that this can be contained. The only issue now is I have hit Jenny's reality warping mechanism with a sledgehammer day and night and it is killing her. So I've got to get her better

Like I say, there is no point in you addressing this, but I do think that is what it is. I think she has gotten the idea on her own or been given it by someone else that she has done something legally wrong

2019-05-19 16:28:48

Clint:

If that is the case I wouldn't have boo hooed over it for a second, and the only reason I've ever thought of Getting any legal people
Involved was to pry the truth out of people

Message 2761.

2019-05-19 18:40:09

Clint:

At one point I was threatening legal action at Tunny and Jenny.

Message 2762.

I got so unbelievably mad that they wouldn't tell me the truth and were apparently cool with me dying, in my mind. I had told them both it would all be forgiven.

Message 2763.

At some point around this time Jenny said she wanted to talk to my doctor. I told her they wouldn't let her but I could record us talking and they could see how "delusional" I was.

Message 2764.

This accusing me of being "delusional" was a reality altering tactic to preserve her sanity, but I didn't recognize it at that time.

Message 2765.

So I recorded a bunch of phone calls where I basically took the role of an interrogator. I talked to her exactly like an FBI agent talking to a top 10 fugitive would. That's how I sounded to myself. All of her explanations were obvious crap and her story got mixed up. She showed every sign of deception in the books. Every behavior you expect from someone who is lying their ass off she had, persistently over each conversation.

Message 2766.

Then I worked it out in my mind that she didn't think I was being truthful when I said I wouldn't do anything. I told her I would just tell her what I thought happened and get it off my chest. I deleted the recordings. She went into bs mode again and I didn't know why, but I thought it was a sign she was totally self centered. I hyperfocused on the situation the rest of the night until it drove me mad and I started saying terrible stuff to her and calling her names that I never want to come out of my mouth again.

Message 2767.

I had told her the process to get someone involuntarily hospitalized and she did that. Told the people a bunch of stuff about me having delusions. The first doctor was biased against me and I was worried, so I halfway agreed. Then they put me in "observation", which is what they do when someone contends that they are fine and its questionable if they have a problem.

Message 2768.

I was of the mentality that if I had to halfway agree with them that's what I'd do, because I've been in that situation before and when a doctor gets biased against you it is hopeless to change their mind. They will keep you forever.

Message 2769.

Over a period of 2 or 3 days a series of M.D. psychiatrists and psychiatrist assistants (I think they are some kind junior doctor like a physicians assistant) determined that I was my normal self and that my thoughts made sense. One of them told me "we put you in observation, which is what we often do in 'he said, she said' disputes like this. And it's a good thing that you were brought here because you've been examined and there is nothing"

Message 2770.

So that's when I started being more honest as opposed to halfway saying I had some problem.

Message 2771.

2019-05-19 18:42:36

Clint:

At that time I had the mindset of all out war on all involved and of holding any and all involved over a barrel since that's what it would take. I'd take whatever damages I get and use them to hire private detectives to see if people involved still say stuff to others, and also spend it on myself for whatever it was I wanted. I had determined that people knew what was up and that they were all self centered

Message 2772.

2019-05-19 18:44:51

Clint:

So I had no reason not to go at people full force and hit them as hard as I can. And I would be justified over the suffering this had cost me.

Message 2773.

I went back and forth with this in my mind, and got Jenny on another phone call since I deleted the old ones. I was the same interrogator. But when I hung up I felt absolutely terrible and started breaking down. That's when I text you the second time to discuss this

Message 2774.

2019-05-19 18:47:18

Clint:

And I thought I was over it after talking it through and figuring out what motivated her. Seeing that she has a disability of sorts and that she cares about me.

Message 2775.

But the pain of it didn't go away. I kept thinking of how I couldn't believe that people did this to me and wouldn't tell me. I felt like I was nothing to anyone.

Message 2776.

And now this whole situation has ruined my life. In all likelihood I will break down over this at least 6 times a week for the rest of my life.

Message 2777.

I've spoken with him off and on but not anything in depth. I know him for what he is. I went all winter without a single word to him. Literally from like October till March. I kind of thought he would try to contact me but he never did. I was in a hospital in Ohio for over 7 weeks in Jan and Feb for a surgery to help with my blood condition (which he told people was aids). Never heard a word from him...but didn't hurt my feelings. I guess he was seeing someone during that time. Once that started to go bad back in March or April he contacted me... so over the last 2 months or so we have had a conversation here or there but nothing major. Also, I would never tell him anyone said anything about him cause I know how he can be since I've been on the receiving end of his wrath

Message 2920.

2019-05-21 19:25:23

Clint:

That's the thing. If anyone wants to know the real scoop about who and what I am and what I have done, including my worst deeds, they can just ask Jenny cause I've told her the whole thing. The good, the bad, the especially bad, the ugly

Message 2921.

And she doesn't Judge me for any of it. Whatever he has said about me that got up here by means of Abbey cannot be true. He is so ruthless and cruel with everything he says and if you have a scar on your character or even a freckle he makes it out to be a malignant tumor. So the mere fact that he said it means it is not true.

Message 2922.

So whatever I am accused of doing or being isn't true. Jenny apparently knows now. I wish I could make up an example of what he might say but I can't. I know how he blows up everything about everyone else but I'm not sure how he would twist some harmless or sort of harmful thing Ive done to make me out to be Satan. I've done plenty of wrong in my life, and when I say I can defend my life I don't mean all of my actions. I can merely defend that the actions I did were wrong but that I haven't fallen shorter than any other human being would have had they been in my shoes.

Message 2923.

My joke is that I quit drinking when I turned 21 and it's not really a joke. I was a party animal for a good bit of my teens and would have racked up plenty of citations during those years.

Message 2924.

But outside of that and the one time I punched a guy in the face I've not done anything in my life that would even get me jail time if I were caught

Message 2925.

2019-05-21 19:40:05

Clint:

For some reason I'm getting the feeling that whatever was said people thought it was true and still do. Anything other than the plain fact that I went to a hospital Bc my mom said she was worried about me is almost certainly crap. Abbey knew that and the only other person I know she would get info from was this guy

It's a nice concept. The catch is you have to set everything up yourself. So I set up the OS, the server hardware, the database connections, all of it

When you go with godaddy you are paying a big fee and that big fee pays for the phone support people who hold your hand 24/7.

Message 3197.

When you go with AWS you lose the phone people and the dumbed down setup interface, but you get 3x the performance per half the cost

You have configuration files that you cannot download but have to edit through an SSH terminal. You have to run vi commands to edit it. Very tedious the first time but you get used to it.

2019-06-03 06:21:01

Sent

Thank you ☺ I had teetered back and forth about if I wanted it shared but ultimately decided I did not. I have thought about making my life public over this and the rest of the people who have been so terrible to me in the past, and that is sort of where I was coming from in saying share it with managers if they ask about me texting their employees with despairing pleas and/or cruel messages. I didn't want it out there for the world just yet, but eventually was going to get there.

Now I have kind of went back to being a private person, sort of. I'm no longer hiding on Facebook though. I have a profile with 2 friends and am not asking for more, but every single thing except my friends is public. I also have a domain for my own name if I ever decide to go public with my life. People are so unbelievably horrible. So I'm glad that in that slight period where I thought of you sharing with others that you didn't. For now that works out best for me.

Message 3247.

I have always been a very private person, largely because there is so much about my life that requires explanation and a gentle slope into understanding.

Message 3248.

I am trying to have blind faith against 100% of the evidence that there are people who will not treat me with such ruthless cruelty and then not even admit it to me at all costs.

Message 3249.

If I go public with my life then every single good and bad thing about me will come straight from the source and then any and everyone who wishes can challenge me in public with the facts they feel I distorted, left out, or fraudulently came up with.

Message 3250.

I do not see that happening just like that though. My health is not good and I am starting to prepare for the worst case scenario. I always wanted to make the world a better place somehow and help people. I wrote a book a long time ago about the mistakes I made as a teenager, that was intended to be given out to teenagers to help them make the right choices in that time of their life. I may edit and make a new version of it and I am also trying to find the strength to write a book about my life and what I have learned from my struggles and what it means to be human.

And also how unbelievably cruel people have been to me. I am now of the opinion that the majority of people who have had the least bit of privilege in their lives whatsoever do not know what it means to be a moral person. I am stunned and shocked beyond belief by how selfish and cold hearted people are.

Message 3251.

Both of these books with either be distributed for free with an option to donate or be put in my mom's name as the copyright holder and she can get any money made off of them. If it's in my name my creditors will just get it if something were to happen to me like a heart attack. if for some reason a large sum of money came from them I would want a portion of go to children I was cruel to as a kid and my mom would do that for sure.

Message 3252.

So I've got 2 websites right now and those 2 books that I need to find the strength to write. I have been paralyzed day after day and having trouble doing much of anything on my new project. But I will do that and I will have something to show for my life no matter what happens. I want to make them all as good as possible.

You believed this chain of garbage over what was in front of your own eyes. It didn't make your life one bit harder but it made mine hell. Clint your thoughts are definitely way off from the truth. I've never heard anything about this until you texted me about it. Even if we had heard anything, do you really think we'd believe work gossip? I didn't even know you and Jenny were friendly outside of work. The meetings were to ensure you were ok because we were concerned about you. It was our responsibility to make sure you were ok. Not just from a management perspective, but that's just what decent humans do. Some of it was also to check in on work and see what we could do to help distribute work. You were never treated differently than anyone else would have been if we had concerns about well being and/or ability to complete work. We also had meetings with plenty of others about work getting done, so definitely no bias there. Any way that you may have been treated differently was actually to your benefit (i.e. added flexibility in scheduling to suit you needs). It is clear that our concerns were not unwarranted because you've said that you've had suicidal thoughts. I'm so sorry that we couldn't do more to help you.

Christian followed up because he was confirming that you were going to get the requests out. Message 3717.

2019-06-10 22:43:36

Clint:

I care about her a lot. I believe she cares about me most of the time. I do doubt it at times though. She is extremely selfish in many ways and is unable to see it

Message 3718.

2019-06-10 22:44:20

Clint:

What I think it is with her, and please don't share this, is that she has huge insecurities that were caused by her childhood

Message 3719.

2019-06-10 22:45:51

Clint:

She has feelings of inferiority and all kinds of doubts about her worth as a person.

Message 3720.

She is further unable to distinguish her behavior from herself. The faulty belief that she has on a largely unconscious level, is that if you DO something wrong you ARE something wrong

Message 3721.

2019-06-10 22:49:54

Clint:

And with her self esteem ruined so bad from her childhood, this makes it intolerable to ever admit doing something wrong. She is so tender that it causes unbelievable pain and so fragile it would break her completely.

Message 3722.

So she in her life builds up a fortress. Every chink in her armor has to be patched and she must be tough on the world. The fortress has a function, and that is to protect this person behind its walls from being shattered.

Message 3723.

And this hyper-vigilant need to Protect herself consumes her mental and emotional resources. She doesn't have much left afterwards to direct to being concerned for others when she feels threatened

Message 3724.

2019-06-10 23:01:22

Clint:

I do hope that everyone involved realizes that I have told the truth 100% about everything that I have said. If someone has made a claim that I am some sort of devious liar and it is being believed, there is no justification. There is no evidence of anything but ethical, hard work, and generously helping others. If people wish to believe the words of a fugitive named Abbey against what their own eyes have seen, knowing now as they all have to that Abbey got her info at least partially from a self described racist sociopath who has committed unspeakable acts against children, that is their problem.

Message 3725.

If they think I am scared to take him on in public and say what I have said to them to the world, they are wrong.

Message 3726.

I have already sent a message to the girl I named "Victim" that will get back to him 100% for sure and almost certainly already has. I knew this in advance.

On the face of it, it doesn't reflect well on me for associating with this person, but like nearly everything about my life there is an explanation and once explained I will not be perceived as a bad person by any remotely reasonable human being.

Message 3727.

How it is that Jenny and Tunny and everyone else involved want to explain their association with this person and their deliberate spreading of his garbage I am not sure. I do not see a morally acceptable reason to, especially considering that Tunny is of recent Asian descent and this person is a racist who has friends on his Facebook that celebrate Adolph Hitler's birthday. I have personally saw posts between him and one such guy where he appended 88 to the end of his post. I'm sure he has done this more than I have saw him

Message 3728.

Message 3729.

Message 3730.

If they do not understand that mental illnesses do not equate to character flaws in any way, the resource they need to cure themselves of that blatant and cruel prejudice and bigotry is not a fugitive who does not take care of 6 of her children, and is wanted in several states for various crimes including identity theft against her own sister

Message 3731.

2019-06-10 23:15:20

Clint:

And again, it is unbelievable that it has come to this over a very simple request for the truth asked in 100 different ways, and under the terms for all involved that if they would just fess up and have a discussion there would be no consequence.

Message 3732.

What they have to gain by lying and withholding the truth is beyond me but they had nothing to lose in telling me for 1.5 years

Message 3733.

2019-06-10 23:16:08

I hope this doesn't wake you up, but Abbey's sister is a good and honest person I have known well for a long time. We spent a lot of time together in my teenage years. I had first thought that she had heard whatever it was about me and told Abbey, then later deduced from

The conversation below that it was entirely from my ex "friend" by my best estimate. I had known Abbey was talking to him. Read what her own sister thinks of this situation. This is all of her commentary when I brought up this to her and asked for help. All of my messages have been left out.

Message 3737.

Good luck getting this person to come and defend her lies. If what her sister says is true, and 100% of the evidence leads me to believe it is, there is no prayer.

Message 3738.

This is who people want to take sides with against a kind hearted man who killed himself to help others the whole time they knew him. They are not prejudiced against this person but instead are prejudiced against me.

Message 3739.

They can give her a call and ask her to come say what she “knows.” She won’t come because she knows there will be a roadblock waiting on her.

Message 3740.

In the meantime all of the scores of people I have did kind things for will have no problem vouching for me.

Message 3741.

2019-06-11 05:02:41

Clint:

Yeah. She’s a habitual liar and a sociopath. She’s given birth to 7 children and has nothing to do with six of them. She got pulled over last year and “borrowed” my social and identity to try to get out of it. She didn’t show up in court so now she’s a fugitive in NC as well as VA and Delaware I think.

Message 3742.

What’s next for you? Stay in Charlotte?

Message 3743.

Looking back on your behavior in school and knowing what I know now about spectrum disorders, it makes sense.

I very much have positive memories of you too. Smart as hell with a great sense of humor. Your laugh made me smile.

Message 3745.

As I said before, Abbey and I have not been in contact since she lied to me about the whole incident with her getting pulled over. I just have to separate myself and my family from her for now.

Message 3746.

It seems best to let sleeping dogs lie. You know what I mean?

Message 3747.

When Abbey lies, it's either to gain something or to get out of trouble. Would she have something to gain by saying stuff about you?

Message 3748.

You said in a previous conversation you were delusional and needed to apologize to her. What changed?

Message 3749.

You're worrying me. Don't worry about Abbey. Fuck that. Please take care of yourself.

Message 3750.

Don't be sorry. I don't know what to say. I don't know what she might have said but I see it deeply effected you. It's hard not to let what other people say effect you but fuck em. They're not you. They don't know you nor pay your bills.

Message 3751.

But she doesn't know you, does she?

Are people saying someone told them something about you?

Message 3752.

Sadly, she hasn't matured beyond the age of 12. I guess since she's trying to lay low from the cops all she has to do is stir up crap. She's no ones friend. I know she can make you feel like you're the funniest, smartest person ever but she will turn on you in a second.

But what you were saying the other day is that you and/or Christian and/or Jessica and/or Bill didn't tell Stephanie that email the last day I was there? Not one single one of you did? Because I thought you did Hey, Clint! I apologize for the delay. Work has been incredibly busy! I wanted to reach out to you regarding the texts you sent to me earlier this week and yesterday. I am not mad at you. However, I am concerned about your wellbeing, and am saddened that you're struggling, but I am not the right person to provide support. Please utilize your doctor/healthcare provider for support during difficult times.

If you are experiencing thoughts of self harm please call the suicide prevention hotline @ 800-784-2433 or you can TEXT the word CONNECT to the Crisis Text Line at 741-741. Also, I want to let you know that going forward I am asking that you no longer text me or contact me. If you contact me again indicating that you plan to harm yourself or others I will need to contact the police so that they can conduct a welfare check. Again, I am worried about you and want you to seek the proper assistance. I am so glad to hear you're going to start seeing your doctor every two weeks. I wish you the absolute best!

Courtney I know you said you would like me to not text you and I will respect your wishes, but can you reply with a simple "yes" to let me know if I have one exception. You are not obligated to answer what I say in any way, but I would like you to listen please

Hey Courtney, you asked that I do not talk to you anymore but I'm wanting to break that rule if that's ok

And forgive me for being a constant rule breaker. It's in my blood. Check out my Facebook wall in the 2006 life events section for a sample
