

The chat with Sapna shows one of many examples of the kind things that I do for people. I have a strong desire to help people and a very kind heart. I donate money to her children's ministry, when I am facing the beginning of my own terrible financial problems. I don't think Sapna would object to me sharing our conversation. She has been permanently banned from Facebook, presumably for asking westerners for money one too many times.

Note that in this chat I reference "Muslims" and/or "Islam", and in some of the cases where I do this, I am speaking of extremists. I don't explicitly reference that I am speaking of extremists, but this is what I have in mind when I say the things that I do. I do not judge anyone based on their religion. I believe Islam is a religion of peace, when practiced properly, and I respect this faith and the people who practice it.
