

Included in this document package (in order):

1. Goals for neurological treatment
2. Timeline and summary of symptoms
3. History of Impairment
4. History of treatment
5. Notes I have taken about my condition, since November 2020. I use Facebook messenger because it has timestamps. I do not take notes for every day, but you can get a sense of my condition from the days that I do take notes on. This is sort of a diary of my symptoms during those times. In some cases I write in updates more frequently than others.
6. Documents from my psychologist, John Monguillot. One was prepared for the courts, but it has my diagnosis.
7. Example of my symptoms (sudden hostility) as evidenced in a snippet from a text message history with a friend.
8. Print out of my text history with my former manager. There is more evidence of my sudden hostility and bouts of emotional pain.
9. Copy of a complaint that I sent to the federal authorities. It has a narrative and history of the events which have caused my condition. (note that due to my condition and the nature of the contents, I am unable to proofread this complaint. Proofreading it causes me extreme distress)
10. Fraudulent involuntary commitment petition that was used in my kidnapping.
11. Memo on Atrium Health Healthcare notes (addresses false claims made by Atrium Health)

My goals for the 03/26/2021 appointment (and subsequent appointments, as needed):

1. I would like for my diagnosis of PTSD to be further confirmed. Currently my psychologist and my hospital (Atrium Health) are in agreement that I have this condition.
2. I would like insight into what causes my depersonalization (this symptom hasn't occurred since around July – August of 2020. When I began to use relaxation therapy during July, my PTSD episodes abated in intensity. Depersonalization would only occur during acute episodes.)
3. Related to the above, I would like to know if the fact that I experience depersonalization, as well as some of the features of my depersonalization, are indicative of a severe case of PTSD/severe traumatic stress brain injury.
4. I would like insight into why the functional impairment that results from my condition occurs. I have specific questions about this that I can address in our appointment.
5. I want to schedule a brain scan of some sort. I am looking for a physical documentation of my condition. If it is possible, I would prefer a scan that will give a physical picture of my injury. Otherwise, perhaps an fMRI would be able to show my condition through brain activity. I am open to any sort of scan that you feel is appropriate.

The purposes of the above goals include 1) to document my condition for social security disability; and 2) for my personal knowledge.

Summary of symptoms

February 2019

- I seem to be having mild symptoms of traumatic stress.
- This includes emotional pain and bouts of hostility

April 2019

- I am kidnapped and intense symptoms begin
- I feel emotional pain and am hostile
- I have a shell shock feeling
- Both the pain and shell shock feeling are accompanied by intrusive memories of and reliving of what had occurred. This is a pattern that continues on an ongoing basis.
- I begin to have great difficulty reading. Reading had been a daily activity for me.
- I have a feeling of constant stress that feels like a psychological paralysis. This continues to the present.
- This is the first month that my symptoms cause great interference with my ability to work.

May of 2019

- symptoms continue to go through the roof
- Symptoms include terrible grief that is accompanied by a feeling of intense emotional pain. During these times, I have intrusive memories, reliving of events, and intrusive thoughts.
- Also includes a feeling of being “pounded” with grief, when grief hits. The “pounding” is a physiological feeling
- I describe myself as “melting” several times during the day
- I continue to be hostile at unpredictable times. I make harsh statements to my former manager named Courtney
- I temporality self-medicate by taking extra Adderall. I do this because I have work to do that I can’t get done. I notice that the extra Adderall seems to abate, to a degree, my distress.
- My doctor responds to my request for more Adderall by telling me “it’s not good for me’ and to go to the emergency room if I “feel like I can’t make it”. I had made a statement to that effect.
- My difficulty reading becomes more acute in this month
- I start to live in constant fear that some officer will come to my door and put me in handcuffs, while processing a civil commitment petition for no valid reason.
- It is around this month that I start being hostile and irritable to staff at Atrium. I also do the same to people elsewhere, such as customer service people at restaurants or my bank. I will scream and curse. I will get extremely irritated over trivial matters. I cannot control the hostility and irritability when it occurs.

- symptoms are intense still.
- I notice that I have a compulsion to work at my computer

- I notice that I cannot read for more than about 5 minutes before the above compulsion takes over
- I feel as if I may have some great difficulty concentrating because I cannot read, but it doesn't make sense to me. The reason it doesn't make sense to me is that I feel that my obsessive working at my computer would be indicative of some ability to concentrate. I believe that I may have reported to Atrium that I was able to concentrate for this reason. In actuality I believe my concentration was severely impaired by this point in time.
- I get a good amount of work on a previous client's website during this time, due to my compulsion to be at my computer.
- It is around the end of this month that I begin to become unfit to be around people, due to terrible emotional pain and hostility

July 2019

- Symptoms are as in June, but they abate for about 3 or 4 days during this month.
- Such abatements have had me thinking that I was "better" many times. For some reason the symptoms of my condition will abate and then get worse again.

August 2019

- I realize that my hospital is committing crimes and around this same time my symptoms go through the roof.
- I can no longer tolerate working at my computer for hours at a time. My compulsion to work at my computer is replaced by a compulsion to pace the floors. I work at my computer much, much less.
- It is during this month that I first recall experiencing profound depersonalization
- At this time my fear of being kidnapped by the police increases. I am a prisoner at will of Wells Fargo and Atrium Health.

Sept of 2019

- Symptoms are consistent with August
- Discover Bank sues me, creating more stress
- I was confident, however, that discover bank would not pursue attachment on my assets. I had told their litigation counsel that I had no assets in excess of what N.C. allows me to exempt

Oct and Nov 2019

- Symptoms remain unchanged, and I periodically call discover bank's litigation counsel. I ask them what kind of legal actions they are contemplating. I reassert my desire to pay them when I "get better", and I reassert that I am at this point disabled and also "judgment proof" in terms of my assets.

December 2019

- Discover Bank pursues attachment on my assets. This is a process whereby they can sell up to 100% of my belongings
- To save some portion of what I own, I have to fill out exemptions paperwork. This is paperwork where I list any assets that I wish to exclude, and their value

- At this point my symptoms are crippling and I cannot fill out paperwork at all
- Stress starts to go through the roof

Jan 2020

- On January 16th, 2020, everything I own would be eligible for a sheriff's sale. I owed discover bank roughly $11,000, and my assets were not worth much more than this. The safe assumption is that literally everything I own would have been sold.
- To prevent this, on January 15th, 2020, I fill out the minimal paperwork to file an emergency chapter 7 bankruptcy petition. I am in a state of panic as I am riding in a cab to file my petition. My petition is stamped at 4:16 pm. The bankruptcy court closes at 4:30 pm. This means I averted a sale of everything that I own by 14 minutes.
- The remainder of my bankruptcy petition is due by January 29th. The remainder mostly consists of a set of schedules lettered A through J. This is another ~ 20 pages of paperwork, in a rough estimate
- December and January 2020 would be another marker. My symptoms would hit a higher level in these months. This higher level of symptoms would persist.
- It is important to note that in the preceding months, as well as in subsequent months, my symptoms will ebb and flow. I may have intense symptoms for 3 to 6 weeks, then have a period of 1 to 2 weeks where my symptoms are much less
- Related to the above bullet, for a long time I have had superstitious beliefs about these occurrences where my symptoms would abate. I would try to think of what I had been doing differently, and would erroneously attribute these slumps to small differences in my sleep or the amount of psychotropic medication I was taking (I have a variable dose on one of my medications. I have historically taken 5mg to 10mg at my discretion).

February 2020 through May 2020

- I live in hell with terrible symptoms and in fear of something going wrong with my bankruptcy. These months were a nightmare and were full of hellish symptoms that sometimes include profound depersonalization.
- A recurring feature of my depersonalization is a shift in my identity. I retain my same name and do not feel as if I have "mutated" into someone else, but the way I see myself will start to include perceptions myself of being one or more of the following: "powerful" in a sense that is grandiose, "evil", "cruel", and/or capable of causing great harm to people
- In this depersonalization, I seem to in the moment not be fully conscious that these shifts in my identity are inaccurate or not consistent with how I previously have seen myself
- However, after the fact, I clearly recognize that these perceptions about myself were a product of depersonalization. This recognition will "stick" in my memory, and in subsequent periods where I am experiencing depersonalization, I will be open to the possibility that any "dark" thoughts that I think may be a distortion. I retain contact with reality, excepting these altered perceptions and my feeling of being "disconnected". I also retain my ability to reason. I do not hallucinate or have delusions. I merely have a shift in how I perceive myself.

- It is also important to note that during my depersonalization, my eyes seem to take on a different look. They will be kind of “wide open” and their position will be kind of fixed or “still”. I get this from observing myself in the mirror when the depersonalization occurs.
- It is also important to note that I do not lose contact with reality
- In April 2020, I file for disability benefits. I was unable to complete my application in time because I had to fill out paperwork and take it to the post office to mail it. My feeling of psychological paralysis makes it very hard to drive anywhere. I also have extreme difficulty filling out paperwork. I eventually type a word document to be used in lieu of the items on the paperwork. My mother comes and gets them and mails them. By this time it is too late and my application has already been denied.

June and July of 2020

- Near the end of May I receive a final discharge of my bankruptcy. This means all of my debts (excluding student loans) were erased. Discover Bank’s fraud and perjury-based judgment on the county records is also eliminated (as I have no real estate, they cannot put a lien on any of my property. Their attachment process was halted by my Chapter 7 petition.)
- In July, I begin to use new treatments. I use progressive relaxation techniques. These treatments help and my condition improves. I am still however profoundly ill and disabled. My usable hours go from an average of maybe 30 minutes per day (before my new treatments, I would have consecutive days where all I do is suffer, followed by days where I might have 1 to 2 hours of usable time.) to 1.5 to 4 hours per day.

August 2020 through December 2020

- The improvements in my condition from July stick, although I am profoundly disabled.
- I continue to avoid people and to be highly sensitive to stress
- I begin EMDR at near the end of December. I use a website called Virtual EMDR. My psychologist recommended this.
- It is around this time that I notice that some of my intrusive thoughts are future oriented. I will imagine future distressing situations and have traumatic stress reactions to them.

January 2021

- EMDR improves my condition. I do sessions ranging from 4 to 30 minutes and I do them 5 to 15 times per week.
- I estimate that my usable hours during the day average 1.5 to 5.5. It seems that the lower end of that scale is more typical.
- I did have one day where I had no usable hours at all, and I was in profound distress for this day.
- I have also noticed, as of the past four or five months (at this moment it is 1/31/2021) I have an increased capacity for empathy. I have always been a kind hearted person, but I feel empathy more profoundly. I cry over sad things much more readily. I believe that this is somehow a consequence of my brain injury, and I also believe that this increased empathy has set in much earlier than when I first noticed it.
- New abuse from Atrium triggers more traumatic stress.

- I have traumatic stress symptoms as previously described. These include future oriented traumatic stress symptoms.
- I document a time when I have physiological traumatic stress symptoms in the absence of any intrusive memories or future oriented intrusive thoughts. These physiological symptoms have been ongoing for many months, but I documented one (on my notes) for the first time this month.
- I reduce the frequency of my EMDR. I discover that EMDR is exhausting me, due to doing it almost every day. Here I start to do EMDR twice a week.

March 2021

- Symptoms continue, but Benadryl seems to help over time
- I temporarily discontinue EMDR, due to financial constraints
- Fear of criminal abuse of the mental health system intensifies as appointment with Novant Health approaches

History of Impairment From PTSD

April of 2019

- This is when I begin to be seriously impaired
- I am very given to sudden bouts of hostility that is accompanied by emotional pain.
- I am also given to irritable outbursts. I will be cruel and hostile to people
- I begin to have extreme difficulty concentrating
- I feel a psychological paralysis
- I begin to have trouble reading

May of 2019

- In this month I become completely disabled. By “completely” I mean that I cannot work at all for a large part of this month
- I begin to self-medicate by taking extra Adderall. On some days I am able to get work done if I take extra Adderall. My doctor will not increase my dose when I ask for an increase.
- I have severe emotional pain and a feeling of paralysis. The emotion pain is accompanied by physiological feelings that are extremely uncomfortable (this can be called pain, but it feels different than any physical pain that I have had related to other things. It is a shell shock feeling and it is terrible)
- I continue to feel a psychological paralysis. The way I describe this is that anything that takes “willpower” is extremely hard to do and I usually cannot do it.
- I cry multiple times per day on most days.

My impairment during May and going forward is as follows:

- I continue to break down in tears and cry multiple times per week and sometimes multiple times per day.
- I cannot clean my house, except on very rare occasions
- I have extreme difficulty filling out paperwork
- I have generalized difficulty in all daily affairs and daily tasks. I find it paralyzing to go to the grocery store, the drug store, or to the post office. Anything that takes focus or “willpower” is extremely hard
- For the larger part of the day, doing just about anything is off the table. My distress is too severe (at all times, when I reference “distress”, I am referring to emotional pain, hostility, etc. that comes with re-living my traumatic events and/or with intrusive memories of traumatic events, and this also includes future oriented thoughts that create traumatic stress)
- I am however, during some times of some days (what I call “usable hours”), able to type written documents. I can also write programming scripts (before becoming disabled I was a web application developer. I am skilled at programming web servers and web browsers. I am also proficient with software that provides an interface to program your operating system (it is called winAutomation).

- I am given to hostility and outbursts. I will yell and scream at people. I will curse loudly at people. I am also given to issuing legal threats. I cannot control this behavior when it occurs.
- I measure my progress in how many “usable hours” I have during the typical day. By usable hours I mean I am able to do anything other than pace the floors or suffer. It is important to note that my usable hours are contingent upon me having zero stress from the outside world. By this I mean that if I am in a condition where I have usable hours and I am subject to even the smallest stress, my period of usable hours will be over. I will become highly distressed, often for many hours.

Up until roughly Nov - Dec of 2019, I would work on previous clients’ websites in small increments of time. I would fine tune their sites or build functionality. I was unable to complete my last client’s site, due to my condition. Since then, I have taken on one small job that I can recall. I helped write and test a webhooks script and was paid $500. This was for a man who I have worked with in the past and is more a friend. I do not take new clients, due to my hostility and the excessive accommodations that I would need. I have an extreme over reaction to stress and cannot be held to deadlines and expectations as is typical in the working world. For a period of time, I also worked on my personal website wealthcreatingwebsites.com.

As of the last ~ 9 to 10 months, I spend my usable hours by typing documents or working on my computer on different computer projects that I have. I find it to take an enormous amount of willpower to complete paperwork. I have had paperwork to fill out for Medicaid and Social Security. I have to muster up all the willpower I can, and it will often take a string of days or even weeks. I will be unable to fill out paperwork for several days or weeks in a row, and then finally get the “willpower” to do it.

- I will typically have 1.5 to 5.5 usable hours during the day, at current. My illness seems to fluctuate. I will have a period of a week or weeks where I am doing very poorly, and then I will have a week where I have much less symptoms. I seem to be able to work on software better than anything else. My next best ability is writing word documents. My usable time is hard to measure, because it often comes in small blocks. I would say 5-to-20-minute blocks are typical. I will do some activity for 5 to 20 minutes and then pace the floor. Stress seems to build up, and it builds up faster when I am still. Pacing the floor will often abate my stress. I have occasional days where I do not have even 1 usable hour.
- I am otherwise generally impaired in doing anything, and even simple tasks like checking the mail seem to be difficult. I am under a constant state of stress and extreme psychological discomfort. I feel as if I am a profoundly damaged version of my old self. I am able to take care of myself, however.
- I have a profound inability to concentrate. I have profound difficulty reading, relative to my previous self before this condition. Sometimes I cannot read even a few paragraphs. The most I am able to read, at once, seems to be about 22 to 25 minutes. This is when I am doing extremely good.

Before I had these symptoms, I would typically read 1 to 4 books per week, and my record was 3 books in one day. This was during a time in which I was employed full time. Since I have been disabled, despite working extremely rarely, I have read less than 5 or 6 books. This is over a period of now almost 2 years. I have read partial parts of books, however. I still do buy books from time to time. I like getting them in the mail and it provides some level of relief to browse through them and read what I can.

History of Treatment for PTSD

August to October 2019:

- I first realize that I am experiencing PTSD. I contact my old psychologist from the mountains and I buy a workbook for PTSD sufferers
- Psychologist John Monguillot confirms that I am suffering from PTSD. He issues a diagnosis of PTSD Chronic

October through Nov 2019

- John recommends some combination of SSRIs, EMDR, and Benadryl
- I initially take SSRIs, as I have historically
- I also work on my workbook and I call John during times when my distress is severe. I intend on getting EMDR at this time. My ability to get healthcare is limited due to the ongoing crime my hospital is engaged in

December 2019

- My plans to expand my treatment to EMDR is halted when discover bank begins to pursue my assets. I am extremely ill at this point, and I have to use every waking minute fighting to keep them from selling everything that I own. I continue to use John for help and advice

January 2020 through May 2020

- I am unable to expand my treatment protocol due to my every waking minute being consumed
- I am primarily consumed by my Chapter 7 Bankruptcy case. If my case is dismissed, everything I own is eligible for sale.
- I also begin to write a letter to send to the authorities. It describes criminal behavior from Wells Fargo and the various entities that Wells Fargo has induced into criminal behavior.
- I sent a complaint in march 2020 and the US DOJ responds that my complaint is not in sufficient detail.
- Around the end of March 2020 and the beginning of April 2020, I begin to create a web portal to house the evidence for my criminal and civil case against Wells Fargo et al. I buy a prebuilt HTML package for $50 and write several programming scripts that allow me to load videos.

June through July 2020

- My bankruptcy case is closed near mid to late May. In June and July I begin to explore new treatment options.
- Finances are a concern, as well as the criminal behavior of my hospital. These 2 are a barrier to getting EMDR. I struggle to afford food, as I live off of what money my mother will give me.
- I begin to use a relaxation machine that I own to do breathing exercises. I condition myself to react less to intrusive memories and re-livings. I do this on my own for one session, and then I report this to John. John says that this is a sound treatment and recommends that I do these exercises 1 to 2 times per day.

- I follow John's advice and this treatment improves my condition greatly

August 2020 through December 2020

- During this time, I am involuntarily hospitalized. My mother fills out a petition with the magistrate
- The hospital Novant Health recommends that I discontinue the SSRIs. It turns out that, for some reason, I feel better without the SSRIs.
- I also use Benadryl during this month.

January 2021

- It is at the end of December to beginning of January that I begin to use EMDR, through a website called Virtual EMDR. John recommends this. I am able to afford EMDR largely because my mother has begun to give me more money.
- I do 5 to 15 sessions of EMDR per week
- EMDR improves my condition and seems to be as effective or possibly more effective than my relaxation exercises.

February 2021

- I tone down EMDR to two sessions per week. Doing so many sessions had me fatigued all day for most days.

March 2021

- I take Benadryl once more, and up my dosage. It seems to help. I begin to use it regularly. It seems to reduce my shell shock symptoms
- Later on, symptoms come back and I am not sure how much Benadryl helps me.
- (03/24/2021) It does seem that Benadryl helps

Unbelievable hell

Feb 5, 2021, 4:32 AM

Leonard Clinton Williams III

From 4 to 8 on a scale of 10

Feb 5, 2021, 4:25 AM

Leonard Clinton Williams III

Hell has went up and down but been continuous

Feb 5, 2021, 4:25 AM

Leonard Clinton Williams III

Still in absolute hell

Feb 4, 2021, 11:37 PM

Leonard Clinton Williams III

And this has created terrible stress

Feb 4, 2021, 10:16 PM

Leonard Clinton Williams III

My mother seems to be on a budget

Feb 4, 2021, 10:16 PM

Leonard Clinton Williams III

Or trying

Feb 4, 2021, 8:24 AM

Leonard Clinton Williams III

Going to bed

Today was get up at 3:45, have decent time until mom ruined my day. Do Kasina session at 8:50, after being in worsening and severe distress, and off and on pacing the floors for hours. During the time I was in distress I wanted to read or do something productive. I couldn't do it. I was in hell. Was still distressed after Kasina session. Then when I was speaking to mother, I started to feel better. It had nothing to do with speaking to mom. Just Passage of time. I think my Kasina helped me and it just took time. Then around 12 or so I started looking up PayPal api. I had been doing good enough to watch YouTube videos and play games. The stress of searching through PayPal's documents put me in distress. I got about 10 minutes of work and about 20 minutes of reading done today. This is despite wanting very badly to get a lot done all day.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I am a licensed psychologist in North Carolina who previously treated Leonard Williams in the community when I worked in Newland. He has consulted me recently regarding how to manage some stressful situations and I need to be consulted if there are any significant issues in his status. He shows clear signs of Post Traumatic Stress Disorder which are interfering with his ability to manage daily affairs. I can be contacted at [REDACTED]

RE: Leonard Clinton Williams III, Case # 20-30049

To: U.S. Bankruptcy Court

Western District of North Carolina

401 West Trade Street, Room 111

Charlotte, NC 28202

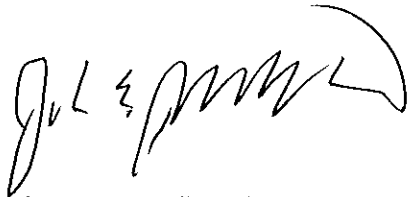

I am a psychologist licensed in North Carolina who saw Mr. Williams in treatment at New River Behavioral Healthcare, Newland, NC. I left that site in 2008 and do not have access to my records, but knew him to be a young man who was quite focused and hard working. He was doing well psychologically on his medications and his primary concerns were staying stable and developing his skill at billiards. To that end, he earned the money to build a garage and bought a high-end pool table to practice his pool skills. We parted on good terms after seeing him at varying frequencies from 2000 to 2008 when I ceased any practice in Avery County due to taking a job in the NC Prison system.

My current diagnosis of Mr. Williams is Bipolar I Disorder, with Mixed Features and Post Traumatic Stress Disorder, Chronic. His residual bipolar symptoms are mildly speeded thoughts and speech, irregular sleep and anxiety. His PTSD symptoms are seen in flashbacks, a feeling of loss of control and intrusive memories. The nature of PTSD is that the intrusive memories are triggered involuntarily and typically cause a startle response and hyperalertness. Such reactions are very disruptive to concentration and sustained effort, as well as can severely complicate social relations. As an example, he may feel threatened in a hearing and become loud, angry, anxious, and have irritable outbursts. He may also break down into tears for seemingly no sufficient reason. These behaviors are involuntary and not within Mr. Williams ability to control. I do not believe he is a danger to himself or others, and he is clearly mentally competent to handle his legal matters. Unfortunately, his symptoms have flared recently, and have interfered with his ability to complete and submit forms in a timely manner. Absent his current mental issues, he would be able to prepare any reasonable financial document in 24 hours.

I have encouraged him to explore SSI disability and linked him with agencies that provide income adjusted care in Mecklenburg County. He is going to need assistance for 6-9 months to recover and get back to where he could resume work. I hope this letter is helpful to the court and that it helps to facilitate a fair hearing of the facts and appropriate handling of someone struggling right now.

[8/19/19, 12:05:00 PM] Clint: Anyways
[8/19/19, 12:31:34 PM] Clint: What's got you in a bitchy mood
[8/19/19, 12:43:45 PM] Jenny Cox: Wow i could ask you the same question.
[8/19/19, 12:44:09 PM] Clint: Why are you fussing about not reading my text
[8/19/19, 12:44:19 PM] Clint: I'm cool and collected
[8/19/19, 12:44:51 PM] Jenny Cox: So am I then you start asking why i am bitchy
[8/19/19, 12:45:10 PM] Clint: You come across as being in a bitchy mood
[8/19/19, 12:45:54 PM] Jenny Cox: Whatever i got to work
[8/19/19, 12:46:09 PM] Clint: Yeah there you go again
[8/19/19, 12:46:51 PM] Clint: Get your work done and I'll get Mine done. Call me after work if you want
[8/19/19, 12:47:14 PM] Jenny Cox: I got a dance lesson
[8/19/19, 12:47:29 PM] Clint: You can call me on the way
[8/19/19, 12:47:49 PM] Clint: It's no huge deal just was going to catch up a bit
[8/19/19, 12:49:06 PM] Clint: You've got to remember you are damn near my only friend in Charlotte. That will be changing soon, as soon as I am not broke
[8/19/19, 12:50:20 PM] Clint: You and Preston are the only ones still left from WFB. And Shana
[8/19/19, 12:50:43 PM] Clint: That was where I knew most of the people I have known in Charlotte.
[8/19/19, 12:52:25 PM] Clint: But don't worry about it
[8/19/19, 1:01:11 PM] Clint: I'll just have to make sure none of the new friends I make ever talk to anyone up there. They will be told a bunch of unknown derogatory lies that not one human being has the decency or guts to say to my face. I've now got to isolate my 5000 piece of shit enemies in the mountains as well as 2 to 3 dozen pieces of shit up here from everyone I ever meet.

I wasn't so extremely concerned about isolating the people here from the mountains to people I knew here. I incorrectly assumed the people here would have an ounce of decency. Truthfully believed they would have more than an ounce. But that was a mistake and they're worthless chickenshit criminals with not one drop of decency. They do the same shit. Tell me how nice and kind hearted I am for all the things I do for them, which is a lot. Then go behind my back talking shit.

[8/19/19, 1:02:08 PM] Clint: I'm not an incompetent human being and depraved killer

Commented [CW1]: The next message is an example where I am totally calm, we are having lighthearted talk, and I suddenly become hostile.

until I leave the room

[8/19/19, 1:02:50 PM] Clint: You couldn't imagine what it is like to live under these terms

[8/19/19, 1:04:10 PM] Clint: Nor could Tunny or your other piece of shit gossip buddies and criminals at Wells Fargo.

People who can dish it out with conscience but can't take it at 1% of what they dish it out.

[8/19/19, 1:09:32 PM] Jenny Cox: I have lived with your hell for too long and it has become my hell as i have tried to help you through it. Yet i am still accused and told I have no clue. You tell me one day you are cutting me out of your life then asking for my opinion the next. I can't keep taking the weight of your paranoia on my shoulders. If i don't answer you the right way i am a bitch. If i take longer than you want to answer i am a bitch and ignoring you. When I have to ignore you because i am at my breaking point you can not respect that and i am a selfish bitch. I pushed against a brick wall and made to feel like i am not good enough almost everyday from you. I can't do it.

[8/19/19, 1:10:05 PM] Clint: How have you tried to help me out of it?

[8/19/19, 1:10:11 PM] Clint: Is this a joke

[8/19/19, 1:10:23 PM] Clint: And you don't know what hell is

[8/19/19, 1:10:27 PM] Jenny Cox: Seriously you don't see how i have tried to help you

[8/19/19, 1:10:32 PM] Clint: No

[8/19/19, 1:10:34 PM] Clint: Not even close

[8/19/19, 1:10:42 PM] Clint: "I don't want to save people"

[8/19/19, 1:10:48 PM] Jenny Cox: Wow

[8/19/19, 1:10:49 PM] Clint: Your first response

[8/19/19, 1:11:24 PM] Clint: "You're paranoid because you quit fucking taking your medicine" "you don't want me to be happy"

[8/19/19, 1:11:30 PM] Jenny Cox: Then there is nothing for us to discuss since i have never tried to help you.

[8/19/19, 1:12:19 PM] Clint: "What happened to you was your damn fault cause you were pushy when you helped people"

[8/19/19, 1:12:48 PM] Clint: You have hit me with blistering attacks everytime we talk about this

[8/19/19, 1:13:32 PM] Clint: And gave me a bunch of nonsensical theories about "your helping me at Wells Fargo started to feel like abuse"

[8/19/19, 1:13:54 PM] Clint: You go on the aggressive

[8/19/19, 1:14:06 PM] Clint: But forget it

[8/19/19, 1:14:18 PM] Clint: There is no point

[8/19/19, 1:14:21 PM] Clint: Just do your work

[8/19/19, 1:14:27 PM] Clint: And this issue isn't going a way

[8/19/19, 1:14:35 PM] Clint: It has become was has defined my life

[8/19/19, 1:14:47 PM] Clint: And it destroys my life

[8/19/19, 1:15:17 PM] Clint: You can ignore it and forget it and dodge it at your convenience because it doesn't destroy yours

[8/19/19, 1:15:31 PM] Clint: But I cannot let it out of my sight for 3 seconds

[8/19/19, 1:15:40 PM] Clint: That's all it takes

[8/19/19, 1:16:00 PM] Clint: I live in pain over what has been done

[8/19/19, 1:16:15 PM] Clint: But just go on

This is an output of my cell phone IM with my former manager at WFB, Courtney. I ran a programming script that numbers the messages, and also replaces "Sent" with "Clint" and "Received" with "Courtney." My programming script missed some of these. It is around message #1692 that I start having bouts of emotional pain and being hostile. These intermittently follow for the remainder of the chat. You will see how I am lighthearted/normal and then suddenly the tone of my messages changes.

Message 634 @ 2019-04-21 17:51:15: Hey Courtney

Message 635 @ 2019-04-21 17:51:15: How are things

Message 636 @ 2019-04-21 19:49:58: Hi Clint. Pretty good! Getting ready to go back to work in a month. How are you?

Message 637 @ 2019-04-21 19:55:40 - Clint: A month doesn't sound too bad

Message 638 @ 2019-04-21 19:55:59 - Clint: I feel pretty comfy anytime I'm looking at a solid month of no work

Message 639 @ 2019-04-21 19:56:08: Let me ask you something Sent

Message 640 @ 2019-04-21 19:56:40 - Clint: And I don't mean to be mean and I am not asking for any health information you might have on someone

Message 641 @ 2019-04-21 19:57:19 - Clint: But more on personal terms, did Jenny Cox ever strike you as maybe having some sort of handicap? Like maybe she wasn't all there?

Message 642 @ 2019-04-21 19:57:36 - Clint: And please do not repeat that I asked

Message 643 @ 2019-04-21 19:57:45 - Clint: This is extremely personal

Message 644 @ 2019-04-21 19:58:26 - Clint: The reason I ask is that I have been talking to her for a very long time and I care about her a lot

Message 645 @ 2019-04-21 19:59:46 - Clint: But I am suffering extremely over some things that I think she knows. And she will not tell me. It is very bizarre to me. I sometimes get the impression lately that she doesn't have the right mental capacity to understand how someone would suffer

Message 646 @ 2019-04-21 20:01:21 - Courtney: I didn't necessarily feel that way, but I feel like she was a very emotional person. 2019-04-21 20:01:47

And also that she may have some deficit that would limit her from telling the truth

Message 647 @ 2019-04-21 20:01:51: We definitely took her job too seriously and let things weigh too heavily on her wellbeing

Message 648 @ 2019-04-21 20:01:53: She*

Message 649 @ 2019-04-21 20:02:04: Yes she cares very much

Message 650 @ 2019-04-21 20:02:18: Let me ask you something else

Message 651 @ 2019-04-21 20:02:34 - Clint: And I promise you this will make it no further than you and I

Message 652 @ 2019-04-21 20:02:55 - Clint: But here is a rough picture of my situation

Message 653 @ 2019-04-21 20:03:23 - Clint: I escaped a place not much unlike hell when I moved to Charlotte

Message 654 @ 2019-04-21 20:03:39 - Clint: I lived in the mountains of western N.C.

Message 655 @ 2019-04-21 20:04:24 - Clint: I was abused as a kid and came across as somewhat disturbed at times, and this colored people's perception of me

Message 656 @ 2019-04-21 20:04:44 - Clint: Then I had to be hospitalized over my mental condition at 18

Message 657 @ 2019-04-21 20:06:18 - Clint: The hospital I was sent to is just that, a hospital, but it was a long ways away from where I lived. It had a reputation as being some sort of place where people are chained to the walls

Message 658 @ 2019-04-21 20:06:40 - Clint: And you have Hannibal lectur on the right or whatever

Message 659 @ 2019-04-21 20:08:01 - Clint: I became stigmatized by people over this. I was outnumbered and People were cruel. The best I can come up with is that they made up Some sort of terrible thing about why I was in this hospital

Message 660 @ 2019-04-21 20:09:03 - Clint: It was for one thing a very convenient tactic to use in social settings competing for girls.

Message 661 @: For whatever reason, I do not have a hard time getting extremely attractive women talking to me

Message 662 @ 2019-04-21 20:09:09: It happens quite often

Message 663 @ 2019-04-21 20:09:42 - Clint: So people would just play that card after I left

Message 664 @ 2019-04-21 20:09:52 - Clint: But it was kept from me whatever was said

Message 665 @ 2019-04-21 20:10:01 - Clint: No one would ever tell me

Message 666 @ 2019-04-21 20:10:13: But I watched people turn against me one at a time

Message 667 @ 2019-04-21 20:10:35 - Clint: It was predictable and I saw it coming after a while

Message 668 @ 2019-04-21 20:10:40 - Courtney: I remember you saying that you had an abusive childhood. I'm sorry to hear that you also had to deal with people being cruel about getting treatment for the resulting teams. That's horrifying

Message 669 @ 2019-04-21 20:11:14 - Clint: It is not something I think it is for sure real

Message 670 @ 2019-04-21 20:11:20: Resulting trama*

Message 671 @ 2019-04-21 20:11:28: Stupid autocorrect

Message 672 @ 2019-04-21 20:11:37: Jenny grew up with you?

Message 673 @ 2019-04-21 20:11:43: I mean when you have a 23 year old Girl who could be a model

Message 674 @ 2019-04-21 20:11:51: No she did not

Message 675 @ 2019-04-21 20:12:03: Clint: And she Walks in a bar with her dad

Message 676 @ 2019-04-21 20:12:13 - Clint: And her dad says "hey Sarah's over there"

Message 677 @ 2019-04-21 20:12:39 - Clint: And the first thing Sarah does is ask if you have a phone and then punch in her number Message 678 @ 2019-04-21 20:12:49: How much is 2 + 2?

Message 679 @ 2019-04-21 20:13:18 - Clint: Then the following day, with no further interaction in between Message 680 @ 2019-04-21 20:13:39 - Clint: She's treating you like you are to be avoided, etc.

Message 681 @ 2019-04-21 20:14:04 - Clint: It's pretty obvious that someone said something after you left and it wasn't good

Message 682 @ 2019-04-21 20:14:23 - Clint: It drove the men up there insane To no end

Message 683 @ 2019-04-21 20:14:33 - Courtney: Yeah, I'd agree with that.

Message 684 @ 2019-04-21 20:14:38 - Clint: They hated that I was smarter than them

Message 685 @ 2019-04-21 20:14:54 - Clint: Then youd have these guys that were all Macho

Message 686 @ 2019-04-21 20:16:07: And they would have been trying to convince some girl they're the best thing on earth for months with a tepid and not interested response

Message 687 @ 2019-04-21 20:17:30 - Clint: Then some not perfectly coordinated when he walks guy with not nice looking teeth, pale Skin, and muscles that might be nice enough but not needle in the arm quality like theirs walks up

Message 688 @ 2019-04-21 20:17:49 - Clint: And she's talking to him all giddy in 20 minutes

Message 689 @ 2019-04-21 20:18:33 - Clint: And it's an oh so convenient tactic to mention he's been to such as such place cause ". "

Message 690 @ 2019-04-21 20:18:44 - Clint: So something along those lines was going on

Message 691 @ 2019-04-21 20:19:03 - Clint: And I had enemies that were so malicious and so cruel

Message 692 @ 2019-04-21 20:19:51 - Clint: What kills me is I never knew exactly what they were saying

Message 693 @ 2019-04-21 20:20:16 - Clint: Only had hints or clues and the possibility it was horrific beyond belief

Message 694 @ 2019-04-21 20:20:55 - Clint: It was like they were deliberately keeping it from me

Message 695 @ 2019-04-21 20:21:02 - Clint: So that I could never respond

Message 696 @ 2019-04-21 20:21:40: Every single person would end up having a more negative attitude towards me than when they first met me

Message 697 @ 2019-04-21 20:22:37: I talked to this local guy [REDACTED]. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Talked about a job

Message 698 @ 2019-04-21 20:23:14 - Clint: He thought I kicked ass and would treat me like his best guys

Message 699 @ 2019-04-21 20:23:26: That lasted a week

Message 700 @ 2019-04-21 20:23:54 - Clint: Then he started acting just kind of nice but like he thought I wasn't a worthwhile or competent person

Message 701 @ 2019-04-21 20:25:35: So it's like every single person thought less of me somehow, and I couldn't tell if the same thing was being told to all, or if the really cruel made up stuff was told to some, and then some true or not totally true but not so bad thing was told to others

Message 702 @ 2019-04-21 20:26:04 - Clint: What I could count on as sure as the sun rising the next morning

Message 703 @ 2019-04-21 20:26:20 - Clint: Was that any hot girl I talked to would be ran away 2019-04-21 20:26:36
That was a 10 for 10 probability

Message 704 @ 2019-04-21 20:27:15 - Clint: And again, I only have hints of what might have been said, and some of it was completely Ruthless if it was

Message 705 @ 2019-04-21 20:27:19: I'm sorry to hear that

Message 706 @ 2019-04-21 20:27:22: Yes

Message 707 @ 2019-04-21 20:27:47: And I have had people
Tell me that I come across as "liking to be the hero"

Message 708 @ 2019-04-21 20:28:11 - Courtney: It sucks that people wouldn't just tell you

Message 709 @ 2019-04-21 20:28:24 - Clint: That is not exactly true but not dramatically off either

Message 710 @ 2019-04-21 20:28:45 - Clint: So you can imagine this being particularly painful for me

Message 711 @ 2019-04-21 20:28:54: Of course!

Message 712 @ 2019-04-21 20:29:03: Yeah

Message 713 @ 2019-04-21 20:29:39: So I lived in fear of people
From there getting whatever it was up here

Message 714 @ 2019-04-21 20:30:10 - Clint: And I knew that my life was not something that could be absorbed in one gulp

Message 715 @ 2019-04-21 20:30:32 - Courtney: Understandable, but I'd hope that anyone would take it with a grain of salt!!

Message 716 @ 2019-04-21 20:30:44 - Clint: So I would leave little tidbits here and there

Message 717 @ 2019-04-21 20:31:23 - Clint: Don't torch the kettle and have the water explode and scald Everyone and make them Run away

Message 718 @ 2019-04-21 20:31:40: Heat it up half a degree centigrade at a time

Message 719 @ 2019-04-21 20:31:51: Once in a great while

Message 720 @ 2019-04-21 20:32:24: So that by the time it starts to boil people aren't worried about a thing

Message 721 @ 2019-04-21 20:33:04 - Clint: So I would casually say things, not necessarily planned

Message 722 @ 2019-04-21 20:33:22 - Clint: But drop tidbits to leave a little clue

Message 723 @ 2019-04-21 20:34:14 - Clint: Say "yeah I didn't get up till 9 today cause a medicine I take makes me exhausted in the mornings"

Message 724 @ 2019-04-21 20:34:22: Just leave it at That Message 725 @ 2019-04-21 20:34:30: Then sometime way later

Message 726 @ 2019-04-21 20:34:48: Say "yeah I had to be put on it at 18"

Message 727 @ 2019-04-21 20:35:01: In another conversation

Message 728 @ 2019-04-21 20:36:00: People are always crunching numbers about what others lives Are like behind the scenes. It is normal curiosity

Message 729 @ 2019-04-21 20:36:10: Not obsessive

Message 730 @ 2019-04-21 20:36:24 - Clint: They don't care that much about you

Message 731 @ 2019-04-21 20:36:44: But on some level for at least a second they will wonder what that might be for

Message 732 @ 2019-04-21 20:37:16 - Clint: And maybe they haven't heard of people having to be put on something at a hospital at age 18

Message 733 @ 2019-04-21 20:37:24: For the first time

Message 734 @ 2019-04-21 20:37:52: So I drop little hints

Message 735 @ 2019-04-21 20:38:12: Of course, people are curious. I'd say the hospital bit wouldn't be all that uncommon though.

Message 736 @ 2019-04-21 20:38:28: No it is not at all

Message 737 @ 2019-04-21 20:38:43 - Clint: But not everyone has had to be hospitalized

Message 738 @ 2019-04-21 20:38:47: Some haven't

Message 739 @ 2019-04-21 20:38:54: True!

Message 740 @ 2019-04-21 20:39:15: And of those that have, not all have had to be put on medicine that they still take at 35

Message 741 @ 2019-04-21 20:40:01 - Clint: And my purpose is to put the picture together a little at a time over a long period

Message 742 @ 2019-04-21 20:41:26: To avoid this "place Where people Are chained to the wall" notion that can be used to ruin me by people who don't like me, and also Just to ease people along who may not understand how these things work

Message 743 @ 2019-04-21 20:42:20 - Clint: But anywho, I did this deliberately and gradually

Message 744 @ 2019-04-21 20:42:31 - Courtney: Makes sense to spoon feed bits of it to avoid people being overwhelmed. I don't think all people are going to jump to that conclusion or paint that picture of you in their head.

Message 745 @ 2019-04-21 20:42:54 - Clint: In many ways for many things about my life 2019-04-21 20:42:54

Like you said, some don't get it though.

Message 746 @ 2019-04-21 20:43:06: Yes and there are misperceptions

Message 747 @ 2019-04-21 20:43:27: I don't think of you in that way in the slightest

Message 748 @ 2019-04-21 20:43:39 - Clint: And you have to understand that I come from extraordinary circumstances

Message 749 @ 2019-04-21 20:43:43: Of course you don't

Message 750 @ 2019-04-21 20:43:58 - Clint: Not saying you or anyone else does

Message 751 @ 2019-04-21 20:44:33 - Clint: But one of my doctors told Me that I had the most horrific childhood of Any patient she had seen

Message 752 @ 2019-04-21 20:44:40 - Clint: This was when I was at 26

Message 753 @ 2019-04-21 20:44:55 - Clint: So you dump this whole thing on people at once and it's going to be bad

Message 754 @ 2019-04-21 20:45:03: They can't take it

Message 755 @ 2019-04-21 20:45:14 - Clint: The people who can take it are paid to hear it

Message 756 @ 2019-04-21 20:45:37 - Clint: So all of it together is way way too much

Message 757 @ 2019-04-21 20:46:26 - Clint: When I was younger I would tell people these things about my life kind of casually

Message 758 @ 2019-04-21 20:46:47 - Clint: And it would perturb the hell out of them

Message 759 @ 2019-04-21 20:47:16 - Clint: They'd be upset and disturbed for days or weeks

Message 760 @ 2019-04-21 20:48:56 - Courtney: I suppose it's natural for people to be upset. It is very difficult to process that these things really do happen.

Message 761 @ 2019-04-21 20:49:02 - Clint: Stuff that sounds like it's out of a horror movie

Message 762 @ 2019-04-21 20:49:04: Yes

Message 763 @ 2019-04-21 20:49:12: And it reflects on you

Message 764 @ 2019-04-21 20:49:18: People can't help it

Message 765 @ 2019-04-21 20:49:30: Sent

So for that I would mention true things

Message 766 @ 2019-04-21 20:49:36: Everything I say is true

Message 767 @ 2019-04-21 20:50:21: But I would say "I love psychology. I've got a ton of books on it. I've been studying it for 25 years"

Message 768 @ 2019-04-21 20:50:55 - Clint: People do the math in their head that you were pretty young, some of them do

Message 769 @ 2019-04-21 20:53:31 - Clint: And then you say "I didn't buy my first book till I was in my later teens, but before that I listened to radio shows, and I count the first time

I started studying it as when I was seeing this PhD when I was 12 or 13. I saw him a few times a month for years and he was sharp. I learned so much just talking to him"

Message 770 @ 2019-04-21 20:55:23 - Clint: "And I ended up talking to some PhD almost every month, for 16 years. By the end of it I would be in there shooting the shit talking technical as much as I would be getting any kind of treatment"

Message 771 @ 2019-04-21 20:55:48 - Courtney: Yeah, I'm sure people have a hard time wrapping their heads around it.

Message 772 @ 2019-04-21 20:55:55: Things like this over time to build the picture

Message 773 @ 2019-04-21 20:56:05: Half a degree centigrade

Message 774 @ 2019-04-21 20:56:10: At a time

Message 775 @ 2019-04-21 20:56:47: So when people get hints of
This unbelievably cruel stuff that was done to me

Message 776 @ 2019-04-21 20:56:59: They start putting things together

Message 777 @ 2019-04-21 20:57:00: Same guy for 16 years? That's great! I'm sure it was really helpful to see the same dr for so long!!!

Message 778 @ 2019-04-21 20:57:06: Nope

Message 779 @ 2019-04-21 20:57:22 - Clint: Sent 13 to 16 was the first guy

Message 780 @ 2019-04-21 20:57:29: Or maybe 12

Message 781 @ 2019-04-21 20:57:39: Can't remember

Message 782 @ 2019-04-21 20:57:45 - Clint:
But I've had a slew of doctors

Message 783 @ 2019-04-21 20:57:48: Ahhh ok.

Message 784 @ 2019-04-21 20:57:51: Huge collection

Message 785 @ 2019-04-21 20:58:10: He dealt with children with conduct or behavior problems

Message 786 @ 2019-04-21 20:58:22: My school referred my mom to him

Message 787 @ 2019-04-21 20:58:52 - Courtney: Well, I'm glad you were able to get care so young.

Message 788 @ 2019-04-21 20:59:19 - Clint: He was specialized towards children that showed early signs of possibly giving society trouble when they are adults

Message 789 @ 2019-04-21 20:59:43: Quite often is a dead giveaway that these kids are being put through hell home

Message 790 @ 2019-04-21 20:59:57: Not always

Message 791 @ 2019-04-21 21:00:03: Yes! Not always, but often.

Message 792 @ 2019-04-21 21:00:17: My mom is like a pitiful little angel

Message 793 @ 2019-04-21 21:00:25: My life was not good or bad

Message 794 @ 2019-04-21 21:00:38 - Clint: I cannot use one word to describe it

Message 795 @ 2019-04-21 21:00:50 - Clint: That would be making order out of chaos

Message 796 @ 2019-04-21 21:01:01: I'm sure

Message 797 @ 2019-04-21 21:01:02 - Courtney: I was also very spoiled in many ways

Message 798 @ 2019-04-21 21:01:10: But hey we will pick up later

Message 799 @ 2019-04-21 21:01:20: I've texted you to Death

Message 800 @ 2019-04-21 21:01:29: But I'm getting to a point here

Message 801 @ 2019-04-21 21:01:40 - Clint: And you may be the one who can help me

Message 802 @ 2019-04-21 21:02:09: I don't want to keep you away from your expanding collection of children

Message 803 @ 2019-04-21 21:02:27 - Courtney: Hahaha! My completed collection!

Message 804 @ 2019-04-21 21:02:35: Yes I hear you 2019-04-21 21:02:55
Mines complete too

Message 805 @ 2019-04-21 21:03:10: My cereal box says "collect all 0"

Message 806 @ 2019-04-21 21:03:29 - Clint: Any more than that is too much responsibility for me

Message 807 @ 2019-04-21 21:03:58 - Clint: I will never be half the human being that a good mommy is and I don't even try

Message 808 @ 2019-04-21 21:04:18 - Clint: World champion of billiards maybe

Message 809 @ 2019-04-21 21:04:33: Billionaire is possible

Message 810 @ 2019-04-21 21:04:52: But forget being made out of the hard steel moms are made out of

Message 811 @ 2019-04-21 21:05:15 - Clint: Too unrealistic to try. Don't see how you do it

Message 812 @ 2019-04-21 21:10:49 - Courtney: It is definitely a lot of responsibility

Message 813 @ 2019-04-21 21:13:18 - Courtney: Although after one, it's second nature. Surprisingly, adding a third doesn't really add to the madness.

Message 814 @ 2019-04-21 21:15:40: Interesting

Message 815 @ 2019-04-21 21:16:02 - Clint: The law of diminishing returns

Message 816 @ 2019-04-21 21:16:38 - Clint: As it applies to Minature human beings

Message 817 @ 2019-04-21 21:30:24: Yes!

Message 818 @ 2019-04-21 21:30:38: Three is no different than two!

Message 819 @ 2019-04-21 21:31:21: Some kind of economics theory needs to be applied to parenting

Message 820 @ 2019-04-21 21:32:16: Keep producing until there is no additional madness per marginal human being

Message 821 @ 2019-04-24 15:34:30: How's it going mommy

Message 822 @ 2019-04-24 15:34:57: Got one more quick question for you. And we can discontinue the exercise from the other day if you want

Message 823 @ 2019-04-24 15:35:10 - Clint: But do I come across as self centered to you?

Message 824 @ 2019-04-24 16:13:08: Hey! I don't think so.

Message 825 @ 2019-04-25 11:05:28 - Clint: Can you imagine any reason someone may see me as such ? I feel like I have created that impression with people, although I have ever been told that in any explicit way directly

Message 826 @ 2019-04-25 11:05:41: Have never* been told

Message 827 @ 2019-04-25 11:47:52 - Courtney: I don't think so e💎

Message 828 @ 2019-04-25 18:56:12: One time we were in a meeting discussing something with a bunch of CAs and I made a comment. Bill said "you'd find some way for it to benefit you, somehow"

Message 829 @: He said this as if he had had some recent or sudden insight into how I work as a person. I am puzzled as how I came across this way.

Message 830 @: I don't see how my behavior at WLS or anywhere else adds up to self centeredness at all, but I have apparently come across that way to Bill at some point, because that was what he was directly implying. Saying that I make every situation benefit me.

Message 831 @ 2019-04-25 18:59:36 - Clint: I've been asking others and they say I do not come across this way to them either. I have been conscious of making this impression for a while, apparently for no reason because no one else sees me this way at all.

Message 832 @: I would say that I was slightly tending towards self-centeredness as a young adult, maybe ages 14 and before. I was somewhat more self centered than other children. I continued to be this way slightly for a number of years after that, at least at times, but for sure for the past 2 decades I have been anything but. I do not see how anyone could make that case at all

Message 833 @ 2019-04-26 21:02:40: And can you message - Clint: Jessica and tell her that was me that text her lol

Message 834 @ 2019-04-26 21:03:01: She didn't recognize my number and I joked around with her Message 835 @ 2019-04-27 17:57:38 - Courtney: Sorry. Just saw these. My kids like to clear my notifications.

Message 836 @ 2019-04-27 17:58:16 - Courtney: Yeah, not sure about the bill thing. Maybe he was just joking?

Message 837 @ 2019-04-27 17:58:24: I'll let her know!

Message 838 @ 2019-04-27 18:39:00 - Clint: No he wasn't joking at all

Message 839 @ 2019-04-27 18:39:11 - Clint: I don't know what the hell makes him tick sometimes

Message 840 @ 2019-04-27 18:39:32 - Clint: I seemed to get under his skin without making effort to do so

Message 841 @ 2019-04-27 18:42:39 - Clint: And as much as I hate to say it, everyone at Wells Fargo is lucky I have a single word to say to any of them. You people were rotten and ridiculous to me

Message 842 @ 2019-04-27 18:43:44 - Clint: Just so you know I talk to you out of compassion, kindness, and a belief I have in having mercy on people who are only human. Also because I like all of you

Message 843 @ 2019-04-27 21:21:49 - Courtney: Bill can seem easy to agitate or a little abrasive, but he is a genuinely caring person. When you left, he showed concern about your wellbeing when we spoke.

Message 844 @ 2019-04-27 21:24:46 - Courtney: You know that I did the best I could with what I had and my responsibilities. Always as flexible as possible and cognizant of the importance of a proper work/life balance. I know it got pretty busy towards the end of your time with us and that was overwhelming, but we knew that you could only do so much. Anyone can only do so much in a given day.

Message 845 @ 2019-04-27 21:25:30 - Courtney: I know how much you truly cares about your job and servicing your offices.

Message 846 @ 2019-04-27 21:25:33: Cared*

Message 847 @ 2019-04-27 21:26:09: I appreciate that Message 848 @ 2019-04-27 21:26:26: And you were very good to me overall

Message 849 @ 2019-04-27 21:27:15 - Clint: But when I have 4 meetings in 2 weeks telling you people to PLEASE leave me alone cause I'm under stress cleaning up the mess that you made, and you decide to have a meeting to send me an email about a bunch of stuff that is 30 days past due

Message 850 @ 2019-04-27 21:27:39: And 70% of the 30

Days were on your watch

Message 851 @ 2019-04-27 21:28:11: I was 100% for 4.5 Years

Message 852 @ 2019-04-27 21:28:23: My offices never missed something they needed

Message 853 @ 2019-04-27 21:28:34 - Clint: On time or usually ahead of time

Message 854 @ 2019-04-27 21:28:59 - Clint: I leave for 30 days and you guys are 1 for 1 for screwing them over and pissing them off

Message 855 @ 2019-04-27 21:29:19 - Clint: They were mad and I was trying to save a Dept that never deserved me trying to save it

Message 856 @ 2019-04-27 21:29:34 - Courtney: Those emails were a standard part of our reporting committee. Trust me, you weren't the only one getting them. They weren't intended to rush anyone, especially those that we knew were working through things. The purpose was to keep things on the radar...especially for those that actually were slipping up or maybe overlooked something.

Message 857 @ 2019-04-27 21:29:51 - Clint: I didn't overlook anything for 4 years

Message 858 @ 2019-04-27 21:30:19 - each day for a month Clint: Management sit on their chair and overlooked 130+ past due items pilling up

Message 859 @ 2019-04-27 21:30:36 - Clint: Then they overlooked 4 meetings in 2 weeks

Message 860 @ 2019-04-27 21:31:01 - Clint: Where I begged and pleaded and told you I would be turning in a massive load of work on Friday 2019-04-27 21:31:26

You people are out to lunch, and I don't mean to be mean

Message 861 @ 2019-04-27 21:31:33: I do not need a manager

Message 862 @ 2019-04-27 21:31:47: There is no benefit of having someone sit on their ass and do nothing

Message 863 @ 2019-04-27 21:32:03 - Clint: And then send me garbage emails when I am cleaning up their mess

Message 864 @ 2019-04-27 21:32:09: And I'm not referring to you

Message 865 @ 2019-04-27 21:32:27 - Courtney: Oh please, Clint. You have a seriously flawed perspective of what our jobs entail.

Message 866 @ 2019-04-27 21:32:32 - Clint: I do care about you and understand your limits

Message 867 @ 2019-04-27 21:32:34: Ok, good

Message 868 @ 2019-04-27 21:32:50: I am speaking of Christian

Message 869 @ 2019-04-27 21:33:28 - Clint: In one of our meetings I told him that I handle everything and that everything works out fine with next to no intervention

Message 870 @ 2019-04-27 21:33:48 - Clint: He says "well that would mean you don't need a manager"

Message 871 @ 2019-04-27 21:33:54: Disco baby

Message 872 @ 2019-04-27 21:34:00: Ding ding ding

Message 873 @ 2019-04-27 21:34:30: What value he adds to anything by sitting in his chair and doing nothing while my offices are getting screwed over

Message 874 @ 2019-04-27 21:34:48: And then sending me stupid emails complaining about the mess he made

Message 875 @ 2019-04-27 21:34:58 - Clint: After 4 meetings in 9 days

Message 876 @ 2019-04-27 21:35:12: Where we repeatedly said we were going to leave me alone.

Message 877 @ 2019-04-27 21:35:39: After I stay at work until MRA kicks me out at 3:30 am the next day

Message 878 @ 2019-04-27 21:35:59 - Clint: To me it seems clear who is making the bigger effort and who needs to keep their fat mouth shut

Message 879 @ 2019-04-27 21:36:20: And again I don't mean to be mean

Message 880 @ 2019-04-27 21:36:32 - Clint: That's not my point and you are so good people

Message 881 @ 2019-04-27 21:36:39: All good people

Message 882 @ 2019-04-27 21:37:48 - Clint: And I may have a flawed perspective of what your job entails. And I have no doubt that you were put through hell at times

Message 883 @ 2019-04-27 21:37:52: Maybe all the time

Message 884 @ 2019-04-27 21:38:15 - Clint: But it's just not for me and I do not understand how a business can work like this

Message 885 @ 2019-04-27 21:38:57 - Clint: And by the way I have spoken well of you to Julie Bell and other people from my offices multiple times

Message 886 @ 2019-04-27 21:39:57 - Clint: I have to a bunch of them but she's the one who always comes to mind cause she was sort of my fave and also because I lived on the telephone with her more so than any of my other office people

Message 887 @ 2019-04-27 21:40:23 - Clint: I think part of the problem is I am the odd one out

Message 888 @ 2019-04-27 21:40:41 - Clint: The business is designed to sort of make people cogs in a machine

Message 889 @ 2019-04-27 21:41:41: It would not work to apply the standards I want applied to me to everyone else, even though I flourish and the business benefits when those standards are applied to me

Message 890 @ 2019-04-27 21:41:58: I know that you are a very self driven individual and do best when left to manage things on your own. Christian meant well and was only trying to ensure the wheels kept moving.

Message 891 @ 2019-04-27 21:42:21 - Clint: WFB is too big to focus on any one cog and focuses on the machine instead

Message 892 @ 2019-04-27 21:42:49 - Clint: I had the same problem at Bank of America to an extent

Message 893 @ 2019-04-27 21:43:01 - Clint: Generally what happens is I do sort of get my way.

Message 894 @ 2019-04-27 21:43:36 - Clint: People make exceptions cause they see it works but it's often a burdensome process to get there

Message 895 @ 2019-04-27 21:44:11 - Clint: Here is an example of what I am talking about with the big picture focus

Message 896 @ 2019-04-27 21:47:20 - Clint: When I got Katie Xie's customers back I did a cert for this customer. She'd been pcing their ratio every quarter and so had everyone else.

Message 897 @: I dug into the numbers and figured out what they were doing, and figured out that their numbers were wrong. Took me 2 hours and put them on a higher pricing tier.

Message 898 @: Company had a consistent $100MM balance on their revolver. We owned a big chunk of it.

Message 899 @: Had I pced the number like it had been for 2 years or more, it would have taken me 2 seconds. The difference in revenue from the revolver for that quarter was $30,000

Message 900 @ 2019-04-27 21:48:04 - Clint: $30,000 is far too small for the bank to care about, in terms of dreaming of policy changes

Message 901 @ 2019-04-27 21:48:15 - Clint: To be blanket applied to everyone

Message 902 @ 2019-04-27 21:49:07 - Clint: So my #s weren't as good over squandering 2 hours on a difficult ratio, when that 2 hours cost the bank less than $55 and paid half my salary for the year

Message 903 @ 2019-04-27 21:49:39 - Courtney: Reading through the rest of your texts. Glad to hear you are still in touch with Julie. I know she was one of your favorites. Glad to hear you didn't trash talk to her about me . Although, I hope she has a good picture of me anyhow. I did quite a few spreads for them when they needed them ASAP after you left.

Message 904 @ 2019-04-27 21:50:15: High up executives don't have time to zero in on details like this on 270,000 employees

Message 905 @ 2019-04-27 21:50:27 - Courtney: I know a lot of people weren't great at digging into crt calf's.

Message 906 @ 2019-04-27 21:50:35: Calcs*

Message 907 @ 2019-04-27 21:51:03 - Clint: So they make rules to apply to everyone to make things comprehensible to them

Message 908 @ 2019-04-27 21:51:48 - Clint: They can say "we tell everyone to do this and this happens" and all they need is for everyone to do the "this" so that their results are legit a result

Message 909 @ 2019-04-27 21:52:51 - Clint: And the "this" is often something that is asinine and gets in the way of someone who is just trying to get out the best, most technically correct product possible, or at least is extra and unnecessary to them

Message 910 @ 2019-04-27 21:53:02: Unnecessary to me*

Message 911 @ 2019-04-27 21:53:06: Not them

Message 912 @ 2019-04-27 21:53:18 - Clint:

I haven't talked to Julie in a bit

Message 913 @ 2019-04-27 21:53:18 - Courtney: The pricing error is definitely an issue, good catch on your part. I'm sure the office praised you for catching their miss.

Message 914 @ 2019-04-27 21:53:54 - Clint: Yeah they contacted the CFO who told them that they were doing exactly what I said they were

Message 915 @ 2019-04-27 21:54:27: The CFO also concurred with me on an error I caught the audit firm making at FYE

Message 916 @ 2019-04-27 21:54:35: Said I was right

Message 917 @ 2019-04-27 21:55:00 - Courtney: It is ultimately their responsibility to know their customer and ensure the numbers are accurate. As a CA, it's always great to take the extra time and ensure the accuracy at that level. Unfortunately, not all are quite as thorough as you and I.

Message 918 @ 2019-04-27 21:55:13: Wow!

Message 919 @ 2019-04-27 21:55:20: Just me Courtney :)

Message 920 @ 2019-04-27 21:55:34: You were great but everyone was second place to me

Message 921 @ 2019-04-27 21:56:28 - Clint: And I don't like that system

Message 922 @ 2019-04-27 21:56:30: Bahahaha! I'm hoping our current class training and the upcoming class in June has some top notch folks.

Message 923 @ 2019-04-27 21:56:44 - Clint: I think it should be it's on the analyst

Message 924 @ 2019-04-27 21:57:15 - Clint: Office can count on us to provide a flawless product in all material ways

Message 925 @ 2019-04-27 21:57:50 - Clint: Office writes up a deal on garbage we provide and RAR hits us with a sledgehammer

Message 926 @ 2019-04-27 21:58:05 - Clint: But again, this cog only gets one vote

Message 927 @ 2019-04-27 21:58:07 - Courtney: We are middle/back office though, so the responsibility lies on the front line. One day it will be more automated and their will be less room for error.

Message 928 @ 2019-04-27 21:58:30: I agree that the office should receive flawless product

Message 929 @ 2019-04-27 21:58:45 - Clint: Yes and they should work with us

Message 930 @ 2019-04-27 21:58:53: Like my offices did

Message 931 @ 2019-04-27 21:59:00: It was 2 way

Message 932 @ 2019-04-27 21:59:21: I treated my offices great and they also got what I needed quick fast and in a hurry

Message 933 @ 2019-04-27 21:59:31 - Courtney: But as they say. garbage in, garbage out. You've got some offices that don't even look at financials that come in before sending them.

Message 934 @ 2019-04-27 21:59:36 - Clint: But that's great that you got a new training class

Message 935 @ 2019-04-27 21:59:41: Yes I know

Message 936 @ 2019-04-27 22:00:27: Yes! Much needed!

Message 937 @ 2019-04-27 22:00:48 - Clint:
Is Katie still doing my offices stuff

Message 938 @ 2019-04-27 22:00:52: Or did she leave

Message 939 @ 2019-04-27 22:01:09: Katie is back with BBG

Message 940 @ 2019-04-27 22:01:14: Crap

Message 941 @ 2019-04-27 22:01:25:
So she no longer works with WLS?

Message 942 @ 2019-04-27 22:01:56: I think Denver took over Food and Ag after I left. Katie left when I was on leave.

Message 943 @ 2019-04-27 22:02:11 - Clint: That might be a good thing

Message 944 @ 2019-04-27 22:02:16: Denver has less turnover

Message 945 @ 2019-04-27 22:02:27: It's definitely bad that Katie left

Message 946 @ 2019-04-27 22:02:53: But the problem F&A has is there is a hellacious learning curve

Message 947 @ 2019-04-27 22:03:01 - Courtney: Yes, that was the big reason. We didn't have anyone suited for Food & Ag after that Message 948 @ 2019-04-27 22:03:23 - Clint: So the 6 month to 1 year employee isn't going to work out for them

Message 949 @ 2019-04-27 22:03:30 - Clint: They need someone to stick with it 2019-04-27 22:04:03

But the people after me were set up 50X better than I was

Message 950 @ 2019-04-27 22:04:11 - Courtney: Yeah. I'm fairly certain they picked the Denver F&A folks to take it over

Message 951 @ 2019-04-27 22:04:27 - Clint: I had novels in MRA and my guidelines

Message 952 @ 2019-04-27 22:04:37 - Clint: Yes and that is terrible

Message 953 @ 2019-04-27 22:05:21: They've learned a bunch of bunk stuff and gotten away with stuff cause those guys didn't keep their analysts in line

Message 954 @ 2019-04-27 22:05:23 - Courtney: Yeah, that was helpful. Unfortunately, they got screwed with technical issues that increased the backlog.

Message 955 @ 2019-04-27 22:05:34: Not to be mean

Message 956 @ 2019-04-27 22:05:58 - Clint: People do their best and no one else I've ever met works anything like I do as a person

Message 957 @ 2019-04-27 22:06:23 - Clint: But when I inherited a bunch of Ag deals from Denver it was a mess

Message 958 @ 2019-04-27 22:10:29 - Clint: Their offices were apparently too busy to raise hell

Message 959 @ 2019-04-27 22:10:36: Or careless rather

Message 960 @ 2019-04-27 22:11:00 - Clint: Yeah, I think it was older analysts that weren't do great. All of the offices I took from Denver were a hot mess.

Message 961 @ 2019-04-27 22:11:16: So*

[REDACTED]

Message 963 @ 2019-04-27 22:11:34: It was kind of funny.

[REDACTED]

Message 965 @ 2019-04-27 22:12:09 - Clint: They know it and they don't care

Message 966 @ 2019-04-27 22:13:50: I would catch them and tell the office “you might want to look at the capex” as a heads up. Not sure I ever told them to look into it and it wasn’t a violation.

Message 967 @: We had this one [REDACTED] that had a $500M yearly capex limit and they spent $20MM! I laughed so hard.

Message 968 @: “Here’s what we think about your capex covenant. Any questions?”

Message 969 @ 2019-04-27 22:14:58 - Courtney: I hope that our future covenant monitoring tool has more controls around negative covenants

[REDACTED]

Message 971 @ 2019-04-27 22:16:40 - Clint: Future covenant monitoring tool?

Message 972 @ 2019-04-27 22:16:48: Sounds interesting

Message 973 @ 2019-04-27 22:21:35 - Clint: Yeah, I’m not a risk/compliance person and I don’t think the way the negative covenants are managed is a good idea at all. Too risky!

Message 974 @ 2019-04-27 22:22:23: Yeah, not sure what it will be yet. Some progress may have happened since I left in January.

Message 975 @ 2019-04-27 22:22:49 - Courtney: The new spreading tool we selected has covenant capabilities

Message 976 @ 2019-04-27 22:24:16 - Courtney: I know they were testing the functionality while I was on leave. I think it will be an entirely separate system that is integrated and pulls spread data

Message 977 @ 2019-04-27 22:30:30: Cool Clint:

Message 978 @ 2019-04-27 22:31:02: Is this incino or whatever that software is?

Message 979 @ 2019-04-27 22:32:38: Ncino ended up being a miss.

Message 980 @ 2019-04-27 22:32:51: What do you mean?

Message 981 @ 2019-04-27 22:33:07: So you’re scrapping MRA?

Message 982 @ 2019-04-27 22:33:48:

If I remember correctly it wasn’t scalable and the large issue had to do with it being cloud based. Wells technology isn’t a huge fan of the cloud for storing of data

Message 983 @ 2019-04-27 22:33:48 - Clint: And did they finally get rid of this authorized signer on the certoc garbage

Message 984 @ 2019-04-27 22:34:02: Yeah, MRA is gone soon

Message 985 @ 2019-04-27 22:34:16: R.I.P. MRA

Message 986 @ 2019-04-27 22:34:42: I was ready to strangle legal over that signer stuff, so was my offices

Message 987 @ 2019-04-27 22:34:56: Pure stupidity

Message 988 @ 2019-04-27 22:34:59 - Clint: They are still working on it last I checked

Message 989 @ 2019-04-27 22:35:11: The authorized signer?

Message 990 @ 2019-04-27 22:35:24 - Clint: A permanent solution force signatures

Message 991 @ 2019-04-27 22:35:45: Marco took over and was trying to get something ironed out with legal

Message 992 @ 2019-04-27 22:36:10 - Clint: The people in legal who came up with that have obviously never tested a real certoc

Message 993 @ 2019-04-27 22:36:40: There is no conceivable scenario where the signer will save the bank money on a certoc

Message 994 @ 2019-04-27 22:37:01: Not that has anything but a remotely remote chance of happening

Message 995 @ 2019-04-27 22:38:39: Borrowing bases it can save your ass but the chances are still fairly unlikely. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Message 996 @ 2019-04-27 22:39:46 - Clint: I wanted to get legal person on one of those calls and get him/her to explain to me how the signer on the certoc protects the bank

Message 997 @ 2019-04-27 22:40:38 - Clint: He would have felt real dumb after that interaction, and I wouldn't feel sorry for them cause they made my life and my offices miserable for no defensible reason

Message 998 @ 2019-04-27 22:40:59 - Courtney: Yeah, the e signature piece was the biggest pain. I do understand the whole authorized signer piece though. It was important that we have the correct signer in the event that we had to turn to litigation to recover any money due to us in a CRG sort of situation.

Message 999 @ 2019-04-27 22:41:20: Yes but think it through

Message 1000 @ 2019-04-27 22:41:42: You will see that it helps us with BB and gets us nowhere on a certoc

Message 1001 @ 2019-04-27 22:42:06 - Clint: For starters 80% of middle market people's numbers are wrong every single quarter

Message 1002 @ 2019-04-27 22:42:34 - Clint: Because accounting is hard as hell and because they suck at it like most people

Message 1003 @ 2019-04-27 22:43:17 - Clint: So you can't call it fraud when they give us a wrong number

Message 1004 @ 2019-04-27 22:43:23: Be hard pressed

Message 1005 @ 2019-04-27 22:43:32 - Clint: And there is no "right" number

Message 1006 @ 2019-04-27 22:43:36: In many cases 2019-04-27 22:43:52

GAAP is conceptual and has flexibility

Message 1007 @ 2019-04-27 22:44:02 - Courtney: Well, if they are defaulting on covenants and lie about it and we chose to call the loan, they could say "well, the correct person wasn't completing the certificate or attesting to being in compliance."

Message 1008 @ 2019-04-27 22:44:38 - Courtney: This is true about certocs though...the numbers are sometimes all over the place

Message 1009 @ 2019-04-27 22:45:01 - Clint: How do you know when they "lie" and when they just can't do accounting

Message 1010 @ 2019-04-27 22:45:02 - Courtney: It's especially difficult with large syndicated or attorney prepared deals

Message 1011 @ 2019-04-27 22:45:19 - Courtney: I suppose specifically with negative covenants

Message 1012 @ 2019-04-27 22:45:29: And that doesn't help us

Message 1013 @ 2019-04-27 22:45:55: We have no more insight into what they are not doing with a signature than without

Message 1014 @ 2019-04-27 22:46:16 - Clint: There are so many checks and balances

Message 1015 @ 2019-04-27 22:46:17 - Courtney: You can still call a loan if they are defaulting on negatives. Although, I'm not sure how often that would really happen.

Message 1016 @ 2019-04-27 22:46:27: Yes you can

Message 1017 @ 2019-04-27 22:46:37 - Clint: But signature does nothing

Message 1018 @ 2019-04-27 22:47:02 - Clint: There are checks and balances with a certoc that do not exist on a bb

Message 1019 @ 2019-04-27 22:47:27 - Clint: I have credit agreement, a financial statement, and a computer that is damn good at math

Message 1020 @ 2019-04-27 22:47:53 - Clint: I don't even need a certoc in 80%+ of cases

Message 1021 @ 2019-04-27 22:48:23 - Clint: Much less one that is signed by the controller of a company that doesn't have a controller

Message 1022 @ 2019-04-27 22:49:14: Like I say the odds are so remote it is nowhere near worth the headache

Message 1023 @ 2019-04-27 22:49:28 - Courtney: True, but that incorrect or missing signature could be used against us by the customer's attorney. I think it would be relatively rare, but it's another layer of protection.

Message 1024 @ 2019-04-27 22:49:28: It's not worth 1% of the headache it causes

Message 1025 @ 2019-04-27 22:49:45 - Clint: Who cares about the certoc

Message 1026 @ 2019-04-27 22:50:34 - Clint: And it's a layer of protection kind of like tank armor is a layer of protection for pulling out of your driveway

Message 1027 @ 2019-04-27 22:50:54 - Courtney: Banks want to avoid any bit of risk wherever they can. This one is an easy solution, so they implemented it. Wells has no room for risk at this point.

Message 1028 @ 2019-04-27 22:51:26 - Clint: If you get hit by an asteroid you're going to fair better but yet no one buys abrams tank armor to go on their car

Message 1029 @ 2019-04-27 22:52:17 - Clint: Well then, why don't they pay people to watch with a video recorder when the certoc is signed?

Message 1030 @ 2019-04-27 22:52:30 - Clint: To make sure the person who signs it is who they say they are

Message 1031 @ 2019-04-27 22:52:57 - Clint: That's a risk. There is no law of nature that prevents someone from doing that Message 1032 @ 2019-04-27 22:54:02 - Clint: Give me a specific set of circumstances where this protects the bank from risk

Message 1033 @: And easy to implement? Not even close. If you are 60% as nit picky as legal wants you to be it drives the offices insane

Message 1034 @ 2019-04-27 22:54:50 - Clint: They are in default based on their financial covenants based on financial statements

Message 1035 @ 2019-04-27 22:55:25 - Clint: They send us an incorrect certoc or an improperly signed one we just tell them to send a new one.

Message 1036 @ 2019-04-27 22:55:50: Or to not send it at all bc they're in default no matter what they say

Message 1037 @ 2019-04-27 22:58:20 - Clint: Bank of America took a loss on a bb. That is all I have heard of. I would wager that in all of banking there has never been a loss tied to a certoc that would have been made better or worse by a signature.

Message 1038 @ 2019-04-27 22:59:33: BB are taken on faith

Message 1039 @ 2019-04-27 22:59:55: Certoc have 3rd party means to test if they are legit

Message 1040 @ 2019-04-27 23:00:04 - Clint: Checks and balances all over the place

Message 1041 @ 2019-04-27 23:00:22 - Clint: And for the signature to help us we would have to prove deliberate fraud

Message 1042 @ 2019-04-27 23:01:50 - Clint: And if their number hasn't matched ours one single quarter for 5 years and we didn't call it fraudulent then to suddenly call it fraudulent this quarter is not right. This takes so much tying yourself in knots to make a case for it

Message 1043 @ 2019-04-27 23:12:21 - Courtney: It is what it is. Eventually, the certocs will likely be simply imaged. Info might be extracted and maybe the system will cross reference. Not sure how important signature will be then. I guess we'll see. Well, I won't...I'll have to ask whoever is around then!

Message 1044 @ 2019-04-27 23:38:01: It will be of 0 importance just like now

Message 1045 @ 2019-04-27 23:38:22 - Clint: That is the silliest idea ever conceived while I was at the bank

Message 1046 @ 2019-04-27 23:39:53 - Clint: The only thing the signature is good for is it seals the deal when proving deliberate fraud

Message 1047 @ 2019-04-27 23:40:24: And it's not the biggest part of The picture there

Message 1048 @ 2019-04-27 23:41:18 - Clint: Deliberate fraud is useful only in instances where we seek a judgement against assets not securing the loan

Message 1049 @ 2019-04-27 23:41:48 - Clint: If they want to do that for covenant violations they should focus on the financial statements

Message 1050 @ 2019-04-27 23:42:16 - Clint: That would be a waste of time too but not nearly as bad

Message 1051 @ 2019-04-27 23:43:29 - Clint: Think of it this way- what if for borrowing bases we actually ordered an appraisal on the collateral- would we be more concerned that the appraisal is right or they the borrowing base is right?

Message 1052 @ 2019-04-27 23:48:00 - Clint: If I am reporting my net income, depreciation, interest expense, taxes, amortization and current portion of long term debt on a financial statement that will be used to test compliance, that's what you should be worried about me telling lies about, given that the people doing the checking can do basic arithmetic.

Message 1053 @: If you can add, subtract, multiply and divide, you're going to nail their ass based on the financial statement every time no matter what their certoc says. The policy would be tell the truth on the financial statement and lie to your heart is content on the certoc.

Message 1054 @: Instead legal is hyperfocused on the certoc as if we don't get a financial statement at all.

Message 1055 @ 2019-04-27 23:50:27 - Clint: If the question is only a question of did they default or not you don't need anything. If they sent you a financial statement you test it. If they don't then they're in violation of the credit agreement there. I mean you can run yourself in circles for the rest of life trying to work out a realistic scenario where this would help you at all and you will get nowhere

Message 1056 @ 2019-05-03 13:19:12 - Clint: I guess you got tired of that discussion

Message 1057 @ 2019-05-07 18:33:11 - Clint: Courtney can I ask for your help one last time

Message 1058 @ 2019-05-07 18:40:48 - Courtney: Hey Clint. I'm sorry, I just saw your other texts. My son loves to clear my notifications and your texts got buried after that! What's up?

Message 1059 @ 2019-05-07 18:41:29 - Clint: Ok remember I was talking to you about bad things being said about me where I used to live

Message 1060 @ 2019-05-07 18:41:55 - Courtney: Yes

Message 1061 @ 2019-05-07 18:42:32: Do you believe me when I say that this conversation will go no further than you or I in any case if you just give me the answer to what I'm asking?

Message 1062 @ 2019-05-07 18:43:00 - Clint: There is something that has troubled me extremely since a year and a half ago
Message 1063 @ 2019-05-07 18:44:11: Of course!

Message 1064 @ 2019-05-07 18:44:34 - Clint: Ok, because I don't want anything bad to happen to anyone. I really do mean that when I say it

Message 1065 @ 2019-05-07 18:44:50 - Clint: But to give you more background, I never knew what it was that people said about me

Message 1066 @ 2019-05-07 18:45:21: I don't know that I'll have the answer though...

Message 1067 @ 2019-05-07 18:45:28: Yes that is ok

Message 1068 @ 2019-05-07 18:45:40 - Courtney: I sincerely hope that that isn't a threat of some sort

Message 1069 @ 2019-05-07 18:45:45: I will tell you the situation

Message 1070 @ 2019-05-07 18:45:48: No it is not!

Message 1071 @ 2019-05-07 18:46:51 - Clint: The reason I say that is that when I ask people about this situation they seem extremely reluctant to talk to me, and I think it is out of fear of me going ballastic, or them being afraid, or possible legal consequences

Message 1072 @ 2019-05-07 18:47:20 - Clint: They have been reluctant from day one and I think they don't believe me when I say I will be cool as a cucumber if they just tell me

Message 1073 @ 2019-05-07 18:47:29 - Clint: But let me give you more background

Message 1074 @ 2019-05-07 18:48:12 - Courtney: Ok, FYI - this is my work phone, so for all I know Wells is watching disclaimer Just a

Message 1075 @ 2019-05-07 18:48:17: I am very kind and forgiving and want good things for people

Message 1076 @ 2019-05-07 18:48:23: Yes that is fine

Message 1077 @ 2019-05-07 18:48:34 - Clint: So let me give you some background

Message 1078 @ 2019-05-07 18:49:31: Ok

Message 1079 @ 2019-05-07 18:49:33 - Courtney: I think I told you before about whatever it was that was said about me made people turn cold and view me as a stigmatized person, particularly hot girls who I believe were deliberately told this as a social tactic

Message 1080 @ 2019-05-07 18:49:40: I told you that right?

Message 1081 @ 2019-05-07 18:49:50: Yes

Message 1082 @ 2019-05-07 18:50:10 - Clint:
Ok, so it killed me forever whatever was being said cause I couldn't find out

Message 1083 @ 2019-05-07 18:50:52 - Clint: And I had some hints and reason to believe it was some horrifically and cruelly exaggerated thing about my hospitalization

Message 1084 @ 2019-05-07 18:51:12 - Clint: My mother had me hospitalized because "she was worried about me"

Message 1085 @ 2019-05-07 18:51:30: And I will not repeat that I think may have been said, but one possibility is quite far from that Message 1086 @ 2019-05-07 18:51:48 - Clint: And basically portrays me as Ted Bundy on extra evil steroids

Message 1087 @ 2019-05-07 18:51:56 - Clint: Like the worst person imaginable

Message 1088 @ 2019-05-07 18:52:17 - Clint: I don't know if that was it, but something made me think that was possible

Message 1089 @ 2019-05-07 18:52:38 - Clint: So my imagination ran wild as to what it was that was said, and it was torture
2019-05-07 18:52:58

I mean I was destroyed and wanted to die when I lived there

Message 1090 @ 2019-05-07 18:54:59 - Clint: This is quite far from the truth obviously, and if that's not what was said, or if multiple things were said, I don't believe any of them were true, other than the basic fact that I had to go to a hospital

Message 1091 @ 2019-05-07 18:56:50 - Clint: And to give you an idea of where I am coming from, I was talking to someone up there and told them I had to take medicine that made me sleep a lot.

Message 1092 @: He said "so that's what they do if you're some guy who (insert horrible things here), they load you up on a bunch of stuff to make you sleep?”

Message 1093 @ 2019-05-07 18:57:08 - Clint: I just shrugged my shoulders cause I didn’t know the answe

Message 1094 @ 2019-05-07 18:57:41 - Clint: But later it hit me that it was funny how he said that and it was like he had heard that about me, and was referencing me

Message 1095 @ 2019-05-07 18:58:01 - Clint: And I’m just giving you background.

Message 1096 @ 2019-05-07 18:58:30 - Courtney: Sounds like people with a narrow mindset!

Message 1097 @ 2019-05-07 18:58:43 - Clint: Yes they believe what they say and repeat it

Message 1098 @ 2019-05-07 18:59:10 - Clint: So obviously when I move to Charlotte my worst fear is that whatever they say that I will never know will spread like wildfire here

Message 1099 @ 2019-05-07 18:59:55 - Clint: It will make it up here somehow and I will be in pure hell again. I am very fine tuned to this reaction people have where they go 180 degrees on me

Message 1100 @ 2019-05-07 19:00:22 - Clint: It traumatized me 1,000 times up there and I can go off the deep end when I see a hint of it anywhere

Message 1101 @ 2019-05-07 19:00:40 - Clint: Sorry I meant believe what they hear and repeat it

Message 1102 @ 2019-05-07 19:02:36: I’d like to believe that we are far enough away and Charlotte is big enough that something like that wouldn’t happen.

Message 1103 @ 2019-05-07 19:02:51: Yes you would hope

Message 1104 @ 2019-05-07 19:02:54: Also people are hopefully better than that Message 1105 @ 2019-05-07 19:02:57: But we live in a flat world

Message 1106 @ 2019-05-07 19:03:01: Yes they are

Message 1107 @ 2019-05-07 19:03:06: People here are much better

Message 1108 @ 2019-05-07 19:03:24: But I’m giving you background to get to the heart of the matter

Message 1109 @ 2019-05-07 19:03:31 - Clint: We’re almost there so please hang on

Message 1110 @ 2019-05-07 19:05:05 - Clint: It is possible that whatever was said about me is benign, like maybe merely the fact that I had been to this hospital, which is a ping pong fun center with PBS and Oreos for most people, but is perceived by the people there as somewhere where people are chained to the walls

Message 1111 @ 2019-05-07 19:05:37 - Clint: But it is the not knowing and the trauma that makes my imagination run wild

Message 1112 @ 2019-05-07 19:07:19 - Clint: Although the PBS only tv and the PG movies did piss me off

Message 1113 @ 2019-05-07 19:08:24 - Clint: It was hell for me for a number of reasons, but the first 15 days I had a blast playing ping pong. They were PG movies only for the sake of people there who may not have the mental maturity of someone who is 10

Message 1114 @ 2019-05-07 19:09:04 - Clint: Not sure why all but PBS was off the table on TV. Maybe budget or maybe the handicapped “adult children” there too

Message 1115 @ 2019-05-07 19:11:51 - Clint: Let me know when you’re caught up

Message 1116 @ 2019-05-07 19:11:53 - Courtney: PBS would drive anyone crazy!!

Message 1117 @ 2019-05-07 19:12:05: Yes and I don’t watch tv Sent

Message 1118 @ 2019-05-07 19:12:17: I don’t especially like movies either

Message 1119 @ 2019-05-07 19:12:25: Except Disney movies

Message 1120 @ 2019-05-07 19:12:42: And the people there liked to find the most hard core pg movies they could

Message 1121 @ 2019-05-07 19:12:44: Lol

Message 1122 @ 2019-05-07 19:16:26: You can't go that far

Message 1123 @ 2019-05-07 19:16:29 - Courtney:
Who doesn't like Disney movies? Bahahaha! Of course they did

Message 1124 @ 2019-05-07 19:16:43: Some very bad people

Message 1125 @ 2019-05-07 19:16:50 - Clint: Sounds like trying to find work approved movies to show

Message 1126 @ 2019-05-07 19:17:03: Who never had to babysit their kid sister when she was 3 to 8

Message 1127 @ 2019-05-07 19:17:30: Or whatever ages it was when my sister would watch Aladdin 8 times a week

Message 1128 @ 2019-05-07 19:17:52 - Clint: "Genuflect show some respect, down on one knee"

Message 1129 @ 2019-05-07 19:18:19 - Clint: I can still nearly verbatim that song and several others

Message 1130 @ 2019-05-07 19:18:50 - Clint: Little town its a quiet village

Message 1131 @ 2019-05-07 19:19:03 - Clint: That song from B&B is another one I like

Message 1132 @ 2019-05-07 19:21:10 - Clint: You've got enough kiddos that you know the repeated movie drill

Message 1133 @ 2019-05-07 19:21:15: I'm sure

Message 1134 @ 2019-05-07 19:21:56: So are you still tuned in?

Message 1135 @ 2019-05-07 19:22:03: I am now

Message 1136 @ 2019-05-07 19:22:07: It's a long one I know

Message 1137 @ 2019-05-07 19:22:11: Ok great

Message 1138 @ 2019-05-07 19:22:13:
I sure do know that drill

Message 1139 @ 2019-05-07 19:22:32 - Clint: So anyhow, as part of keeping this from ever getting here

Message 1140 @ 2019-05-07 19:22:47: I had my Facebook set to maximum privacy

Message 1141 @ 2019-05-07 19:24:15 - Clint: It was set so that no one who didn't have a direct link could ever find me. I was stupid for having one, because for all I knew at least half the people on there had something bad to say about me. I had no people I trusted

Message 1142 @ 2019-05-07 19:24:39 - Clint: And I deleted 130 people out of paranoia over the years that they would be saying whatever it was

Message 1143 @ 2019-05-07 19:25:19 - Clint: That friend A would see friend G commenting and friend A would be behind my back to say "don't talk to that guy"

Message 1144 @ 2019-05-07 19:25:49 - Clint: So the thing is my Facebook can only be found with a link

Message 1145 @ 2019-05-07 19:26:10 - Courtney: I'd hope no one would be that horrible

Message 1146 @ 2019-05-07 19:26:33 - Clint: Every single thing I have is hidden to anyone even if they have that link , except my cover photo

Message 1147 @ 2019-05-07 19:26:38: And profile too

Message 1148 @ 2019-05-07 19:26:49 - Clint: Oh you'd better believe they will be

Message 1149 @ 2019-05-07 19:26:56: These people are terrible

Message 1150 @ 2019-05-07 19:27:10: It's guaranteed to have happened some number of times

Message 1151 @ 2019-05-07 19:27:21: Don't know how many but I know how things go up there

This is a small county that brings out the worst of human nature

Clint: And they are bigoted in many ways, many of them, unfortunately

Clint: And you cannot escape these people bc the place is so small. The same lame

And it is gossip gossip Gossip

I will look up Whitey

Is he dead?

My grandfather grew up with him and they were good friends waaayyy back in the

Yes

Oh man

He died in prison

Yeah that sucks

with the mafia, search for “The Iceman tapes” on YouTube

Clint: That is a former gambino hit man and oh m gee is he scary

But anyhow

So back to my Facebook

Message 1182 @ 2019-05-07 19:35:55 - Clint:

When I was up here working at Bank of America and up at Wells

Message 1183 @ 2019-05-07 19:36:00 - Courtney: Ehhh...he ultimately deserved it and he lived a long life. Wasn't caught until he was in his 80s. Pretty crazy!!

Message 1184 @ 2019-05-07 19:36:17: I had it on this super Privacy

Message 1186 @ 2019-05-07 19:37:03 - Clint: And you had to have a direct link to me to even see that Message 1187 @ 2019-05-07 19:37:10: Smart for anyone really.

Message 1188 @ 2019-05-07 19:37:16: And it had exactly 1 like

Message 1189 @ 2019-05-07 19:37:32 - Clint: By this girl named abbey who used to be my biggest fan, or among them

Message 1190 @ 2019-05-07 19:38:03: But had strangely gone cold

On me for about 3 or 6 months, or maybe longer

Message 1191 @ 2019-05-07 19:38:07: Inexplicably

Message 1192 @ 2019-05-07 19:38:16: Hmm

Message 1193 @ 2019-05-07 19:38:27: Well, here's what I'm getting at

Message 1194 @ 2019-05-07 19:38:30: This is what happened

Message 1195 @ 2019-05-07 19:39:00: Clint: After Jenny had left Wells, several months after that in nov of 2017, nov 30th

Message 1196 @ 2019-05-07 19:39:15 - Clint: She was telling me about her friend

Message 1197 @ 2019-05-07 19:39:20 - Clint: This friend drove her nite

Message 1198 @ 2019-05-07 19:39:23: Nuts

Message 1199 @ 2019-05-07 19:39:35 - Clint: And she wanted me to see a picture

Message 1200 @ 2019-05-07 19:40:15 - Clint: She wanted to send me a link to her Facebook, but she couldn't find me. So I set it so that you could look me up by phone number

Message 1201 @ 2019-05-07 19:40:23 - Clint: She still couldn't find me

Message 1202 @ 2019-05-07 19:40:37 - Clint: So I found hers and was able to see her friend

Message 1203 @ 2019-05-07 19:40:56: And I saw that the whole World had full access to Her stuff

Message 1204 @ 2019-05-07 19:41:29: So I told her she's a girl and her privacy isn't nearly what it should be, and sent her a link to mine to show how to make hers

Message 1205 @ 2019-05-07 19:41:58 - Clint: And she sent me a photo of her friend there. I might not have saw one on her page cause for some reason she sent me one

Message 1206 @ 2019-05-07 19:42:26 - Clint: But right after that day, I told Tunny that I had a Facebook but that I didn't trust people on it because people back home hate me

Message 1207 @ 2019-05-07 19:42:50 - Clint: She acted funny and said "they hate you ?" Like she didn't understand why

Message 1208 @ 2019-05-07 19:42:59: Maybe a little curious Clint:

Message 1209 @ 2019-05-07 19:43:30: And then she said "I didn't know you had a Facebook. I can look you up by phone, right?"

Message 1210 @ 2019-05-07 19:43:41 - Clint: I can't remember what I said or if I said anything

Message 1211 @ 2019-05-07 19:44:01 - Clint: But immediately the next day or so she started acting totally different around me

Message 1212 @ 2019-05-07 19:44:39 - Courtney: Tunny is a sweetheart! She probably just thought it was strange that you'd think everyone hates you back home.

Message 1213 @ 2019-05-07 19:44:49: Yes

Message 1214 @ 2019-05-07 19:44:57 - Clint: It seemed strange to her for sure

Message 1215 @ 2019-05-07 19:45:29 - Clint: That's why she acted puzzled

Message 1216 @ 2019-05-07 19:45:40: Maybe I was oblivious, but I never noticed her acting different.

Message 1217 @ 2019-05-07 19:45:49: Oh she did.

Message 1218 @ 2019-05-07 19:46:04 - Clint: But let me keep explaining the situation

Message 1220 @ 2019-05-07 19:46:57 - Courtney: So immediately when she starts acting this way, it was exactly like I'd saw before. People think I'm this terrible person, or that I have a disease, or that I'm whatever

Message 1221 @ 2019-05-07 19:47:11 - Clint: Yes please just listen until I'm through

Message 1222 @ 2019-05-07 19:47:37 - Clint: I want to explain the whole thing and I very glad you're listening

Message 1223 @ 2019-05-07 19:47:54: I am traumatized as hell by this Message 1224 @ 2019-05-07 19:48:59 - Clint: I go into a fit of trauma talking to the phone on Jenny. At this point I think that Tunny had looked me up by phone number after I relaxed my privacy and forgot to set it back

Message 1225 @ 2019-05-07 19:49:13 - Clint: I mean I am wailing in tears destroyed

Message 1226 @ 2019-05-07 19:49:31 - Clint: And others were immediately acting differently too

Message 1227 @ 2019-05-07 19:49:47 - Clint: Like whatever changed her mind changed theirs too

Message 1228 @ 2019-05-07 19:50:17 - Clint: This girl abbey had heard whatever it was I figured, and that explained her behavior of going cold on me

Message 1229 @ 2019-05-07 19:50:44 - Clint: And since she's the only one anyone can see I knew that if something was said it had to be her

Message 1230 @ 2019-05-07 19:51:28 - Clint: I send her a message "hey Abbey, been talking to anyone about me lately" and for the first time in 6 months or maybe longer she responds to something I say

Message 1231 @ 2019-05-07 19:51:37 - Clint: And she responds instantly

Message 1232 @ 2019-05-07 19:51:55 - Clint: So she acts suspicious in a way that I can tell she is lying

Message 1233 @ 2019-05-07 19:52:14 - Clint: So this whole thing threw me into a tailspin

Message 1234 @ 2019-05-07 19:52:33 - Clint: And what was extremely bizarre, was that Tunny and Jenny and I were mutual friends

Message 1235 @ 2019-05-07 19:53:17 - Clint: And when I break down on the phone for an hour or more, and then ask Jenny at the end "will you just please ask her what is going on"

Message 1236 @ 2019-05-07 19:53:37 - Clint: Jenny says "I'm trying not to save people anymore"

Message 1237 @ 2019-05-07 19:54:02: I was too devastated to even say anything back but that was strange as hell

Message 1238 @ 2019-05-07 19:54:28 - Clint: Why would she not just ask her for me, after all I had done for them both, when I'm completely devastated 2019-05-07 19:54:54

So this thing would never rest in my mind for good

Message 1239 @ 2019-05-07 19:55:28 - Clint: I knew, just knew that something had gotten up here and I have begged people to tell me what

Message 1240 @ 2019-05-07 19:56:31 - Clint: At this point there are several of my doctors involved and they are looking at what Jenny has said on the various times I have brought this up and she is clearly lying

Message 1241 @ 2019-05-07 19:56:36: She as lied relentlessly

Message 1242 @ 2019-05-07 19:56:51 - Clint: And I do not know why. It absolutely breaks my heart

Message 1243 @ 2019-05-07 19:58:10 - Clint: I have been suicidal or in extreme trauma on and off over this for 1.5 years almost

Message 1244 @ 2019-05-07 19:58:36: What I have determined is that it was Jenny who contacted this person

Message 1245 @ 2019-05-07 19:58:44: And that she told Tunny

Message 1246 @ 2019-05-07 19:59:03: And I have asked both of them relentlessly to tell me the truth

Message 1247 @ 2019-05-07 19:59:22 - Clint: I have also grilled the hell out of Abbey over and over

Message 1248 @ 2019-05-07 19:59:34 - Clint: I had no mercy on her very early on

Message 1249 @ 2019-05-07 19:59:48 - Clint: It didn't take long before I got ruthless with her

Message 1250 @ 2019-05-07 19:59:56: Please don't respond yet

Message 1251 @ 2019-05-07 20:00:13: Let me take another aside here

Message 1252 @ 2019-05-07 20:00:23 - Clint: To give a side note background 2019-05-07 20:00:46

In corporate America we are loaded up with HR rules

Message 1253 @ 2019-05-07 20:01:26 - Clint: People have a natural tendency to talk and everything about them almost is banned in the by the book interpretation of things

Message 1254 @ 2019-05-07 20:01:31: So for instance

Message 1255 @ 2019-05-07 20:01:45 - Clint: I would go to Tunny's desk to help her

Message 1256 @ 2019-05-07 20:01:56: And she would have a book in her native language

Message 1257 @ 2019-05-07 20:02:16 - Clint: And tell me it is about some Christian thing

Message 1258 @ 2019-05-07 20:02:43 - Clint: I do not believe in deities

Message 1259 @ 2019-05-07 20:03:31 - Clint: If I wanted to I could file a complaint and say that Bill was negligent in not taking a flamethrower to that book and also the other English books that had a cross on them at her desk

Message 1260 @ 2019-05-07 20:04:25 - Clint: But in my view, these HR, etc laws exist for good reasons, but the good reasons do not include being there for us to beat each other over the head with

Message 1261 @ 2019-05-07 20:05:17 - Clint: And I promise you that after 35 years of mostly relentless hell, seeing a book about Jesus Christ in a language I do not understand on my sweet little coworkers desk is a blow that I CAN take

Message 1262 @ 2019-05-07 20:05:29 - Clint: And that my life is such that it is not a blow in any sense

Message 1263 @ 2019-05-07 20:06:02 - Clint: It wouldn't hurt my feelings if her whole desk or the whole CIC were decorated with 10 commandment wallpaper

Message 1264 @ 2019-05-07 20:07:17 - Clint: But for sure I couldn't care any less about what any book on anyone's desk in any language is about period, unless it was something inhuman like a book about what a great guy Hitler was.

Message 1265 @ 2019-05-07 20:07:33 - Clint: So that's where I come from in these things 2019-05-07 20:07:42

So back to our little dilemma

Message 1266 @ 2019-05-07 20:08:14: It seems irrational as hell to everyone else involved that I would care about this

Message 1267 @ 2019-05-07 20:08:49 - Clint: And one reason may be that they know what was said and that it wasn't that bad. That's where I'm leaning now

Message 1268 @ 2019-05-07 20:10:07 - Clint: But for most of the past 1.5 years it has been a matter of life and death because I don't know what is being said and also because as long as I am kept in the dark I don't know who all is being told or how far it has or will be spread

Message 1269 @ 2019-05-07 20:10:25 - Clint: And it is not up for people to tell me what matters or should and what doesn't

Message 1270 @ 2019-05-07 20:11:03 - Clint: They haven't lived my life and wouldn't survive it if they did, not at their age. As a child you have no choice but to survive whatever is done to you

Message 1271 @ 2019-05-07 20:11:37 - Clint: So that my mind is so destroyed and that I have been traumatized by this so badly makes sense for anyone who could get inside my skin

Message 1272 @ 2019-05-07 20:11:51 - Clint: Which is unfortunately only me in an absolute sense

Message 1273 @ 2019-05-07 20:12:05 - Clint: So I've been grilling abbey behind the scenes

Message 1274 @ 2019-05-07 20:12:13 - Clint: Talking to jenny on and off about it

Message 1275 @ 2019-05-07 20:12:36 - Clint: And it puzzled the absolute hell out of me as to why no one would just tell me what was said

Message 1276 @ 2019-05-07 20:13:14 - Clint: I got the impression that people didn't believe it later on, or that it wasn't nearly as bad as what my imagination had went to sometimes s

Message 1277 @ 2019-05-07 20:13:24: But they will not

Message 1278 @ 2019-05-07 20:13:44 - Clint: And then Jenny had a Freudian slip a while back

Message 1279 @ 2019-05-07 20:15:03: Was angry and said "ok, I talked to her and she said you had been in a mental institution". Jenny knew I had been to the hospital at the time Jenny said this. I had told her everything about my life by this point. But at the time this happened she would not have known

Message 1280 @ 2019-05-07 20:15:27 - Clint: And for the whole time I thought Tunny was the one who talked to someone

Message 1281 @ 2019-05-07 20:15:57 - Clint: Never mentioned Jenny at all, only said that I thought Jenny had to know more than the nothing she claimed

Message 1282 @ 2019-05-07 20:16:19: And that kind of clicked when I thought of it

Message 1283 @ 2019-05-07 20:17:00 - Clint: That would explain why no one would tell me, bc they were worried about some HR rule that might get them in trouble

Message 1284 @ 2019-05-07 20:17:23 - Clint: And it could get a lot of people in a lot of trouble

Message 1285 @ 2019-05-07 20:17:48 - Clint: So I started just calmly asking to please say what they know

Message 1286 @ 2019-05-07 20:17:58: I had done this before

Message 1287 @ 2019-05-07 20:18:06 - Clint: But now I was especially open

Message 1288 @ 2019-05-07 20:18:25 - Clint: And I get the same resistance and refusal and all this other stuff

Message 1289 @ 2019-05-07 20:19:39 - Clint: Tunny quit talking to me a long time ago, but Jenny digs her heels in harder and harder everytime, and it's clear that she's lying. No one who can judge this type of thing will think anything different

Message 1290 @ 2019-05-07 20:21:26: So in my mind sometimes I see Jenny as this extremely deceitful Person. At others I see her as someone who wants to be perfect and cannot admit to herself what she has done with the pain she caused, and sometimes I think she's a good person who just wants to save her own skin like anyone would , and maybe she doesn't believe me when I say that it is all forgiven the second she just tells me

Message 1291 @ 2019-05-07 20:22:46 - Clint: It bothers me extremely that I will not be told the truth, as I think that I deserve it like anyone, and I know for a fact that I have been lied to and that this situation is being discussed among people who will not admit it

Message 1292 @ 2019-05-07 20:23:12 - Clint: And my imagination can't stop from running wild at times with what is said and how far it will make it

Message 1293 @ 2019-05-07 20:24:11 - Clint: And the situation we have now is Jenny has made it clear that she is being dishonest and has done things to absolve herself of this situation that can get her in big trouble

Message 1294 @ 2019-05-07 20:24:32 - Clint: And I have pursued the truth relentlessly and she will not say anything

Message 1295 @ 2019-05-07 20:24:55 - Clint: Nor will Tunny or the other people I know for a fact no more about this situation than they say they do

Message 1296 @ 2019-05-07 20:25:18 - Clint: And I am left with options I do not like

Message 1297 @ 2019-05-07 20:25:44: The fact of - Clint: The matter is I have been done a terrible wrong almost certainly in the eyes of the law

Message 1298 @ 2019-05-07 20:26:05 - Clint: And it has destroyed me over and over on and off for 1.5 years

Message 1299 @ 2019-05-07 20:26:51 - Clint: And this is a beating that I cannot just take, particularly when the default response when I try to resolve cordially is to lie more ambitiously

Message 1300 @ 2019-05-07 20:28:46 - Clint: So if I can't get the truth, I'm left to fight back somehow, either through the courts or to preempt people that I meet with what has happened and why they cannot believe people and the things have done that tarnish their character

Message 1301 @ 2019-05-07 20:30:09 - Clint: In short if the chance of Charlotte or any other city or even one tiny section of one city turning into the hell I lived before is 1 in a thousand, or 1 in 10 thousand, that is far too much and I am left to be aggressive and even ruthless if necessary

Message 1302 @ 2019-05-07 20:30:47 - Clint: And people I care about and who ultimately I do believe care a lot about me and have good intentions most of the time will be hurt

Message 1303 @ 2019-05-07 20:31:29 - Clint: I can't go on forever asking people for this. But if you will, please think on this for maybe today and the first half of tomorrow

Message 1304 @ 2019-05-07 20:31:58 - Clint: Think of there is something, anything you may know about this that can put my mind at ease

Message 1305 @ 2019-05-07 20:32:40 - Clint: What I want to know is what was said, all of it, who said it, and roughly who all they said it to

Message 1306 @ 2019-05-07 20:32:51 - Clint: And get back with me tomorrow

Message 1307 @ 2019-05-07 20:33:03: I will not Let it Get past us

Message 1308 @ 2019-05-07 20:33:04 - Courtney: Let me catch up. Was eating dinner and getting kids ready for bed.

Message 1309 @ 2019-05-07 20:33:28 - Clint: Unless you give me permission if you can just respond my end of tomorrow night

Message 1310 @ 2019-05-07 20:36:45 - Clint: It will be like it never happened to the rest of the world except who you give me permission to. The offer isn't good forever. I Trust you very much. But if you can get back by tomorrow night with the truth I am looking for by any means this will be over for me and everyone else.

Message 1311 @ 2019-05-07 20:37:17 - Clint: And thank you. It has been an hour or two. I really appreciate it

Message 1312 @ 2019-05-07 20:39:18 - Courtney: I'll read through and catch up. Like I said not sure I have an answer or the one you're looking for, but I'm happy to listen!!

Message 1313 @ 2019-05-07 20:39:38 - Clint: Yes you are fine. Just do your best

Message 1314 @ 2019-05-07 20:39:54 - Clint: And if you have nothing in the end that is fine too

Message 1315 @ 2019-05-07 20:40:24 - Clint: I'm just trying everyone who may know or have access to know

Message 1316 @ 2019-05-07 20:40:49 - Clint: I will give you a steak for trying 2019-05-07 20:41:03

Whether you succeed or not

Message 1317 @ 2019-05-07 20:41:13 - Clint: I've got some steaks from a high end meat shop

Message 1318 @ 2019-05-07 20:42:17: This thing has killed me. It has destroyed me and I can't wait for it to be over somehow

Message 1319 @ 2019-05-07 20:42:18 - Courtney: Based on the little I did see as it came through, I think it's about Jenny. If so, I probably won't be of much help. I haven't spoken to her since she left.

Message 1320 @ 2019-05-07 20:42:25: Yes I know that Message 1321 @ 2019-05-07 20:42:36: But just do your best

Message 1322 @ 2019-05-07 20:42:47 - Clint:

If you can't find anything that is fine

Message 1323 @ 2019-05-07 20:42:51 - Courtney: Hahaha! You're too funny! I'm a vegetarian

Message 1324 @ 2019-05-07 20:43:14 - Clint: It was made from cows who only eat grass and grain

Message 1325 @ 2019-05-07 20:43:22: Close enough right

Message 1326 @ 2019-05-07 20:43:27:

Message 1327 @ 2019-05-07 20:43:35: But thank you

Message 1328 @ 2019-05-07 20:46:52: Of course!

Message 1329 @ 2019-05-07 20:48:01:

I got the steaks as a bonus for helping program the website for a company that sells meat to the pga tour

Message 1330 @ 2019-05-07 20:48:14: That's awesome! 2019-05-07 20:48:16

Same steaks they eat at Augusta

Message 1331 @ 2019-05-07 20:48:40: Glad web design is going well!

Message 1332 @ 2019-05-07 20:48:40: If I help some carrot and lettuce guys I'll keep you in mind

Message 1333 @ 2019-05-07 20:48:49: Yeah it sucks

Message 1334 @ 2019-05-07 20:48:50:

Message 1335 @ 2019-05-07 20:49:08: I love it but I underprice myself on everything and am going to shit

Message 1336 @ 2019-05-07 20:49:35 - Courtney: Learn from it and start pricing accordingly

Message 1337 @ 2019-05-07 20:50:05 - Clint: My ambition for how fast I can make something work hurts my wallet

Message 1338 @ 2019-05-07 20:50:11 - Clint: Yes that's what I'm doing

Message 1339 @ 2019-05-07 20:50:17: Trying at least

Message 1340 @ 2019-05-08 12:14:46: Hope your day is going good

Message 1341 @ 2019-05-08 12:31:30: I've been running around like crazy! I haven't forgotten about you. I read through it all late last night, but didn't want to text you back so late.

Message 1342 @ 2019-05-08 12:31:39: Hope yours is too

Message 1343 @ 2019-05-08 12:31:53: Oh you're fine

Message 1344 @ 2019-05-08 12:32:00: And I bet you have been

Message 1345 @ 2019-05-08 12:32:04: I'm taking today off

Message 1346 @ 2019-05-08 12:32:20: Sent

Been working and/or stressing myself to death 14 hours a day for 10 days 2019-05-08 12:37:41

That's a good idea. Not worth stressing yourself too much!!

Message 1347 @ 2019-05-08 12:42:22: Once I get the baby settled, I'll respond to the texts from last night. It was a lot, so forgive me if I miss acknowledging anything!!!

Message 1348 @ 2019-05-08 12:42:42: Take your time!

Message 1349 @ 2019-05-08 12:49:06 - Clint: And you are doing me a favor. All I am asking for is anything you know about this.

Message 1350 @: I had another breakdown over it last night after I talked to you, or maybe while. I can't remember. I just remember being destroyed again. That was two breakdowns I had over it yesterday

Message 1351 @ 2019-05-08 12:50:29: And again, any info you give me I will share with anyone unless you give me permission.

Message 1352 @ 2019-05-08 12:51:05: Not*

Message 1353 @ 2019-05-08 12:51:11: My brain is fried

Message 1354 @ 2019-05-08 12:52:00: Sent

Any info you give me about what happened or any notion you have of what might have

Message 1355 @ 2019-05-08 13:05:02 - Courtney: I'm sorry to hear how much this is impacting you. It's also horrible to think that someone might spread misinformation or even real information that isn't there's to discuss. I haven't heard anything other than what you've told me. I'm not sure if that's good news to you or not, but I'd like to think it maybe gives you some peace of mind to know that people maybe aren't spreading things or as far as you think.

Message 1356 @ 2019-05-08 13:05:47: Yes it is ok

Message 1357 @ 2019-05-08 13:05:58 - Clint: And I appreciate your reading the whole thing

Message 1358 @ 2019-05-08 13:06:03: I didn't know that you had been hospitalized until you told me. I knew nothing of your past until you shared it with me.

Message 1359 @ 2019-05-08 13:06:15: Of course!

Message 1360 @ 2019-05-08 13:06:18: And that was just the past few days right

Message 1361 @ 2019-05-08 13:06:37 - Clint: I don't think I told you until I brought this up

Message 1362 @ 2019-05-08 13:06:52 - Clint: When I left I remember I told you my diagnosis

Message 1363 @ 2019-05-08 13:07:08: And that is comforting

Message 1364 @ 2019-05-08 13:07:11 - Courtney: Yes. You mentioned your diagnosis, I think shortly after I became your manager.

Message 1365 @ 2019-05-08 13:07:45 - Clint: Yes but the actual hospitalization wasn't until the past 2 or 3 weeks right

Message 1366 @ 2019-05-08 13:07:50 - Courtney: And before you left you mentioned medication adjustments and your sleep issues

Message 1367 @ 2019-05-08 13:07:55: Yes exactly

Message 1368 @ 2019-05-08 13:08:13 - Clint: And it doesn't really matter. I am just thinking out loud

Message 1369 @ 2019-05-08 13:08:18 - Courtney: Yeah, it wasn't until you texted me about it within the last week or so

Message 1370 @ 2019-05-08 13:08:43 - Clint: Yeah. My life is a twilight zone in many ways

Message 1371 @ 2019-05-08 13:09:02: I'm unique. I've got that going for me

Message 1372 @ 2019-05-08 13:09:27: Yes, unique is good. Who wants to be like everyone else anyhow?

Message 1373 @ 2019-05-08 13:09:57 - Clint: Well everyone else are pretty much identical relative to me

Message 1374 @ 2019-05-08 13:10:09: They look different from one another

Message 1375 @ 2019-05-08 13:10:39: I'm glad it's comforting. People always shared a lot with me as an analyst, maybe not as much as a manager, but I can assure you no one ever spoke anything about your past

Message 1376 @ 2019-05-08 13:10:45: But placed next to me it's clear

Who's from the same planet and who lives on one somewhat differ

Message 1377 @ 2019-05-08 13:11:08: Yeah and it's not that they shared anything

Message 1378 @ 2019-05-08 13:11:43 - Clint: I am an open book. It is just that if it was something bad I want to know and be able to respond and contain it

Message 1379 @ 2019-05-08 13:12:12 - Clint: And like I said before, I am an open book but I have to leak things out one drop at a Tim

Message 1380 @ 2019-05-08 13:12:21 - Courtney: I guess I should say, no one ever spread misinformation/rumors about your past either.

Message 1381 @ 2019-05-08 13:12:38 - Clint: Time. My life is too different and too extreme to dump on someone at once

Message 1382 @ 2019-05-08 13:13:09 - Courtney: Not to say that people didn't say things amongst themselves, but I never heard anything nor was any of it shared with me

Message 1383 @ 2019-05-08 13:13:31 - Clint: That was where I was going several Weeks ago, explaining to you how I convey my situation very very slowly so as not to overwhelm Or turn them away

Message 1384 @ 2019-05-08 13:14:29 - Clint: I drop little hints and then after a series of those drop a little bit of the situation. And unfortunately as a result of these repeated breakdowns I've let it go on many people

Message 1385 @ 2019-05-08 13:14:42 - Clint: Just lose control of myself and say way more than I should

Message 1386 @ 2019-05-08 13:14:42: You're right, it is a lot and people often don't understand when people have lived through horrible things and the impact that can have. A lot of ppl live with rose colored glasses on.

Message 1387 @ 2019-05-08 13:14:58: Yes and it can make you look bad

Message 1388 @ 2019-05-08 13:15:15 - Clint: When people hear of the circumstances I was raised it

Message 1389 @ 2019-05-08 13:15:18: In

Message 1390 @ 2019-05-08 13:15:44 - Clint: They can easily have a thought of "be must be really messed up from all of that" in a bad way

Message 1391 @ 2019-05-08 13:15:57 - Clint: That is actually rational

Message 1392 @ 2019-05-08 13:16:34: So that's why like before, I soften the blow by casually mentioning things about how I've been studying psychology for 26 years

Message 1393 @ 2019-05-08 13:16:49 - Clint: People will do the math in their head and figure out somethings odd There

Message 1394 @ 2019-05-08 13:16:59: Puts me at 12 or 13

Message 1395 @ 2019-05-08 13:18:13 - Clint: And I can say "I didn't start reading books about it until 20, but I was watching and listening to tv and radio shows when I was much younger, and I count the time I first started studying as when I talked

To this smart PhD every few weeks as a child”

Message 1396 @ 2019-05-08 13:19:00 - Clint: And then I can say “I ended up Talking to several of them every month without missing a month for 16 years”

Message 1397 @ 2019-05-08 13:19:12 - Clint: Drop little hints like that one at a time over time

Message 1398 @ 2019-05-08 13:19:34 - Clint: Then when partial details of The horrific abuse I suffer come up

Message 1399 @ 2019-05-08 13:20:42: It doesn’t hit so hard because a) they’ve been wondering for a while and b) they think “that must be why he saw those doctors” and they get the idea that I am not actually a bad person

Message 1400 @ 2019-05-08 13:22:26: In other words, it is not bigoted at all but a plain acknowledgment of reality that people, men in particular, that have been horrifically abused as I have are best to stay away from.

Message 1401 @: As a group we behave very badly. There are exceptions and the ones who get professional help have the best chance of being an exception Message 1402 @ 2019-05-08 13:22:27 - Courtney: I would hope that people don’t think you’re a bad person for seeing mental health providers. It’s as important, if not more, than seeing a GP. Although I realize the stigma surrounding it.

Message 1403 @ 2019-05-08 13:22:37: It is not that Message 1404 @ 2019-05-08 13:23:02 - Courtney: It just sucks that we live in a world where it is still stigmatized!

Message 1405 @ 2019-05-08 13:23:17: It is more this “boys who see their moms get beat grow up to beat women” type of mentality

Message 1406 @ 2019-05-08 13:23:38 - Clint: Well the mental illness stigma Is one thing

Message 1407 @ 2019-05-08 13:24:00 - Clint: That is totally wrong and driven by ignorance

Message 1408 @ 2019-05-08 13:26:16: Clint: But as I say it is a

Statistical best bet for anyone to stay away from grown men who were horrifically abused as Children. They tend to grow Up to be not nice people.

Message 1409 @: Psychologists will actually advise

Women to stop seeing some guy if he has extreme abuse in his past. It’s too big a risk because you make The wrong assumption and you’re going to be living in hell

Message 1410 @ 2019-05-08 13:26:45 - Clint: So that part is not so much bigotry as it is an accurate apprehension of reality

Message 1411 @ 2019-05-08 13:27:06 - Clint: I cannot fault someone for Thinking that way and I wish my mother would have. 2019-05-08 13:27:15

So that’s why I’ve Got to Soften that blow

Message 1412 @ 2019-05-08 13:27:55: The way it works is women who are abused as children turn it against themselves

Message 1413 @ 2019-05-08 13:28:22: Men develop outward hostility, Cruelty, and violence as a tendency

Message 1414 @ 2019-05-08 13:28:39 - Courtney: Ahhhh...ok. I see what you’re getting at. I know ppl who have lived through abuse (abused mothers too) who have gone to have healthy(ish) relationships. They are at least healthy in the sense that they didn’t themselves become abusers.

Message 1415 @ 2019-05-08 13:29:05: Yes exactly

Message 1416 @ 2019-05-08 13:29:48 - Clint: And the very gradual introducing of this idea that I was seeing psychologists regularly since age 12

Message 1417 @ 2019-05-08 13:30:22 - Clint: And did so for 16 years barely missing a month

Message 1418 @ 2019-05-08 13:33:01 - Clint: But as I have said before, my story is quite extreme. One of My doctors told me It was the most horrific abuse story she had heard from

All her clients. That's when I was 28 and that doctor was young with not a tremendous amount of experience. But it says something. And I do not tell people the whole story unless they hear the whole Story for a living. I learned better bc it would put people in tears and they would be disturbed a very long time afterwards

Message 1419 @ 2019-05-08 13:34:41 - Clint: It is not something you could hear and think that the person had a remote chance of being normal without a hell of a lot of help

Message 1420 @ 2019-05-08 13:35:24 - Courtney: I'm glad that you at least have doctors you can share your story with. It would be a lot to keep inside. I'm sorry to hear that it was so horrific. No child should have to endure abuse

Message 1421 @ 2019-05-08 13:35:42: Is it ok with you if in my discussions about this situation I say that I asked you and you hadn't heard anything

Message 1423 @ 2019-05-08 13:35:57: But I was also spoiled and had it good in many ways

Message 1424 @ 2019-05-08 13:36:18 - Clint: Like I said, can't say it was bad or good because that makes Order out of chaos

Message 1425 @ 2019-05-08 13:36:44 - Clint: My mother would buy me anything she could afford and 95% of The things she couldn't

Message 1426 @ 2019-05-08 13:37:22 - Courtney: Trying to make things better with material items, I assume

Message 1427 @ 2019-05-08 13:37:37: And my stepdad built Movie sets For a living. He would - Clint: Get these jobs where he would work for 3 months, 90 hours a week

Message 1428 @ 2019-05-08 13:38:07 - Clint: And then come home and terrorize us for 3 to 6 months

Message 1429 @ 2019-05-08 13:38:23 - Clint: When he was gone it was party time for yours truly

Message 1430 @ 2019-05-08 13:38:36 - Clint: It is more that she just had a good heart and couldn't tell me no

Message 1431 @ 2019-05-08 13:38:49 - Courtney: Mention it to who? Doctors or others? I don't really have an issue with it. Like I said, I had no idea of your past, other than what you've mentioned to me.

Message 1432 @ 2019-05-08 13:39:00: Just anyone

Message 1433 @ 2019-05-08 13:39:23 - Clint: I talk to jenny about this mainly

Message 1434 @ 2019-05-08 13:39:53: Yeah I'm just getting your permission to say you haven't heard anything

Message 1435 @ 2019-05-08 13:40:19 - Clint: But it perplexes me and I wish I could forget about it for good 2019-05-08 13:40:43

And thank You so much

Message 1436 @ 2019-05-08 13:41:08: By the way I talked to one of my PMs the other day and said good things about you

Message 1437 @ 2019-05-08 13:41:49 - Courtney: Yeah, that's fine! I just wanted to make sure you weren't exhausting yourself reaching out to lots of people. I know it's not my place to tell you how to process your feelings or the situation, but it might make things better to not overthink it too much. It's hopefully not as bad as you think!

Message 1438 @ 2019-05-08 13:42:07: Clint: I've consistently told Them that I like you and that you were good

Message 1439 @ 2019-05-08 13:42:28 - Clint: And I bragged about you in the highest terms in the past

Message 1440 @ 2019-05-08 13:42:43 - Clint: And it means something bc I do not shy from saying what I think

Message 1441 @ 2019-05-08 13:42:48 - Courtney: I'm glad to hear that. We were trying our best to keep them happy during the madness that was the department through and after busy season

Message 1442 @ 2019-05-08 13:43:09 - Courtney: I know jess and the others are trying so hard to as we speak too

Message 1443 @ 2019-05-08 13:43:25 - Clint: Yeah I still love those guys

Message 1444 @ 2019-05-08 13:43:33 - Courtney: Well, I'm glad to hear you think highly of me.

Message 1446 @ 2019-05-08 13:43:40: I do

Message 1447 @ 2019-05-08 13:44:01: You always wonder what others perceive, especially when you are left to manage things in the least optimal conditions

Message 1448 @ 2019-05-08 13:44:08: In the* Message 1449 @ 2019-05-08 13:44:09: I fluctuate with everyone but you stay in the 7 to 10 range

Message 1450 @ 2019-05-08 13:44:29 - Clint: I'm a little Moody and can make people out to be the devil

Message 1451 @ 2019-05-08 13:44:45 - Clint: The consistent 7 to 10 is about as good as you can get

Message 1452 @ 2019-05-08 13:45:35 - Clint: 7 isn't bad for your worst day considering how others get on my scale

Message 1453 @ 2019-05-08 13:45:55 - Clint: And you tend towards the high range almost all the time

Message 1454 @ 2019-05-08 13:46:17: Lol. Well, that good!

Message 1455 @ 2019-05-08 13:46:21 - Courtney: You'll know you've been downgraded when you get some severe verbal abuse

Message 1456 @ 2019-05-08 13:46:50: Not likely to happen to you but others get a full dose. I'm not subtle so no news means good news

Message 1457 @ 2019-05-08 13:52:25 - Courtney: Hahaha. Well, I'd doubt I could give you a reason for that. I may unknowingly ignore you for long periods of time, but that's life with kids.

Message 1458 @ 2019-05-08 13:52:36 - Clint: And I'm being lighthearted but truthful as well

Message 1459 @ 2019-05-08 13:52:43: No you will not

Message 1460 @ 2019-05-08 13:52:52: Ignoring means nothing

Message 1461 @ 2019-05-08 13:52:55 - Clint:

Sometimes I even see texts and say "I'll respond to that in a minute" and then I get dude tracked

Message 1462 @ 2019-05-08 13:53:01: Side*

Message 1463 @ 2019-05-08 13:53:04: I'm not that sensitive 2019-05-08 13:53:28

But for instance [REDACTED] web hosting had one of my clients sites

Message 1464 @ 2019-05-08 13:54:03 - Clint: Their firewall product broke out site and they argued with me for hours saying it was "your content"

Message 1465 @ 2019-05-08 13:54:54 - Clint: Sorry Amiga, I've written 50,000 lines of code for this website and you answer the phone [REDACTED] You don't know my content better than I do and what I say is gospel

Message 1466 @ 2019-05-08 13:55:15 - Clint: So finally after being up all night they figure out it is the firewall

Message 1467 @ 2019-05-08 13:55:21: ♦

Message 1468 @ 2019-05-08 13:55:57: But I asked them if they could Move their site to another server just for one night while They figure it out so I can go to sleep

Message 1469 @ 2019-05-08 13:56:23 - Clint: “That will cost you $100 fee and $30 a month under a new plan0

Message 1470 @ 2019-05-08 13:56:25 “ - Clint: So I stay up for 24 hours over Their crap. I called them at 10:30 pm after being up all day

Message 1471 @ 2019-05-08 13:57:32 - Clint: Told the girl in the first 5 minutes it was the firewall. They didn’t get it fixed till after 4 am and I stayed up till 6 am

Message 1472 @ 2019-05-08 13:58:44 - Clint: Doing tests to make sure it still wasn’t Broken. End of that. I refuse to do business with them and I’m sure that one supervisor is still in employer provided counseling over the yelling I gave her

Message 1473 @ 2019-05-08 13:59:04 - Clint:
My clients had $1,600 worth of products set to renew

Message 1474 @ 2019-05-08 13:59:11: Gotta love it! - Courtney: 2019-05-08 13:59:13
All are cancelled Sent

Message 1475 @ 2019-05-08 13:59:33: It would have cost them $3 to move the site overnight.

Message 1476 @ 2019-05-08 14:00:17 - Clint: Held onto that $3 with a death grip and lose $1,600 instantly + all the other
People I run away from them

Message 1477 @ 2019-05-08 14:01:17 - Clint: I left them a review in their feedback survey “I hope
The $3 you saved by making me stay up all night is being put in a high yield investment account managed by God himself”

Message 1478 @ 2019-05-08 14:01:51: Clint: Cause that’s whatIt will take for you to come close to breaking even over this

Message 1479 @ 2019-05-08 14:02:12: Lol!!

Message 1480 @ 2019-05-08 18:01:21 - Clint: Hey, I know I asked you permission to speak. I probably will not say a word. But if you could please keep this between you and I it would be great

Message 1481 @ 2019-05-08 18:02:07 - Clint: And of course whatever automated intelligence and/or flesh and blood human being(s) who have saw the whole thread

Message 1482 @ 2019-05-08 18:03:26: Those “Wells Fargo people” in the sky you disclaimed

Message 1483 @ 2019-05-08 18:03:45 - Courtney: Of course! I know how much distress the situation has caused you.

Message 1484 @ 2019-05-08 18:04:00 - Clint: Yes and I am getting closer and closer to being over it

Message 1485 @ 2019-05-08 18:04:01 - Courtney: Yes, Wells ppl in the sky

Message 1486 @ 2019-05-08 18:04:30 - Clint: I think after our little exercise and some thinking I did I may be able to drop it now

Message 1487 @ 2019-05-08 18:04:38 - Courtney: I’m sure they get a kick out of all of the gifs I use daily

Message 1488 @ 2019-05-08 18:04:44: Lol Sent

Message 1489 @ 2019-05-08 18:04:46: Good, I’m glad to hear

Message 1490 @ 2019-05-08 18:16:50: Yeah and this thing has taxed the hell out of jenny too

Message 1491 @ 2019-05-08 19:17:10: I’m sure

Message 1492 @ 2019-05-08 19:25:23 - Clint: Yeah I get preoccupied with it

Message 1493 @ 2019-05-08 19:26:16 - Clint: My doctors say I am ruminating which is accurate but I can’t help it. And I’ve

Message 1494 @ 2019-05-08 19:27:00 - Clint: But the thing is after talking with everyone, including you, and thinking I think the whole thing is fine

Message 1495 @ 2019-05-08 19:31:00: And I'll amend my original request to say that you are free to share this with any management within wfb if they ask about me because I message people on my phone. That may help them understand.

Message 1496 @: I've been within inches of death over this several times, I'd say about 3 or 4, and when I get in that intense moment I become cruel in the things I say. I don't want a blanket share with anyone who asks but for specific management who have a reason to understand and who respect my privacy I am fine with them, and they can share some of the details with their employee in question as long as it can be assured it will be confidential

Message 1497 @ 2019-05-08 19:31:41 - Clint: I have no idea if I even have a right to such privacy messaging you on my personal phone, but that is what I would ask

Message 1498 @ 2019-05-08 19:32:51 - Clint: I've also broken down completely without being cruel quite a few times

Message 1499 @ 2019-05-08 19:46:39: I'm sorry it has consumed so much of your life. I would agree that it sounds like it is not as bad as you first thought. I'm sorry to hear that it has brought you to the point of contemplating taking your life. I know that I can't tell you how to feel, but know that whatever anyone else thinks of you, it is not worth that. You have endured far greater than people saying cruel things or potentially thinking of you differently than you'd like them to.

Message 1500 @ 2019-05-08 19:46:59: Yes I am fine

Message 1501 @ 2019-05-08 19:47:19 - Clint: I am telling my doctors and this is over

Message 1502 @ 2019-05-08 19:47:22 - Courtney: I will keep what you said in mind about others in management should they ask. Specifically those that know you and care about you.

Message 1503 @ 2019-05-08 19:47:42 - Clint: It is literally this one thing that has turned me upside down

Message 1504 @ 2019-05-08 19:48:13 - Clint: I withheld how bad it was causing me pain to them until recently

Message 1505 @ 2019-05-08 19:48:46: The reason is the people at this ping pong fun center I told you about eventually became abusive

Message 1506 @ 2019-05-08 19:49:24 - Clint: And they have absolute power over you and I didn't want to risk ever going to a place like that again

Message 1507 @ 2019-05-08 19:51:16 - Clint: But I am talking to them about it and they have a place here that is more like a hospital. It is right next door to where I see my doctor. Those people are nice and if for some reason my doctor ever thought I was in a condition to be admitted to a hospital I would be fine with them. It's like a vacation from what I can tell

Message 1508 @ 2019-05-08 19:52:35 - Clint: And I recently learned that the doctors at that hospital violated procedure. The place I went when I was 18

Message 1509 @ 2019-05-08 19:52:47 - Courtney: I'm sorry to hear that place was abusive. It's distressing to know that "professionals" can do such things!

Message 1510 @ 2019-05-08 19:53:05 - Clint: Well it is the technicians mostly and not the doctor

Message 1511 @ 2019-05-08 19:53:37 - Courtney: I'm glad to hear that there's an option you are comfortable with should you need it

Message 1512 @ 2019-05-08 19:53:43 - Clint: But the thing is due to the reasons you are there in the first place, anything you claim took place will likely hold no weight in court

Message 1513 @ 2019-05-08 19:54:08: But the doctors violating procedure actually makes my situation better

Message 1514 @ 2019-05-08 19:54:17 - Clint: My mom said "she was worried about me"

Message 1515 @ 2019-05-08 19:54:26 - Courtney: Yeah, it's really sad that people take advantage of those that have no power in the situation they are in.

Message 1516 @ 2019-05-08 19:54:37 - Clint: They took me to this place and I signed a voluntary agreement to stay there for 21 days

Message 1517 @ 2019-05-08 19:54:54 - Clint: I asked to go home and was denied repeatedly

Message 1518 @ 2019-05-08 19:55:21 - Clint: At that point, what was supposed to happen was I was supposed to have a court hearing

Message 1519 @ 2019-05-08 19:56:00: They had no right to hold Me against my will without going to a judge. But that doctor I guess knew he would get away with it

Message 1520 @ 2019-05-08 19:56:29 - Clint: And was busy and probably hated me for verbally abusing him and also disagreeing with his diagnosis

Message 1521 @ 2019-05-08 19:57:04 - Clint: That was a hit to his ego that I would challenge an M.D. with extra training to work as a psychiatrist

Message 1522 @ 2019-05-08 19:57:40 - Clint: At minimum I can instantly think of 6 M.D.s that agreed with me and that is my current diagnosis

Message 1523 @ 2019-05-08 19:58:21 - Clint: But the fact that he violated procedure means I have in the eyes of the law ever been held against my will and I do not lose constitutional rights

Message 1524 @ 2019-05-08 19:58:26: Never*

Message 1525 @ 2019-05-08 19:59:27 - Clint: All that is on file are my voluntary agreements to stay there

Message 1526 @ 2019-05-08 20:01:51 - Clint: I'll sell my second amendment rights for $15 if I get hard up. Guns aren't my thing. But for some irrational reason I like the fact that my rights haven't been taken.

Message 1527 @ 2019-05-08 20:05:16 - Courtney: Ugh...I'm sorry. That's terrible. He let his ego get in the way. Maybe he really thought he was trying to help you. Either way, it was wrong.

Message 1528 @ 2019-05-08 20:05:29: That is understandable

Message 1529 @ 2019-05-08 20:05:29 - Courtney: Yeah well it doesn't matter

Message 1530 @ 2019-05-08 20:05:35: It works out for me now

Message 1531 @ 2019-05-08 20:06:09: I had to stay there longer but I have more rights, and it is unlikely the judge would argue with this ultra educated doctor

Message 1532 @ 2019-05-08 20:06:16 - Clint: His word would rule the day

Message 1533 @ 2019-05-08 20:06:36 - Clint: I would argue with him all day long and it turns out I was right

Message 1534 @ 2019-05-08 20:07:34 - Clint: So if I go to court all that means is I'm missing ping pong and I'm going right back. Might as well skip the court and hold my spot at the ping pong table

Message 1535 @ 2019-05-08 20:15:02 - Courtney: I suppose that's a good outlook

Message 1536 @ 2019-05-08 20:15:39 - Clint: Yeah lol and leave the place armed to the teeth

Message 1537 @ 2019-05-08 20:15:42: I'm jk

Message 1538 @ 2019-05-08 20:15:46: This is funny

Message 1539 @ 2019-05-08 20:16:33: Sent

When I went there I was not sleeping much, and I would be up early in the morning, like 6 am with the ping pong table turned up on one side beating the hell out of it

Message 1540 @ 2019-05-08 20:18:22 - Clint: It sounds like a machine gun with that ball smacking the table over and over.

The guys in the rooms right next to it were furious. One of them was this huge guy named Jeff that was about 7ft tall literally. He started catching the balls and crushing them

Message 1541 @ 2019-05-08 20:18:28: Ping pong is fun and definitely much better than of movies all day!!

Message 1542 @ 2019-05-08 20:18:42: That's crazy!!!

Message 1543 @ 2019-05-08 20:18:59: PG movies*

Message 1544 @ 2019-05-08 20:19:18: So I have about 7 people Received

Set up to visit me. When they ask what I want it was a consistent "bring me all the ping pong balls you can get"

Message 1545 @ 2019-05-08 20:20:42 - Clint: So I had literally several gross of ping pong balls in my room and I could keep 14 in my pockets. So one would go off the table and he'd catch it and crush it and I'd just pull out a new one from my bottomless supply and keep going

Message 1546 @ 2019-05-08 20:21:20 - Clint: And these people apparently figured out how I work and that I have an irrational tendency to win any power struggle

Message 1547 @ 2019-05-08 20:21:21 - Clint

So a few days later late at night Jeff comes by with a brand new 20 oz Mountain Dew

Message 1548 @ 2019-05-08 20:22:24: Gives it to me and says "I bought this but I'm going to give it to you so I can go to bed. I really need some rest tonight"

Message 1549 @ 2019-05-08 20:23:05: Worked like magic. Crush my ping pong balls I get 500 more delivered weekly. Be respectful and ask me and I'm very reasonable

Message 1550 @ 2019-05-08 20:38:38: Hahaha!!

Message 1551 @ 2019-05-09 19:04:55: Yeah I'm finally able to drop the situation

Message 1552 @ 2019-05-09 19:05:39 - Clint: I do believe. As long as nothing comes up to make me think something new is happening or that the people involved here had some sort of malice or do have Message 1553 @ 2019-05-09 20:44:01: I'm glad to hear that!

Message 1554 @ 2019-05-09 20:45:06: Hopefully it remains at rest so that you can have some peace!

Message 1555 @ 2019-05-09 21:40:16: Thank you!

Message 1556 @ 2019-05-09 21:40:27 - Clint: It is still incredibly painful that I wanted to leave everything behind, and that my showing someone my Facebook for 5 seconds that is all it took for hell to zero in on me and reign over my existence once more

Message 1557 @ 2019-05-09 21:41:18 - Clint: It is like the world can never be brutal enough. Every time I kid myself it comes back to show that is still worse yet than I ever had imagined

Message 1558 @ 2019-05-09 21:41:43 - Clint: And I don't know what all was said

Message 1559 @ 2019-05-09 21:42:00 - Clint: Probably a lot of untrue stuff that I will never be able to answer to

Message 1560 @ 2019-05-09 21:42:52 - Clint: But I hate the thought of going on the aggressive with people I care about, and I think that all people involved care about me or did at some point.

Message 1561 @ 2019-05-09 21:45:50 - Clint: This Abbey girl's sole source of information about me other than me is an ex friend who is far past having any feelings or concern for anyone.

Message 1562 @: He never has anything good to say about anyone when they are not in his presence, or almost never. He talks about all his friends like they are dogs behind their back.

Message 1563 @: And he was very mad at me at the time he would have been talking to her, and I guarantee you he has told her completely malicious lies. So she may at some point have believed whatever he said was true, and possibly repeated it.

Message 1564 @ 2019-05-09 21:47:00 - Clint: I had told her that I had been to the hospital I am pretty sure. She got that from me. But this guy has told her god knows what. She has since learned that she's dealing with a monster as far as he is concerned, but that wasn't the case around when this had happened

Message 1565 @ 2019-05-11 06:09:29: I'm going to move to another country

Message 1566 @ 2019-05-11 19:16:35 - Clint: Very sorry to text that to you so early in the morning. I had another breakdown over that situation

Message 1567 @ 2019-05-11 20:30:59 - Courtney: Hey, no worries. Saw your other texts. I hope everything is okay and you are closer to putting your concerns behind you!

Message 1568 @ 2019-05-11 20:31:26: They will never be behind me but thank you

Message 1569 @ 2019-05-11 20:31:45: I am going to save up some money and move somewhere. Charlotte has been ruined

Message 1570 @ 2019-05-11 20:32:06 - Courtney: I wouldn't worry about abbey or that a home from your past. Obviously Jenny still cares about you and likely meant no harm in inquiring about your past. Like you said...human curiosity.

Message 1571 @ 2019-05-11 20:32:18: A hole*

Message 1572 @ 2019-05-11 20:32:38 - Clint: So I will try to keep it off my mind all I can but it will never go away for good. The only hope I have is to move somewhere else

Message 1573 @ 2019-05-11 20:32:54: Yes that is what made me feel better about it

Message 1574 @ 2019-05-11 20:32:59: Reflecting on her behavior

Message 1575 @ 2019-05-11 20:33:44: The reason she repeatedly lies to me is because she is psychologically traumatized by what she as done and her defense mechanisms are in full force

Message 1576 @ 2019-05-11 20:33:51 - Clint: Or she would be traumatized

Message 1577 @ 2019-05-11 20:34:12 - Clint: But she cannot accept that she did something wrong because it would destroy her

Message 1578 @ 2019-05-11 20:34:26 - Clint: She tried too hard to be perfect.

Message 1579 @ 2019-05-11 20:34:30: Tries Sent

Message 1580 @ 2019-05-11 20:34:49: But it does me no good until people tell me the truth

Message 1581 @ 2019-05-11 20:35:02 - Clint: So I am going to move very far away

Message 1582 @ 2019-05-11 20:35:23 - Clint: Probably my own mother and the rest of my family won't even know where I am

Message 1583 @ 2019-05-11 20:35:38 - Clint: But I don't think she is deceitful because she doesn't care

Message 1584 @ 2019-05-11 20:35:48 - Courtney: Are you certain she knows more than she's already told you?

Message 1585 @ 2019-05-11 20:35:54: Yes

Message 1586 @ 2019-05-11 20:35:59: No doubt at all

Message 1587 @ 2019-05-11 20:36:23: Sent

She has never admitted to knowing or hearing anything and she is lying her ass off repeatedly

Message 1588 @ 2019-05-11 20:36:33 - Clint: No question about that at all.

Message 1589 @ 2019-05-11 20:37:06 - Clint: So I am forever in the dark.

Message 1590 @ 2019-05-11 20:37:15 - Courtney: Ok, just be sure you aren't letting your own anxiety over the possibility of her hearing thing get in the way. I thought you said she mentioned that abbey told her about the hospital.

Message 1591 @ 2019-05-11 20:37:26: She did

Message 1592 @ 2019-05-11 20:37:34 - Clint: That was her Freudian slip

Message 1593 @ 2019-05-11 20:37:43 - Clint: So yes I know she heard that Message 1594 @ 2019-05-11 20:38:01 - Clint: Which I later several months later told her myself anyways

Message 1595 @ 2019-05-11 20:39:04 - Clint: I am an open book, I just wanted things to come out slowly for the reasons I gave. Telling Tunny people hate me was also deliberate but maybe too fast. I wanted people to know that too

Message 1596 @ 2019-05-11 20:44:41 - Courtney: Understandable. Will moving away from Charlotte really make you feel better though?

Message 1597 @ 2019-05-11 20:45:05: Yes because then I won't have to worry what people are hearing

Message 1598 @ 2019-05-11 20:45:34 - Clint: Here now everywhere I go I will have to worry about what some person might say about me

Message 1599 @ 2019-05-11 20:45:47 - Clint: It is just like the mountains

Message 1600 @ 2019-05-11 20:46:24: And that people have been contacted and are still in communication is not something I can handle

Message 1601 @ 2019-05-11 20:46:39 - Clint: Jenny has destroyed my chances for a life up here

Message 1602 @ 2019-05-11 20:46:56 - Clint: And there is no prayer of getting the truth from her

Message 1603 @ 2019-05-11 20:46:58 - Courtney: Charlotte is a pretty big city. I doubt Jenny is spreading information about you and even if Tunny knew more than you said, she's sweet and has never been one to spread information about others.

Message 1604 @ 2019-05-11 20:47:15 - Clint: Yes but I will never know

Message 1605 @ 2019-05-11 20:47:27 - Clint: Think that is the most probable thing too

Message 1606 @ 2019-05-11 20:47:54 - Clint: But the fact that everyone won't tell me leaves me in permanent limbo and I'll never have peace

Message 1607 @ 2019-05-11 20:48:06 - Clint: And that they let me suffer like this is horrible

Message 1608 @ 2019-05-11 21:56:35 - Clint: And it's not what they know per se. I guess that is part of it. We have one fact that I was in a mental hospital, which people will sometimes call a mental institution, and that term just sounds bad.

Message 1609 @: It may be that the plain fact was said like that. Or it may be that some horribly exaggerated thing like I thought was being said back home was. The way the exaggerated thing would have gotten said was if my ex friend deliberately said that to Abbey and she said it.

Message 1610 @: I told him when we were friends the things I thought people might be saying. He is plenty cruel enough to say that to spite me.

Message 1611 @: Outside of that there isn't anything I have told Abbey about myself that could be all that damaging, or at least that I wouldn't be able to explain to people and be comfortable with.

Message 1612 @: And since her sole source of info was this extremely cruel person who tells horrible lies about people, she has certainly heard some bad things about me that were not true and god only knows what they were.

[REDACTED]

Message 1614 @ 2019-05-11 22:29:38 - Courtney: I'm sorry to hear that and I'm sorry you are suffering. I hope you are able to reach a resolution with the situation and find some peace with it all.

Message 1615 @ 2019-05-11 22:30:18 - Clint: Yeah it's not good but I think I will be fine if I just move

Message 1616 @ 2019-05-11 22:31:06: For the time being I will just have to deal with it. It is terrible. But I will live I think

Message 1617 @ 2019-05-11 22:38:54 - Clint: And it may be something else true. I don't know. There isn't much about me that I'm that I would be ashamed for people to know. So we have all kinds of scenarios. The 1 truth, the 1 truth exaggerated with lies, the 1 truth plus 1 or more lies, the multiple truths, the multiple truths with lies, or the multiple truths with one lie.

Message 1618 @: Whatever it is it had the same exact effect as back home. People have the same reaction and they refuse to tell me at all costs.

Message 1619 @ 2019-05-11 22:40:40 - Clint: I tend towards 1 truth or 1 truth + one or more lies.

Message 1620 @: I understand the stigma with mental hospitals especially if the term institution is used. Other than that I do not know of anything that would really stigmatize me so bad.

Message 1621 @ 2019-05-11 22:48:33: And I wish I could be as calm as I am now about it all the time. But it always come back

Message 1622 @ 2019-05-11 22:48:35 - Courtney: As I said before, people can be close minded. Especially if it involves things that they've never been exposed or close to in their lives. I have friends that have been to mental hospitals which is likely at least part of the reason why it isn't something I have a negative view towards. That and I have strong feelings towards mental health being extremely important and am truly mind blown that people still choose to stigmatize it. I know it bothers you deeply to know that people might view you in a negative light because of it, but I say screw them. They are not worth a thought. Anyone who could possibly view you in a negative way because of your time in a mental hospital or for any of your life experiences is not worth your time!

Message 1623 @ 2019-05-11 22:49:02: Yes that is true

Message 1624 @ 2019-05-11 22:49:15 - Clint: But otherwise good people change their view about me over whatever it is

Message 1625 @ 2019-05-11 22:49:34: Clint: So those "screw them" People is 100% of people I've ever met at this point

Message 1626 2019-05-11 22:50:48 - Clint: So if I will not be told whatever it is so that I have a chance to respond, and I will not be told at any costs no matter how much I beg and plead and threaten and scream and cry, the only way out is to live somewhere where no one I've ever know in the past is ever at Message 1627 2019-05-11 22:51:49 - Clint: And have no way for people to get in contact with them. Letting Jenny see my Facebook for what I though would be 5 seconds was all it took to ruin my life here and put me through hell.

Message 1628 @: I cannot live through this many more times

Message 1629 2019-05-11 22:53:37 - Clint: And truthfully these people aren't good people for what they've done to me. I give them the benefit of the doubt compulsively and see them in a good light at all costs, but they have not one ounce of reciprocity. It apparently makes them think I'm that much more weak and I might do better by fighting back. That's the mentality I was in but then that ripped my heart out thinking about it

Message 1630 Message 1631 @ 2019-05-11 22:57:05: I'm learning that there is a big cost to being the bigger person for small and cowardly people. These people have no aspirations for the kind of person they want to be, apparently. They are comfortable being bigots and liars, and comfortable with causing me enormous suffering and doing nothing to end it, when all it would take is to simply tell me the truth. But they expect some sort of door prize of some massive amount of money I will never have to tell the truth. They are such heartless and deceitful people they don't feel any obligation to tell the truth

Message 1632 2019-05-11 22:57:47 - Clint: It's apparently their right to lie and I'm a bad person for ever suggesting so extreme that they tell the truth

Message 1633 @ 2019-05-11 22:57:55: Something so extreme

Message 1634 @ 2019-05-11 23:05:01 - Clint: Sent

The horrible things I've been through are worse than at least what 50% of serial killers went through as children, and I wasn't really raised much. My life was more surviving minute by minute like an animal than it was learning how to navigate the world.

Message 1635 But I tell the truth almost always. And I would never let someone go through this. These people are spoiled and privileged for the most part.

Message 1636 @ 2019-05-11 23:07:10 - Courtney: Like I said, I don't think Jenny meant any harm by reaching out to that girl. I'm sure she feels horrible for causing you pain.

Message 1637 2019-05-11 23:07:33 - Clint: Not horrible enough to do something so simple as tell the truth

Message 1638 @ 2019-05-11 23:07:46 - Clint: Or to not let me bend over backwards to help her all I can

Message 1639 @ 2019-05-11 23:07:57 - Clint: I understand she has limitations

Message 1640 @ 2019-05-11 23:08:19 - Clint: But I sure as hell do too and sometimes I just don't get it

Message 1641 @ 2019-05-11 23:08:52: I know you think she's withholding additional information, but maybe she truly doesn't have anymore and just seems guilty. I'm not sure why she wouldn't just tell you.

Message 1642 @ 2019-05-11 23:08:58 - Clint: And I've told her 1,500 times that if she would just tell me it would be over

Message 1643 @ 2019-05-11 23:09:20 - Clint: Well she's withholding everything

Message 1644 @ 2019-05-11 23:09:53 - Clint: She denies ever talking to her period and she's lying her ass off clearly according to numerous experts

Message 1645 @ 2019-05-11 23:10:28: Exactly that I think has happened has, I just don't know the extent and I don't know the full details

Message 1646 @ 2019-05-11 23:11:28 - Clint: But the thing is I still feel bad for hurting her feelings by bringing this up

Message 1647 @ 2019-05-11 23:11:41 - Clint: It is a reality she can't deal with

Message 1648 @ 2019-05-11 23:11:52 - Clint: And it hurts her big time.

Message 1649 @ 2019-05-11 23:12:48 - Clint: But I'm confused as to when it is or isn't ok to let someone just lie to you and not tell the truth. At what point is someone genuinely handicapped enough to not be held accountable the same way I would expect people to hold me accountable

Message 1650 @ 2019-05-11 23:13:17: So that's another point

Message 1651 @ 2019-05-11 23:13:37: Don't let what I have told you here get back to her if you can help it

Message 1652 @ 2019-05-11 23:14:06 - Clint: I'm letting her live under the impression that I am once again convinced she didn't know anything

Message 1653 @ 2019-05-11 23:14:36 - Clint: She talked to no one and knows nothing about anyone who did

Message 1654 @ 2019-05-11 23:15:05 - Clint: No point in causing her suffering when it will get me nowhere

Message 1655 @ 2019-05-11 23:21:30 - Courtney: Ahhh...I see. I remember you asking me about my thoughts on her mental capacity a while back. I obviously don't know her that well, so I'm not sure if she has shared anything with you about herself. I suppose that could explain it.

Message 1656 @ 2019-05-11 23:22:04: She hasn't

Message 1657 @ 2019-05-11 23:22:25: *and I'm not sure

Message 1658 @ 2019-05-11 23:22:42: I am 100% certain now after thinking about it that it is her inability to admit she has done something wrong 2019-05-11 23:22:59

Ok. Like you said before, it's entirely possible.

Message 1659 @ 2019-05-11 23:23:05 - Clint: The way her mind works that would destroy her

Message 1660 @ 2019-05-11 23:23:21 - Clint: So she defends against that reality to herself first and then to me

Message 1661 @ 2019-05-11 23:23:54 - Clint: But I have all sorts of problems, and I generally am able to live a moral life. So I don't know if I should let her off the hook or not

Message 1662 @ 2019-05-11 23:24:07 - Clint: I mean I've nearly died over this

Message 1663 @ 2019-05-11 23:24:31 - Clint: But a consequence of my life is that people aren't as tough as me

Message 1664 @ 2019-05-11 23:25:13 - Clint: Despite the fact that I get emotionally crushed at times like I do over this, I am kind of fearless in ways. Like I can handle devastation

Message 1665 @ 2019-05-11 23:26:12 - Clint: In other words, if I were in her shoes and it would inflict trauma on my mind to admit what i did, I would likely do it anyways because I've been conditioned to deal with that type of thing my whole life

Message 1666 @ 2019-05-11 23:26:31 - Clint: I also think my hard life is the reason I can outwork nearly anyone.

Message 1667 @ 2019-05-11 23:26:45 - Courtney: If she has some sort of disability, I would say she gets a pass even though it has caused you to contemplate your life over it. It's terrible that it lead to that.

Maybe distance yourself from her.

Message 1668 @ 2019-05-11 23:27:03: Yes I think so

Message 1669 @ 2019-05-11 23:27:22 - Clint: But would you consider that a disability?

Message 1670 @ 2019-05-11 23:27:41 - Clint: Having something where it would traumatize you

Message 1671 @ 2019-05-11 23:27:52 - Clint: To admit you did something wrong

Message 1672 @ 2019-05-11 23:27:57 - Clint: She has that for 100% fact

Message 1673 @ 2019-05-11 23:29:06 - Courtney: I don't know that it alone would be, but it could very well be caused by a disability of some sort

Message 1674 @ 2019-05-11 23:29:41 - Courtney: Or even mental illness...for lack of a better term. I hate to even call it an illness.

Message 1675 @ 2019-05-11 23:30:07 - Courtney: I know nothing of her situation though

Message 1676 @ 2019-05-11 23:30:18 - Clint: Yes and her behavior makes sense in light of that fact

Message 1677 @ 2019-05-11 23:30:41 - Clint: Everything that has puzzled me about her in general makes sense in light of what I am talking about

Message 1678 @ 2019-05-11 23:30:58 - Clint: For sure you can take what I'm saying to the bank in regards To that Message 1679 @ 2019-05-11 23:31:04 - Courtney: You are closest to her, so if you strongly feel that way, there's a good possibility. You can't really fault her if there is something going on. You just have to distance yourself for your own wellbeing

Message 1680 @ 2019-05-11 23:31:34 - Clint: Yes and the bad thing is I like her as a friend very much and care a lot about her

Message 1681 @ 2019-05-11 23:31:41 - Clint: And I believe she does me as well

Message 1682 @ 2019-05-11 23:32:11 - Clint: So I think I'll just keep going about it business as usual and not hurt her over it, and then make plans to move

Message 1683 @ 2019-05-11 23:32:27 - Clint: Let it hammer me on and off

Message 1684 @ 2019-05-11 23:32:42 - Clint: I wish I had some insider who could tell me what she says about it

Message 1685 @ 2019-05-11 23:33:07: Maybe figure out how to work through it with your doctors if you want to continue being friends?

Message 1686 @ 2019-05-11 23:33:18 - Clint: Like if i knew she wasn't saying or repeating anything anymore that would give me comfort

Message 1687 @ 2019-05-11 23:33:41 - Clint: And if I could be guaranteed that she would quit talking to that girl and anyone else she's met in the process

Message 1688 @ 2019-05-11 23:35:11 - Clint: But that won't happen. So I'm just screwed in life again and that's fine. Been there done that. I'll live in misery on and off for a while then move somewhere where I don't have to worry and let this be a hard lesson that I cannot trust any human being for any period of time big or small as far as what is said about me is concerned

Message 1689 @ 2019-05-11 23:35:42 - Clint: No one will ever be allowed to go near anyone who has ever known me before, except my kid sister

Message 1690 @ 2019-05-11 23:35:50: Maybe not even her

Message 1691 @ 2019-05-11 23:37:29 - Clint: Sent

The clear pattern that will never be broken is this- people say something(s) about me that ruin my reputation and standing in people's eyes in 2 seconds. The people who hear it will repeat it and that effect will spread. I will never, ever be able to respond and will never, ever be told the truth at any cost, including my life

Message 1692 2019-05-12 06:47:22 - Clint: And you have no idea how bad it pisses me off to read what I just wrote, in light of the fact that it is the plain and obvious truth.

Message 1693 I don't want to die and go to heaven, I want to die and be reborn in a world that has 1/1000000th the mercy on me as I have on these people.

Message 1694 @ 2019-05-12 11:35:34 - Courtney: I'm sorry you are struggling so much with this Clint. I'd suggest you get in to see your doctor to discuss where you are at with the situation right now. Like I said, I can't tell you how to feel about the situation, but I can tell you that it is not worth the amount of time you have spent stressing over it and it is definitely not worth your life. I don't think your reputation is destroyed. I honestly think that the anxiety over the situation has lead you to believe it is worse than it is.

Please speak to someone that can help you better than I can.

Message 1695 @ 2019-05-12 11:37:09 - Courtney: Unfortunately, a bachelors in accounting isn't as effective as a doctorate in psych

Message 1696 @ 2019-05-12 18:14:03: Yes I am sorry. I keep breaking down over this and I shouldn't send you messages when I do 2019-05-12 18:23:46

But the only thing that will ease my mind is to know exactly what happened and what was said. I don't care that things have been said about me, all I want to know is what so that I have a chance to respond.

Message 1697 99% of every wrong thing I have done or bad thing about me was before I or around when was 18. And none of it was that bad. I know for a fact that Abbey has been told totally false things about me, and that when she was asked she would have repeated them. I just have no idea what. I will drop the subject with you though as there isn't much more you can do to help me. And again, I apologize. This causes me unbelievable pain at times and I can't fully control myself when I break down over it. You've been my sounding board lately and I end up texting you at the crack of dawn.

Message 1698 2019-05-12 18:55:11 - Clint: And I will never get an answer the way I am doing it. Abbey is a fugitive in multiple states according to her sister. [REDACTED]

Message 1699 So I have a few options. One is to tell everyone I meet about Jenny and Tunny, maybe show them pictures, and explain they may say negative things about me because they have associated with a fugitive and a racist sociopath, and that they are liars and have lied to me repeatedly. Also explain to them that they may be prejudiced against me over my health history, which they had no business of knowing and telling others, particularly if they did it in a pejorative or bigoted way.

Tell them to let me know what is said if they hear anything and take anyone who repeats whatever it is to court for defamation.

Also explain that they have probably shared false and defamatory things with others at Wells Fargo and to watch out for them.

Message 1700 Another option I have is to tell Jenny's church about this situation and her repeated lying and other ethical problems. Tell her that she has difficulty admitting she did anything wrong and that she needs to work on this cause it has destroyed me and nearly cost me my life. They may be able to fix her.

Message 1701 2019-05-12 18:58:03 - Clint: That's my last rant for you unless you bring it up. And I am sorry to take you away from your children for what is now probably about four hours total time invested in this Message 1702 @ 2019-05-12 18:59:42 - Clint: This is going to have you redlining at a solid 10 on your 7 to 10 range for some period of time. Maybe call my office people and say they should see how I'm doing, if some bragging about how awesome you are would do you some good.

Message 1703 @ 2019-05-12 21:49:34: And since we've had additional discussion, I will ask again if I have permission to share our conversation.

Message 1704 @ 2019-05-13 20:33:54 - Clint: I will assume I can since our last conversation was ok. Please keep it from getting to Jenny if you can. I won't see my doctors for a while most likely so if between now and then you change your mind just let me know and I won't say a thing. I probably won't say a thing anyways. And ignore that last message about showing people pictures, etc. I've been a wreck over this and I get in intense emotional places and say things I do not mean. It was the thought of turning against people I care about that had me so broken down the first time I texted you about this in the past week. There is almost no chance I could ever do anything to make life hard for Jenny or even Tunny, although I think Tunny is less handicapped than Jenny. I want good things for them all.

Message 1705 @: I sent Tunny a message on Facebook the same day I messaged you. I was begging her to tell me. I was in tears and broken down completely. I saw that she had read them and I typed her a message saying if she would tell me it would be between she and I and that I would make her church any kind of website they need for free and also manage their server for free. Website is bare minimum $5,000 to $10,000 at the going rate. Godaddy and other companies charge $120 a month to manage a server.

That is a scam and ridiculous but the fact stands that I was going to do it for free of charge for years for her.

Message 1706 @: She blocked my messages however and when I sent it, it bounced back. That's the kind of person I am. I forgive people and have mercy. They do me wrong I respond with mercy and kindness. That is what happens over the long term, it is always short lived when I am mean about things and start to see people as evil. I think my behavior in big or small ways while at the bank reflects that. I always acknowledged my role in things and I tried very hard to see the other person's side.

Message 1707 @: On the various times I have been broken down and almost ready to die over this, I have occasionally messaged her and said cruel things about her involvement with her church. My intent after I calmed down was to at some point get ahead and send her church money to make up for that.

Message 1708 @: I appreciate again your time and that is for sure the last thing I will say unless you bring it back up. I know your life is hard and full of responsibilities.

Message 1709 @: And please feel free to tell me if you can think of any behavior I had while at WFB that betrays what I just described. Also let me know if you ever recall me doing something dishonest or lying. I do not think there is one single instance but I would be curious to hear if anyone had that impression ever.

Message 1710 @ 2019-05-13 21:11:31 - Courtney: Hey, sorry just saw your other texts. Was Mother's Day and my sister's bday yesterday, so we were doing a combined celebration. Will read through all of the above.

Message 1711 @ 2019-05-13 21:15:07 - Clint: Yes you are fine and you owe me no apology ever

Message 1712 @ 2019-05-13 21:26:26 - Courtney: Ok, all caught up. I don't have any issue with you sharing our discussions with your doctors. I won't say anything to Jenny, I don't speak to her. Glad you determined the picture showing and church outreach are a bad idea. The part about information about your health circulating around wells, I would doubt. Tunny has never seemed like the type to talk about others. I have also never heard anyone speak of your health history either.

Heck, Christian was oblivious about your diagnosis until I had to loop him in because of his need to know with all of the hr conversations. As far as I know, no one is aware of anything regarding your health. Unless of course Tunny has information like you think, but I doubt she's mentioned it to anyone.

Message 1713 @ 2019-05-13 21:27:37 - Courtney: You never were dishonest. If anything you may have been guilty of oversharing. Not saying that's a bad thing, but definitely no dishonesty.

Message 1714 @ 2019-05-13 21:29:19 - Courtney: I know you are certain Jenny learned information about your past, whether true or false, but are you sure she shared it with Tunny?

Message 1715 @ 2019-05-13 21:30:22: Yes she did

Message 1716 @ 2019-05-13 21:30:28: But it is fine

Message 1717 @ 2019-05-13 21:30:39 - Clint:

I'm trying and trying to get past it

Message 1718 @ 2019-05-13 21:32:13 - Clint: And I know you don't talk to her, but it's a small world so was taking precautions. The chances of it getting to her are slight in any case but asking for special care. I don't want to cause her any more pain.

Message 1719 @ 2019-05-13 21:32:54 - Clint: The plot about my life back home has layer after layer of thickness

Message 1720 @ 2019-05-13 21:33:04 - Clint: That is part of the problem

Message 1721 @ 2019-05-13 21:33:34 - Clint: And no one had a clue what kind of twilight zone straight from the pits of hell awaited them one click away

Message 1722 @ 2019-05-13 21:33:57: And I'm sure what happened is when I was so devastated they thought it would go away

Message 1723 @ 2019-05-13 21:34:31 - Clint: So our of embarrassment and maybe worrying about trouble for themselves they just kept quiet about it, then slowly started lying

Message 1724 @ 2019-05-13 21:36:42 - Clint: And if someone has trouble admitting they did something wrong, each white lie adds to The burden and each big lie does.

Message 1725 @: So after 17 months of this the stakes are too high. It is not only admitting to the original thing but also admitting that you lied about it the whole time

Message 1726 @ 2019-05-13 21:37:32: And I have a personality that is easy to misinterpret. So Tunny and the others who may not have Jenny's "handicap" probably anticipated me going on the aggressive to the fullest extent

Message 1727 @ 2019-05-13 21:38:02 - Clint: And the fact that I was occasionally cruel when I spoke to her didn't help that perception

Message 1728 @ 2019-05-13 21:39:22 - Clint: I think I may have came across as seeking some sort of personal gain out of this rather than desperately wanting the truth for its own sake. She may not have even believed that I was on the verge of death

Message 1729 @ 2019-05-13 21:40:00: This would especially be true if one of the things that was said about me was that I was a dishonest, bad, or mean person

Message 1730 @ 2019-05-13 21:46:36 - Clint: When I originally contacted you with the handicap question, I was thinking that maybe she has some sort of emotional or mental problem that is some sort of retardation. She didn't seem that way to me the whole time I knew her. But I thought maybe the reason she won't tell me is that she is unable to really understand what it means when I suffer and hurt like I do.

Message 1731 @: This last time I text you about it I had dropped the handicapped thing for the most part, but after talking to you and doing my own research that's when I figured it out. She has extreme difficulty admitting she does something wrong. Every single thing about her that has ever not made sense to me made sense in light of that.

That and the psychological condition behind it.

Message 1732 @: And the problem is also that they know what was said and I do not. So it probably was something fairly benign and to them it's not a big deal. They are probably thinking "it's nothing anyways. So no need to worry about it". But I don't know and this type of thing destroyed my life and has the potential to irreversibly destroy it again. And the continual hiding it from me just made me wonder worse and worse what it could be Message 1733 @ 2019-05-13 22:08:57 - Clint: And it may not have been benign. That may be why they had that reaction but then they realized it wasn't true. I can speculate forever and a day. I guarantee you that Abbey has been told awful things about me that are 1000% not true and horrible by this guy I told you about. And if she repeated them I am sure that would be enough to turn anyone against it. That's the case even though I don't know what was said. I know how this person is. If you want I will give you an example of how he talks. I saw a side by side with this girl he was deceiving that I talked to. I heard about something from him first and then I heard the actual truth from her.

Message 1734 @: So I might actually have that going for me. Whatever was said might be so extreme that it is easy to brush off as false.

Message 1735 @ 2019-05-13 22:12:30:- Clint: And I have reason to Believe Tunny cared about me very much after she heard of the pain it caused me when whatever was said was said

Message 1736 @ 2019-05-13 22:30:48 - Clint: And like I say, there is not one thing in my life that I can't defend. I've done plenty wrong and am far less than perfect, but given my situation I think I've managed well and that it would be very unreasonable to expect me to be any better a person today than I am.

Message 1737 @: I am actually contemplating making my entire life public on the Internet in the next 3 years or so.

Message 1738 @ 2019-05-13 22:31:24 - Clint: And all the people who have bad things to say about me are free to say them and I will respond publicly

Message 1739 @ 2019-05-13 22:32:13 - Clint: And also I will compile a list of Everything I have done that is wrong and distribute it online for free

Message 1740 @ 2019-05-13 22:32:34 - Clint: And encourage viral respreading

Message 1741 @ 2019-05-13 22:39:03 - Clint: And regarding the showing pictures, that was me just being mad. I'm pretty sure I just woke up when I typed that. I get in moments where I feel hostile and say things. It's not like some premeditated thing that I mull over and then later on decide isn't good. It is a temporary feeling and it goes away fast. Like I say, I need to keep my cell phone away from me when I get in those moods

Message 1742 @ 2019-05-13 22:39:20 - Clint: I never really considered doing that Message 1743 @ 2019-05-13 22:50:39 - Courtney: Like you said, maybe whatever they heard was obviously over exaggerated and they questioned the validity. Maybe they didn't want to tell you because they were worried it would hurt you and they thought they were protecting you from a cruel person's warped commentary about your life.

Message 1744 @ 2019-05-13 22:52:02 - Courtney: Hmmm...that's a thought. Maybe blogging would be a useful outlet for you, if that's something you'd be comfortable with.

Message 1745 @ 2019-05-13 22:52:39 - Clint: Yes but it's more than a blog

Message 1746 @ 2019-05-13 22:53:04 - Clint: Like I say, back home all of these bad things that were said about me were used as a tactic

Message 1747 @ 2019-05-13 22:53:33 - Clint: And this hit and run style is not a game I can win. I was also made a scapegoat

Message 1748 @ 2019-05-13 22:54:00 - Clint: But if I'm public on the Internet, there is no hit and run. I'm not going anywhere

Message 1749 @ 2019-05-13 22:54:17 - Clint: And the compiling all I have done wrong has many purposes

Message 1750 @ 2019-05-13 22:54:39 - Clint: One is it shows that I have nothing to hide

Message 1751 @ 2019-05-13 22:55:18 - Clint: Another is that anyone wants to learn about me, anything they want to know will be online and they can look it up

Message 1752 @ 2019-05-13 22:56:54 - Clint: There are 3 classes of people who say whatever it is about me back home, 1) people out to destroy me, 2) people who don't know better than to believe #1, and 3) people who use it as a social tactic for the purposes of competing for jobs or girlfriends

Message 1753 @ 2019-05-13 23:00:03: #1 and #3 are the primary concerns, and they will shut their mouths real fast when they see what happens to them if they try this in the new game. Their hit and run won't work. I will call them out publicly and they will be ruined when they try to squirm out of it. I am thinking of making it a big psychology experiment and invite behavioral science experts from all over the place to opine on everything. I will have every word that comes out of my mouth or that I type subjected to laser focused scientific scrutiny

Message 1754 @ 2019-05-13 23:01:40 - Clint: If I can survive the scrutiny of every credible psychologist and neuroscientist on the planet then no one whose opinion I would care about will be skeptical of me at all

Message 1755 @ 2019-05-14 10:37:51 - Courtney: If you choose to do something like this, just be mindful of what you're writing about/sharing. Obviously you won't share more than you are comfortable with about yourself, but be mindful of what you write about others. You don't want to deal with the possibility of a libel suit.

Message 1756 @ 2019-05-14 13:38:47 - Clint: I'm not worried about that at all. When it comes to libel and slander, truth is an absolute defense

Message 1757 @ 2019-05-14 13:44:49 - Clint: And if people are saying such horrible things about me that put me through what I went through for years before and what I have went through for 1.5 years here, I have nothing to lose. I almost lost my life in both places.

Message 1758 @: But the issue I have is that people say this behind my back and then won't tell me or admit to it. So as soon as I leave the room it is said and then I never get a chance to respond. I only speculate about what Is said.

Message 1759 @: Here it was done out of not knowing what is true and what isn't largely, I think. And I'm not sure that anything that bad was said.

Message 1760 @: But back home it was a deliberate attempt to ruin me that was behind it, and the people involved have plenty about themselves that they like to hide.

Message 1761 @: So the idea is you want to talk behind my back, but instead let's put both our lives under the microscope in front of the whole world. I'm comfortable with every actual fact about myself, and let's see if you are.

Message 1762 @: And the "you" is whoever says something about me.

Message 1763 @ 2019-05-14 14:02:31 - Clint: And this is a side note, but you are confused about when I told you my diagnosis. That wasn't until I left. I told Jessica about my autism around Dec of 2016. Then when Marco was my manager I called HR and told them I had a mental illness but didn't specify what. Jessica had given me that number and I thought I was supposed to call them. So that was when my "disabilities" were formally documented Message 1764 @ 2019-05-14 14:06:22 - Clint: The reason I told you when I left was I had been talking to a psychologist about how to get along with people better and she had made some observations.

Message 1765 @: I thought about some of what she said and thought maybe I hadn't been fair to you and Christian or maybe that I hadn't acknowledged my role.

Message 1766 @: I don't think that anymore. I think I was more than fair and I think it is beyond shameful how I was treated at that bank. But at the time I thought maybe I should explain why I act the way I do. I was also self conscious of somehow coming across as self centered over what Bill said in that meeting. I had no idea what the hell made him think that and I still do not. But I didn't want people thinking that and thinking I didn't care about them.

Message 1767 @ 2019-05-14 14:23:07 - Clint: And part of the plan for the website would be to have a place where any lawyer who wants to make legal threats can contact me.

Message 1768 @: And that section will include a part where they can request whatever type of derisory information they would like about me. I will tell them of where to start looking if they want to hear that I am XYZ or that I have done PQR, on the following conditions- 1) they tell me what was said and who said it their communication telling me what was said and who said it would be licensed to me to distribute publicly, and my license will include rights to sublicense it to every single human being on earth to virally spread everywhere

if they have some sort of Audio or video or png or jpeg or any other evidence that supports what is claimed the same terms apply. It will be licensed to me and I will make sure it is spread as far and wide as possible as fast as possible

Message 1769 @ 2019-05-14 15:31:58 - Courtney: You told me about your autism diagnosis before that point. It was not too long after I became your manager, if I remember correctly. Not sure specifically when. You had mentioned it over a lync message one day. You might have mentioned it to Christian around the time you left. As far as you treatment goes, I'm curious about what you think was shameful. Bill? Christian? I'm guessing things that I wasn't involved with because I feel you were treated quite fairly and often afforded a great deal of flexibility. You were never scrutinized any more than any other analyst and treated just as we would the other CAs. I'm glad you thought the legal aspects of the website you are considering creating. I just wanted to warn you what might come of it should you post about others.

Message 1770 @ 2019-05-14 15:32:47: Yes the autism

Message 1771 @ 2019-05-14 15:32:56 - Clint: But not my full diagnosis

Message 1772 @ 2019-05-14 15:33:18: I told Jessica around dec 2016 if I remember right.

Message 1773 @ 2019-05-14 15:33:22: But it's no big deal Clint:

Message 1774 @ 2019-05-14 15:33:26: I don't know your full diagnosis

Message 1775 @ 2019-05-14 15:33:46 - Clint: Yes when I left I told you the other thing I am diagnosed with

Message 1776 @ 2019-05-14 15:33:58: I don't recall

Message 1777 @ 2019-05-14 15:34:10 - Courtney: So you have no way of knowing if that is complete. Yeah like I say no big deal

Message 1778 @ 2019-05-14 15:34:29 - Clint: And I was treated with less respect that I believe others were or would have been

Message 1779 @ 2019-05-14 15:34:40 - Courtney: Of course, and it is none of my business what that is.

Message 1780 @ 2019-05-14 15:34:55 - Clint: Multiple times there was no attempt whatsoever to understand my side

Message 1781 @ 2019-05-14 15:35:04 - Clint: And yes, you were rotten to other people too

Message 1782 @ 2019-05-14 15:35:11 - Clint: Not you as a person but the bank

Message 1783 @ 2019-05-14 15:35:22 - Clint: I wasn't the only one who got screwed

Message 1784 @ 2019-05-14 15:35:29 - Courtney: I disagree, at least with what I was present or aware of.

Message 1785 @ 2019-05-14 15:35:43 - Clint: You personally were very good

Message 1786 @ 2019-05-14 15:35:57 - Clint: Very little grievance I have with you at all

Message 1787 @ 2019-05-14 15:36:26 - Clint: I've never gave anyone a bad review of you

Message 1788 @ 2019-05-14 15:36:49 - Clint: Like I say your lowest might be a 7 if I'm in a bad mood about things

Message 1789 @ 2019-05-14 15:37:07 - Clint: And I've made you out to be the best thing since sliced bread multiple times

Message 1790 @ 2019-05-14 15:37:09 - Courtney: Your interactions with bill were not different than his interactions with others.

He's not "soft and cuddly" or sunshine and rainbows. I know that others felt he was abrasive too.

Message 1791 @ 2019-05-14 15:37:34 - Clint: 10 out of 10 just like Shana, who is the best manager of all time

Message 1792 @ 2019-05-14 15:37:46: Shana is a permanent 10

Message 1793 @ 2019-05-14 15:38:33: And Christian is pretty close to soft and cuddly. I think of him as a gentler person than me

Message 1794 @ 2019-05-14 15:38:34: And I defended you to other analysts who had negative things to say about you. I won't say who but just to be clear it wasn't Jenny

Message 1795 @ 2019-05-14 15:40:41 - Courtney: I'm sure plenty of people had negative things to say, but it was likely those that were reprimanded or those that that I wasn't as involved. I agree that I wasn't as involved as I wanted to be, but I was pulled from management a good chunk of the time. I'm sure at least some of it was Jenny.

Message 1796 @ 2019-05-14 15:40:51: That said*

Message 1797 @ 2019-05-14 15:40:55: Nope

Message 1798 @ 2019-05-14 15:41:01: She never said anything bad

Message 1799 @ 2019-05-14 15:41:44: I'm surprised. She had plenty to say about dept related stuff. Glad she realized a lot of it was outside of our control!

Message 1800 @ 2019-05-14 15:42:02 - Clint: Yes she was treated horribly

Message 1801 @ 2019-05-14 15:42:06: Total shame

Message 1802 @ 2019-05-14 15:42:09: But it wasn't you

Message 1803 @ 2019-05-14 15:42:53: And I think you are right

Message 1804 @ 2019-05-14 15:43:01 - Courtney: A lot of people didn't understand that I wasn't uninvolved out of choice or laziness, so I know that probably has lots to do with it

Message 1805 @ 2019-05-14 15:43:36 - Clint: I can't remember everything but it seems like one of these people said something about being denied PTO or denied going home early

Message 1806 @ 2019-05-14 15:43:51 - Clint: And made some inference about you as a manager

Message 1807 @ 2019-05-14 15:44:22: And this person immediately hedged their bets, giving me the impression they thought I might tell you what was said because I clearly liked you

Message 1808 @ 2019-05-14 15:45:03 - Clint: It was one of those "i understand and yes that's true" type of things that doesn't come across as genuine and is mostly done by girls

Message 1809 @ 2019-05-14 15:45:24 - Courtney: Haaaaa!!!! That's hilarious! The level of flexibility allowed was second to none. I think a lot of people didn't realize that. Unfortunately, you can't ALWAYS get the PTO you requested or leave early

Message 1810 @ 2019-05-14 15:46:06 - Clint: And I'm not trying to start some crap or drudge up stuff. Just making the point that I talk about you behind your back the same

Way I do to your face

Message 1811 @ 2019-05-14 15:46:35 - Clint: And so you understand that “you” isn’t you but the bank when I say negative things

Message 1812 @ 2019-05-14 15:47:14: Well, I appreciate that! I can’t stand fake or sugarcoating. I’m pretty sure at least part of it is the northerner in me! Lol

Message 1813 @ 2019-05-14 15:47:28 - Clint: Ask any of my office people that I talked to regularly. Julie Bell

Message 1814 @ 2019-05-14 15:47:32: Zack Blades

Message 1815 @ 2019-05-14 15:47:36 - Courtney: Honesty is the best policy!

Message 1816 @ 2019-05-14 15:47:42: My main peeps in central

Message 1817 @ 2019-05-14 15:47:51: Veronica Pierzchala for east

Message 1818 @ 2019-05-14 15:48:05 - Clint: They will tell you that I have spoke well of you if they remember

Message 1819 @ 2019-05-14 15:48:37 - Courtney: Well, I’m glad that you thought I was a good manager!

Message 1820 @ 2019-05-14 15:48:48: Yes

Message 1821 @ 2019-05-14 15:49:02 - Clint: I like to hope others thought so when I’ve had the opportunity to actually manage them!

Message 1822 @ 2019-05-14 15:49:08: The big thing that you did was tweak the pushing out rules so I could trade work

Message 1823 @ 2019-05-14 15:49:22 - Clint: That pushing out nonsense made my life hell

Message 1824 @ 2019-05-14 15:49:38 - Courtney: Yeah, your situation was a little different

Message 1825 @ 2019-05-14 15:49:55 - Clint: Yeah and that’s another thing

Message 1826 @ 2019-05-14 15:50:03: You didn’t really manage me that much

Message 1827 @ 2019-05-14 15:50:07: Which is what I like

Message 1828 @ 2019-05-14 15:50:22: Others did it to try to mess with the system or get around QA

Message 1829 @ 2019-05-14 15:50:25: You mainly handed out work but otherwise left me to my own devices

Message 1830 @ 2019-05-14 15:50:33: Yes they did

Message 1831 @ 2019-05-14 15:51:02 - Clint: I was one of the ones behind that Message 1832 @ 2019-05-14 15:51:27 - Clint: They found items on my production report that had been pushed out to 4 months in the future

Message 1833 @ 2019-05-14 15:51:43: Yes, you didn’t need a whole ton of actual management with work which was great!

Message 1834 @ 2019-05-14 15:52:46 - Courtney: Yeah, the big thing with the super far out ones was they probably thought you were trying to skirt the system when it first was an issue.

Message 1835 @ 2019-05-14 15:53:19 - Clint: After I explained why they knew better Message 1836 @ 2019-05-14 15:53:25 - Courtney: I remember all that madness when I was an analyst.

Message 1837 @ 2019-05-14 15:54:00: I remember a certain someone (not you) has stuff pushed out for months when he went on vacation and his back ups discovered it

Message 1838 @ 2019-05-14 15:54:08: Had*

Message 1839 @ 2019-05-14 15:54:18: Yes that was Todd

Message 1840 @ 2019-05-14 15:54:33 - Clint:

But for me it wasn't trying to dodge QA it was to be fair to QA

Message 1841 @ 2019-05-14 15:55:44 - Clint: The one that was way way far out was Julie Bells most complex customer. We spread a whole bunch of companies. I am on the phone with her about it for hours and hours and I get it out to her as fast as possible

Message 1842 @ 2019-05-14 15:56:12 - Clint: Which means not waiting to send to her after I add 10 pages of notes in MRA

Message 1843 @ 2019-05-14 15:57:39 - Clint: So instead of having an item to push out every day, I would just push it out to the extreme future. That saves me from having to push it out day after day. Then when I add the notes for QA I turn it in. I never let the sit for the whole 4 or 6 months in the future I push them out to

Message 1844 @ 2019-05-14 15:58:39 - Clint: There was another one where the office didn't have the correct statement. I rarely terminated anything and just gave them forever and a day to get me the right thing

Message 1845 @ 2019-05-14 15:59:12 - Clint: I didn't like my offices having to make duplicate Ezrs even if it was their fault for not having the right thing

Message 1846 @ 2019-05-14 16:09:37: Yeah. The whole EZR madness is a pain. I hope that one day we have an easier way to submit work. I helped create the perfect plan for future workflow and a massive list of must haves in a future workflow tool, but who knows if we'll end up with something as intuitive as we hope!

Message 1849 @ 2019-05-14 16:29:45: And just so you know, related to my plan to make a public website with every detail about me and hammer people if they say something about me, it is extremely and I mean very extremely unlikely that it will ever involve the people here who have heard things or who might have.

Message 1850 @: I agree with you that they probably know any horrible thing about me is not true by now, if they heard it. I also agree that they will not repeat anything that will be damaging due to people's biases, even if true.

Message 1851 @: The latter I don't care if they repeat and they'll have a hard time beating me to the punch cause I'm going to clear up everything.

Message 1852 @: The former, the only way they would be involved is if they said something about me that was untrue again. Then I would have to address them publicly.

Message 1853 @: I told you before that my fear was that they have heard some exaggerated thing about my hospitalization. The reason for that was that is what I thing people say back home. Abbey hasn't lived in that area for a long long time. So whatever she heard she had to get from elsewhere. Her sister is in the mix in that area pretty frequently. So in Dec 2017 when this first happened I thought she had heard something from her.

Message 1854 @: But I recently talked to her sister. We were friends in high school. She thinks very well of me and says she never talks to Abbey bc Abbey is a sociopath and stole her identity.

Message 1855 @: So that rules her out and that sort of rules out what was said being this exaggerated thing about my hospitalization. The only way the exaggerated thing about my hospitalization was said was if my ex friend said it to spite me. He knew of the things I had speculated people said and he might have told Abbey that, or he might have said something like "he claims that he was there cause his mom was worried but I guarantee you the real reason"

Message 1856 @: So we have what Abbey knows, which is that I was at a hospital. He has without a doubt made me out to be the devil and said god knows what. Between those two I can pick apart what was said but nothing specific on what he said.

Message 1857 @: This girl he was deceiving told me that he didn't care about me at all and I would know if I knew what he said to her about me. But she wouldn't tell me because "I don't want to hurt your feelings and it is so horrible"

Message 1858 @ 2019-05-14 16:31:44 - Clint: And by the way, it begs the question very strongly why I was ever this persons friend.

Message 1859 @: Another bad thing about me that can be explained and that no reasonable person would fault me for once explained

Message 1860 @ 2019-05-14 16:32:21 - Clint: But here is an example of the type of things he says. I will censor it since it's your work phone _____ sounds like it!!

Message 1867 @ 2019-05-14 16:39:54: Yes.

Message 1876 @ 2019-05-14 17:01:31 - Clint: And if someone from my work or personal life up here said that they “heard such and such” from “so and so” to someone, but didn’t state it as being true, they would quite likely be exempt from getting hammered publicly. The real culprits I am after are the “so and sos” who spread this garbage in the first place.

Message 1877 @: I’m sure that I could track down the paperwork my mom filed to get me hospitalized. It will snow the “she’s worried about me” and whatever things I was doing that worried her.

Message 1878 @: I can also document that I have saw probably close to dozen different doctors on a regular basis for over 2 decades, and that not one of them thought I was dangerous to people in any way.

Message 1879 @: And if I get ahead I might contact the police in the various states abbey is a fugitive in and offer to help find her by paying for detectives. If anyone could get it out of her they could.

Message 1880 @ 2019-05-14 17:15:17 - Clint: My various doctors have almost all spoken of me in the best way.

Message 1881 @: And that is part of the reason I want to get behavioral science experts involved in my web project. They can verify if what I say is credible and if what others say about me is credible. I think I have a possible incentive to offer them, in that I am a pretty good clinical specimen due to the circumstances that I was raised in and my reaction to them and how I ended up. From day one of seeing this counselor at age 12 or 13, I was different from other children who had my behavior problems. The way I acted towards him is not typical at all. I diverge very sharply from the path that most who have my background and my severe childhood behavior problems take. I diverged within probably 15 minutes of the first visit with that doctor.

Message 1882 @ 2019-05-15 18:59:58 - Clint: This is the last I am speaking of this to you, or I hope so. You have asked me to get help from my doctors and I will.

Message 1883 @: But they won’t be able to help me. This whole thing has continued to destroy me day after day.

Message 1884 @: I have no option but to seek the answer somehow.

Message 1885 @: What do you think the possibility is to get all people who have heard whatever it was that was said together and have a call with me?

Message 1886. My priorities are:

- 1: I want to make sure that no one ever talks to any of these people again
- 2: I would very much like to know what was said, as it is being said elsewhere I am sure
- 3: I would like to make sure that whatever was said doesn’t make it any farther.

Message 1887 @: Those are my priorities in order. I feel I deserve all of them but will take what I can get.

Message 1888 @: We can all sign a nondisclosure agreement and if people are concerned about some HR provision I can sign something releasing all parties from responsibility or obligations.

Message 1889 @: There is no help for me until I get my answers. I will be in hell for the rest of my days is how it’s looking. There is more to this than can be explained in any short time.

Message 1890 @ 2019-05-15 20:34:47: Hi! Sorry I didn’t get around to your other texts yesterday. The later half ended up being a cluster eff because of school madness. I’m glad you’re going to talk to your doctors and I hope that they can help you in some way with the situation.

Regarding a call with the involved parties (I’m guess Jenny, Tunny, maybe Abbey?)... I would doubt that all would agree if you had been aggressive towards them at any point. I know you said you lashed out at them. People tends to become defensive and guarded after that. I think it would be unlikely.

Message 1891 @ 2019-05-15 20:35:31: I was just talking about whoever happened to hear whatever it was at the bank

Message 1892 @ 2019-05-15 20:35:56 - Clint: There are multiple reasons this causes me such distress 2019-05-15 20:36:16:
And I have lashed out at Tunny, fairly mildly

Message 1893 @ 2019-05-15 20:36:35: I have went totally off the rails on Jenny

Message 1894 @ 2019-05-15 20:36:52 - Clint: I couldn't care less about Abbey

Message 1895 @ 2019-05-15 20:37:08 - Clint: Although I would like to hear from her what was said.

Message 1896 @ 2019-05-15 20:37:56: Never will get it willingly but if I fund the effort to capture her they might give her leniency on her other various criminal charges

Message 1897 @ 2019-05-15 20:41:05 - Clint: I was extremely happy when I came to the conclusion that the reason I wasn't being told was some HR thing. I thought that all I would have to do is make everyone understand that I'm not going to use HR stuff to beat them over the head and ruin them somehow. But that wasn't the case.

Message 1898 @: This was around Feb to March of his year. I have done so much to help both of them, Jenny and Tunny, but Jenny has a much bigger balance. I was more and more baffled by why Jenny wouldn't tell me, and at times I thought that she was this person who just didn't care and who had exploited my kindness and the situation she created

Message 1899 @ 2019-05-15 20:42:15 - Clint: I have been devastated by this and on the verge of death constantly, and she has been my only friend for the most part. So she's got to monopolize all of my problem solving and people helping stuff that I am always doing

Message 1900 @ 2019-05-15 20:44:47: That's why this last time when I text you I thought I could get over it for good.

Message 1901 @: I had figured out why she wouldn't tell me. It is because she can't admit she did something so wrong to herself. I have determined that Jenny tries to be perfect in everything she does because to her to not be perfect in thought and deed and everything else makes her a bad person. In other words, she cannot separate her actions from who she is.

Message 1902 @: So that made me feel much better, that I hadn't been brutalized by someone who didn't care about me

Message 1903 @ 2019-05-15 20:48:18 - Clint: And the thing is this is not something all that wrong, what she and Tunny and whoever else heard it and possibly repeated it did.

Message 1904 @: There might be some HR rule that would allow me to whack them over the head with a ton truck, to speak metaphorically. But I don't care. I am not someone who looks for reasons that my rights were violated so that I can take advantage of any and all situations.

Message 1905 @: She had very understandable and very typically human curiosity. What is wrong is letting it go on for so long and letting it destroy me more and more. And I have even forgave her for that.

Message 1906 @: The issue is that a good number of people back home are out to destroy me

Message 1907 @ 2019-05-15 20:50:07 - Clint: And they do not need to be talked to about me with anyone. The major problems with that are 1) they are going to paint me in the worst light possible, deliberately and even when they know it isn't true and 2) they have made multiple attempts on my life and will use any info they get about me to further terrorize me or try to kill me again

Message 1908 @ 2019-05-15 20:51:33 - Clint: I have no idea who all is being spoken to. All I know is that save possibly Abbey, none of them are concerned at all with the truth about me, and a good portion of them are trying to ruin me and/or kill me

Message 1909 @ 2019-05-15 20:52:10 - Clint: I didn't really do anything wrong, but with the circumstances I left, it was stupid for me to have a Facebook period

Message 1910 @ 2019-05-15 20:52:21 - Clint: And again, I am an open book

Message 1911 @ 2019-05-15 20:53:00 - Clint: The best know, there is an active campaign to ruin me and kill me if the people can get away with it

Message 1912 @ 2019-05-15 20:53:42 - Clint: Anyone wants to know the truth about me all they have to do is ask me. I do not flatter myself and speak only reality as a general principle

Message 1913 @ 2019-05-15 20:54:09 - Clint: And yes, the bat*insane plot just got thicker

Message 1914 @ 2019-05-15 20:54:32: And this is why the SBI might be knocking on Jenny's door one day

Message 1915 @ 2019-05-15 20:55:17 - Clint: The police back home were willing to cover it up, I am certain by things that I know

Message 1916 @ 2019-05-15 20:57:11 - Clint: If you want to know the story behind that, I will tell you. You just ask. It's nothing to do with you but I have no problem telling anyone

Message 1917 @ 2019-05-15 20:57:27: Or at least anyone I know up here

Message 1918 @ 2019-05-15 21:01:19: And I don't mean to dump it on you. And we can drop the subject any time. But this might get to be a much bigger problem and that's why I'm trying to solve it and get everyone here out of it.

Message 1919 @: I get the impression that people don't really believe what I say and my reasons for wanting to know this Message 1920 @ 2019-05-15 21:01:27 - Courtney: I don't think anything about you is circulating around the bank. Were most of your discussions with Tunny while you were still at the bank and she was still with the department? If so, I never heard of any of the conversations or any of what you think she's heard. By saying people are out to kill you do you mean through spreading things that have caused you pain and make you want to take your life?

Message 1921 @ 2019-05-15 21:01:42: No I mean literal murder

Message 1922 @ 2019-05-15 21:01:53: Oh god.

Message 1923 @ 2019-05-15 21:02:06: Like people from home?

Message 1924 @ 2019-05-15 21:02:10: Received

Multiple attempted murders that were botched and more to come

Message 1925 @ 2019-05-15 21:02:12: Yes

Message 1926 @ 2019-05-15 21:02:40 - Clint: There are maybe 15 people involved in that not counting the police who had their backs

Message 1927 @ 2019-05-15 21:03:30 - Clint: Their goal is to cause me as much pain as is possible and the first time they think they can get away with it they will try to kill me again

Message 1928 @ 2019-05-15 21:04:07: They would like me to off myself bc that would save them from having to risk their freedom

Message 1929 @ 2019-05-15 21:04:40: Like I said 2019-05-15 21:04:45

That's insanity. Was it when you still lived there?

Message 1930 @ 2019-05-15 21:04:53 - Clint: Twilight zone from the pits of hell

Message 1931 @ 2019-05-15 21:04:57: One click away

Message 1932 @ 2019-05-15 21:04:59: Yes

Message 1933 @ 2019-05-15 21:05:13: I'm sorry to hear that Message 1934 @ 2019-05-15 21:05:13: I was scapegoated

Message 1935 @ 2019-05-15 21:05:38: Sent Sent Received

Like you said, lots of layers to your life

Message 1936 @ 2019-05-15 21:05:45: It has to do with my hospitalization and what I said around that time

Message 1937 @ 2019-05-15 21:06:15 - Clint: The people involved are largely people who worked at the restaurant i worked at

Message 1938 @ 2019-05-15 21:07:02 - Clint: The owner blames me for ruining his business and harming his reputation, and several of the employees were out for me over what I said making it impossible for them to get jobs

Message 1939 @ 2019-05-15 21:07:37 - Clint: Basically this restaurant was a criminal crapshow, and the owner was plowed all over by his employees and did nothing about it

Message 1940 @ 2019-05-15 21:08:08 - Clint: He had underaged girls, in some cases less than 16 years old working there with a bunch of dope dealers in the kitchen

Message 1941 @ 2019-05-15 21:08:38 - Clint: He had male employees well into their twenties predated girls 16 years old

Message 1942 @ 2019-05-15 21:09:03: Kids 15 and 16 being offered drugs and taking them, and getting addicted in his parking lot

Message 1943 @ 2019-05-15 21:09:09: I mean it was a mess 2019-05-15 21:09:47

He had a guy that brought a concrete mixing machinery from his construction job and thought it was great to use to mix pizza sauce

Message 1944 @ 2019-05-15 21:10:25 - Clint: Same guy gutted a deer in the same sink the kitchen and dining room were in

Message 1945 @ 2019-05-15 21:10:49 - Clint: He also had way jacked up prices relative to what stuff cost him

Message 1946 @ 2019-05-15 21:11:29 - Clint: When had my first breakdown, I was spilling the beans on some of this stuff, not all of it. I would bring this up in conversations with people.

Message 1947 @ 2019-05-15 21:13:05 - Clint: So now all of the sudden people know about all sorts of illegal activity that these people are involved in, and in a small place that means everyone knows. The owners business went way down, and he blamed it on me.

Message 1948 @: It in fact wasn't me, or even mostly me

Message 1949 @ 2019-05-15 21:13:31 - Clint: There was a 15 year old kid who was invited by a coworker to our Xmas party

Message 1950 @ 2019-05-15 21:13:48 - Clint: He went back to high school talking about "getting wasted" there to everyone

Message 1951 @ 2019-05-15 21:14:10 - Clint: I was the only employee there who wasn't stealing from him when it was all over

Message 1952 @ 2019-05-15 21:14:12: That's nuts!!

Message 1953 @ 2019-05-15 21:14:18: But they fixate on me

Message 1954 @ 2019-05-15 21:14:34: The mentality is everything would be fine if I didn't run my big mouth

Message 1955 @ 2019-05-15 21:15:02 - Clint: This owner was a nice guy in most ways, and that was his problem. These people plowed all over him.

Message 1956 @ 2019-05-15 21:15:25: So then they get some more people pissed at me and bring them in the mix

Message 1957 @ 2019-05-15 21:16:02 - Clint: And at this point I've got a coalition out to destroy me, and a county full of people who don't know better than to believe and repeat what they say

Message 1958 @ 2019-05-15 21:16:43: This assistant manager stole $120 a week from the register

Message 1959 @ 2019-05-15 21:17:18: And ended up going to Vegas with the owner and gambling with money he stole, and winning $700

Message 1960 @ 2019-05-15 21:18:01 - Clint: He also drank moonshine at work, smoked Marijuana in the kitchen during open hours, and committed sex crimes with female employees in the bathroom

Message 1961 @ 2019-05-15 21:19:21 - Clint: But it's me and my big damn mouth. Not the owners incompetence, or the fact that every single day almost I had people telling me that they would never be back over the poorly prepared or cold food, or the obvious health code violations

Message 1962 @ 2019-05-15 21:19:43 - Clint: I was complimented by most of the customers that told me they were leaving

Message 1963 @ 2019-05-15 21:21:22 - Clint: And this asst manager stole a bag full of $120 in quarters one night and then tried to blame it on the other guys 13 year old son. The guy that gutted his deer in the sink.

Message 1964 @: That guy was actually a hell of a nice guy. He just didn't see anything wrong using a concrete mixing tool, etc.

Message 1965 @ 2019-05-15 21:23:32 - Clint: But all I spilled the beans on were the huge profit margins, which others also spilled, and the party environment of the workplace. I was far from the only one to speak of the latter.

Message 1966 @: But in the owners mind he can just direct it all at me. In reality it is a good thing for him that the IRS came to shut down his business

Message 1967 @ 2019-05-15 21:24:10: It will not last forever running a business like that. Something bad is bound to happen and there is plenty going on there that could get him in huge trouble

Message 1968 @ 2019-05-15 21:24:12: Sounds like a shitshow!

Message 1969 @ 2019-05-15 21:24:16: Yes!

Message 1970 @ 2019-05-15 21:24:47: And that's why I'm saying let's take this public

Message 1971 @ 2019-05-15 21:25:01 - Clint: Let's all of us go in front of the world and see what's up 2019-05-15 21:26:20
I'll make your case for you "I'm calling bullshit on the germ theory of disease. What could deer blood and deer guts possibly do to harm humans exposed to that by a pizza pan? This is a hoax to take down the family owned enterprise."

Message 1972 @ 2019-05-15 21:28:03 - Clint: "These laws about 16 year old girls not dating their 26 year old manager is a bunch of cold hearted scientists who don't believe in fate. Fate knows no numbers and we've got to let it unfold naturally, including in the employee restroom during working hours"

Message 1973 @ 2019-05-15 21:28:23 - Clint: This is apparently the world he lives in

Message 1974 @ 2019-05-15 21:28:44 - Clint: These things aren't a problem, it's me telling people 10% of the story when my mind isn't working right

Message 1975 @ 2019-05-15 21:29:24 - Clint: So let them make up whatever garbage it is that they tell everyone. I'll address it in front of the world and we will see who is right.

Message 1976 @ 2019-05-15 21:30:50 - Clint: And also not the various other people who have said what goes on there. Those guys somehow aren't involved. It's all me.

Message 1977 @ 2019-05-15 21:39:05 - Clint: In the first two weeks that I worked there at age 15 I was personally offered marijuana at work, and another 15 year old kids parents called and said their son wasn't coming back because when his ride dropped him off at his house he had wine coolers from the restaurant in his backpack.

Message 1978 @: Me and this kid started at the same time. I told an employee about my situation and the owner was told. He should have done something about this whole thing right then. But he didn't, over and over for years.

Message 1979 @ 2019-05-15 22:10:05 - Courtney: Wow! That's crazy! Beyond the fact that it was ridiculously unprofessional and immoral of him not to do anything about the work environment of his own establishment, he set himself up for serious legal repercussions!

Message 1981 @ 2019-05-15 23:02:11: Lol

Message 1982 @ 2019-05-15 23:02:32: Sent

But in his feeble mind he can call himself a good business man if he just blames it all on me 2019-05-15 23:02:56

And at the time he thinks he can just have me put in the ground so I'll stop talking and things will be ok

Message 1983 @ 2019-05-15 23:18:33 - Clint: So you think there is no chance of whoever heard all of this getting on a call with me under the terms I laid out?

Message 1984 @ 2019-05-15 23:19:15: I believe that most likely plenty of people at Wells Fargo heard and that plenty are aware of the situation, including people at some level of management

Message 1985 @ 2019-05-15 23:28:14 - Clint: If I seek legal help over this all bets are off the table once they get involved.

Message 1986 @: I've made 3000 attempts to settle this peacefully. I've begged on the verge of death for help. I've offered multiple times repeatedly to just let people explain and no harm will come to anyone. I've compulsively made excuses for grown adults as to why they shouldn't be held accountable for their behavior, including the consequences that any reasonable person would say they should face.

Message 1987 @: In return for this I have been lied to and left to be in misery over and over. I don't want to go to battle over this but at this point I see no choice and I have less and less reason to feel sorry for all involved.

Message 1988 @: The fact of the matter is that I have be done a massive wrong in the eyes of the law, almost certainly. I am being extremely generous on the terms I am offering to put this behind me, and I am holding the people responsible to a 10,000,000x lighter standard that has ever been applied to me anywhere, including at this bank that treated me so shamefully awful many times.

Message 1989 @: Had I went outside the workplace to get information about Tunny's health and false things about her life, then spread them all over the place and it destroyed her, we wouldn't be having this conversation. It wouldn't be at all questionable whether it is or is not a good thing for my church to be notified of my shortcomings. This is all in the light that I suffer from multiple conditions that are labeled as disabilities, and that no such generosity has to be applied to my situation as I apply to Jenny to make a psychological trait a disability.

Message 1990 @: This is not how anyone else would handle this situation. I cannot be more willing to work with people.

Message 1991 @ 2019-05-15 23:30:27: I have mercy on people or at least try to, but this is not going to go on forever. There is no need for me to have this discussion and I do it out of kindness and of not wanting to hurt people, who are quite comfortable letting me live in misery.

Message 1992 @ 2019-05-17 11:23:17 - Clint: Or maybe we could do this. If someone can send me an anonymous email to [REDACTED] .com with what "might have been said"

Message 1993 @: I don't want to cause a big ruckus over this. It destroys me on and off. I actually was pretty ok yesterday and am getting better I think.

Message 1994 @: Now I am not so much worried about something horrifically false that people are believing as I am just hurt that I wanted to keep all that place away from Charlotte and that has been ruined.

Message 1995 @: I know that many people in wells

Fargo heard whatever it was. The extreme reluctance to talk about it worries me at times. I can only imagine what horrible things might have been said.

Message 1996 @: I would by far prefer to have a call with everyone involved. Jenny won't join I don't think. We probably wouldn't even tell her until it already happened, at the most. I think that if she sees that I am cool as a cucumber after the fact and that I don't hold anything against anyone she might be easier to get to talk.

Message 1997 @: I want to be at home if we have a call so that I can record it for my records. Also so that I can be where I am comfortable. I will likely break down at some point when we talk. I might break down several times. But it will solve my issue. I will be a ok after the fact.

Message 1998 @ 2019-05-17 13:00:30 - Courtney: I'm sorry this continues to cause you suffering, but like I said, I haven't heard any discussion (whether true or false) about your health or past. I know you think whatever it was has spread around Charlotte and/or the bank, but I really think it is much more isolated. I highly doubt Tunny would share any such information if she had it. I'm also not sure what she would have to gain from sharing it. She has been in another department for well over a year at this point. I'm not sure if the timing at which you think she heard information about you (was it told to her by Jenny?), but I never heard anything of it while she was with or since she's left us. I also don't remember seeing her act any differently towards you. From my interactions with her, I believe she is a person of integrity that wouldn't spread other people's business whether true or false. Also, I'm still curious about the comments regarding your treatment while you were at the bank. I believe you were treated fairly and often afforded additional flexibility with your schedule to accommodate any of your health needs because we believed that was the right thing to do. Regarding a call, I honestly don't think those that you believe might know information (other than Tunny, Jenny, and the Abbey girl) would agree, especially if these are people you have lashed out at and demanded information from. How do you know that this isn't isolated to just Jenny and her inner circle of friends and/or family that she may have shared this with...possibly extending to Tunny since you believe Jenny shared with her? Who else are you wanting to involve? Aren't you ultimately worried about sharing details of your life with people that likely don't already know and have no business knowing?

Message 1999 @ 2019-05-17 13:01:19 - Courtney: I know you said that you are an open book. I'm just concerned about you stressing yourself out about the whole situation more if you start asking more people that might have heard anything.

Message 2000 @ 2019-05-17 13:02:43: Let me explain

Message 2001 @ 2019-05-17 13:03:03: I have numerous concerns. But for now let's forget about any of that Message 2002 @ 2019-05-17 13:03:32 - Clint: So my first concern when this happened was that whatever overblown thing that was said about me in the mountains was said up here

Message 2003 @ 2019-05-17 13:03:45 - Clint: That was before I knew who Abbey was getting her info from

Message 2004 @ 2019-05-17 13:05:05 - Clint: The reason that stresses me out so much is back home, whatever it was that was said, no one would tell me and I could tell that it was getting all over the place.

Message 2005 @: So it was that I never had the chance to respond and that I had no idea how far it would follow me.

Message 2006 @: Some of this was a deliberate attempt by people out to destroy me

Message 2007 @ 2019-05-17 13:06:20 - Clint: So the fact that people from there have been contacted makes me feel like I am tethered to Charlotte forever until I figure out what happened. I feel like I've got to babysit this situation because I have no idea if people here have been recruited into the effort, by being told whatever it was

Message 2008 @ 2019-05-17 13:06:31 - Clint: And absolutely I am an open book

Message 2009 @ 2019-05-17 13:06:56 - Clint: But I am not comfortable with horrible lies being told and people believing them with me having no chance to clear it up

Message 2010 @ 2019-05-17 13:07:25 - Clint: I have reason to believe that the people back home were telling people that I was a psychopathic killer

Message 2011 @ 2019-05-17 13:07:35 - Clint: And that they should warn people about me

Message 2012 @ 2019-05-17 13:07:45: As a way to spread it as far as possible

Message 2013 @ 2019-05-17 13:08:01 - Clint: And that that was the reason no one would tell me. They literally believed this 2019-05-17 13:08:16

So idk if someone has been duped into thinking that here

Message 2014 @ 2019-05-17 13:08:36 - Clint: And any info people up there get about me will be used to destroy me more

Message 2015 @ 2019-05-17 13:09:14 - Clint: And the second they get a hint that they've got someone on the line that knows stuff about my daily life and where I work, etc they will be on that person like no tomorrow

Message 2016 @ 2019-05-17 13:09:20 - Courtney: I completely understand your concerns, but I doubt people here are as close minded than the folks back home. If Tunny, Jenny, or anyone else heard anything like that they'd know it wasn't true. Banks and most large corporations do background checks!

Message 2017 @ 2019-05-17 13:09:49: I am certain that years ago when I worked at a gas station, one of them told the manager that I was stealing

Message 2018 @ 2019-05-17 13:09:55: Totally out of malice

Message 2019 @ 2019-05-17 13:10:03 - Clint: That's the kind of stuff they do

Message 2020 @ 2019-05-17 13:10:08 - Clint: Whatever they can to ruin me

Message 2021 @ 2019-05-17 13:10:16 - Clint: But I think you are right

Message 2022 @ 2019-05-17 13:10:23 - Courtney: I'm sorry that they were so cruel to you there

Message 2023 @ 2019-05-17 13:10:40 - Clint: I just wish I had some way to know that none of these people would ever be talked to again

Message 2024 @ 2019-05-17 13:10:57 - Clint: Bc I know for a fact that Jenny has talked to one of them recently

Message 2025 @ 2019-05-17 13:11:03: In the past month

Message 2026 @ 2019-05-17 13:11:04 - Clint: I think Jenny just went asking questions out of pure human curiosity and probably feels terrible for doing so 2019-05-17 13:11:10

Yes

Message 2027 @ 2019-05-17 13:11:15: That's another thing

Message 2028 @ 2019-05-17 13:11:20: I doubt she believes any horrible things they might have said to her

Message 2029 @ 2019-05-17 13:11:23: I don't want to hurt her

Message 2030 @ 2019-05-17 13:11:37: I don't think she'd continue talking to you if she did!

Message 2031 @ 2019-05-17 13:11:57 - Clint: Jenny has a quality similar to what narcissistic people have, except she has a conscience and a heart

Message 2032 @ 2019-05-17 13:12:05 - Clint: That is what I have determined

Message 2033 @ 2019-05-17 13:12:16 - Courtney: I honestly think she cares about you. I could always tell while you two worked together.

Message 2034 @ 2019-05-17 13:13:13 - Clint: She has to maintain a perception of herself that she is perfect, but it is not out of self absorption, it is out of her inability to separate her actions from her as a person

Message 2035 @ 2019-05-17 13:13:37 - Clint: She feels like if she does something wrong she IS something wrong, and she does this subconsciously

Message 2036 @ 2019-05-17 13:13:50 - Clint: Maybe partially consciously

Message 2037 @ 2019-05-17 13:14:14 - Clint: So for her to make a mistake is to BE as mistake

Message 2038 @ 2019-05-17 13:14:23: A mistake* not as Message 2039 @ 2019-05-17 13:14:33 - Courtney: I'd kindly ask her to please stop speaking to anyone from back home because it causes you pain. Let her know that if she's your friend and truly cares, she would stop. See where that goes.

Message 2040 @ 2019-05-17 13:14:44 - Clint: And yes those people were terrible

Message 2041 @ 2019-05-17 13:14:54: Are you sure she's still speaking to someone?

Message 2042 @ 2019-05-17 13:14:55 - Clint: That place is full of rotten people

Message 2043 @ 2019-05-17 13:15:08: That she has at least once in the past month

Message 2044 @ 2019-05-17 13:15:16: It's complicated

Message 2045 @ 2019-05-17 13:17:11 - Clint: But basically I reopened that Facebook account and made a dummy post that sounded like it was all about Jenny, and said that this person had spread stuff about me and that I was going to post all the details of her personal life.

Message 2046 @: I befriended myself on several old profiles that I have so that it looked like it was a general post for my friends, but in reality it was only shown to abbey and me

Message 2047 @ 2019-05-17 13:17:41: I was going to see what happened because if no one is talking to her then I shouldn't hear a peep in Charlotte

Message 2048 @ 2019-05-17 13:17:57: But that's not what happened, as I knew it wouldn't

Message 2049 @ 2019-05-17 13:18:22 - Clint: I do things to stir the pot sometimes when I get desperate to find out what happened

Message 2050 @ 2019-05-17 13:18:52 - Clint: But we will forget it for now. For any plans to do anything about it

Message 2051 @ 2019-05-17 13:19:20 - Clint: I do not think there is a statute of limitations on attempted murder and these people will be held accountable one day

Message 2052 @ 2019-05-17 13:19:27 - Clint: All of their lies will be exposed

Message 2053 @ 2019-05-17 13:23:04 - Clint: But if someone were to find out what was said if they would send an anonymous email that would help a lot.

Message 2054 @: I have told Jenny every single thing about me since this all happened and I would likely have anyways.

Message 2055 @: I at some point figured that everyone in Wells Fargo had heard every true and also every untrue thing about my life, so I saw no point in not telling her all of it.

Message 2056 @: I wanted to do it more slowly. Part of the reason that I am an open book is that I can defend my life. I cannot defend many of my actions in the past. They are inexcusable. But I can defend me as a person for how I have managed my life given my limitations

Message 2057 @ 2019-05-17 13:23:44 - Clint: I am the only person I know that has reached out and offered money over abuse he dealt out to other kids when he was 11 years old

Message 2058 @ 2019-05-17 13:24:29 - Clint: Most "bullies" as they call them today go about their lives. Some probably never feel bad about it. The rest just chalk it up to being a kid and feel no responsibility Message 2059 @ 2019-05-17 13:25:30 - Clint: But me it bothers me and I want to be even with everyone when I leave this earth forever. I don't want anyone to have been worse off because of Leonard Clinton Williams III.

Message 2060 @ 2019-05-17 13:26:18 - Clint: So it's not the truth at all. It's the active campaign to destroy me by telling lies

Message 2061 @ 2019-05-17 13:27:04 - Clint: And the fact that people don't understand why people go to hospitals like I do, so they are easy to buy some load of garbage about me being a psychopathic killer, or a future one more likely

Message 2062 @ 2019-05-17 13:28:36 - Clint: And when it all comes out, there will be several super model looking girls that will see that their initial perception of me was right and that these people are just pathetic human beings

Message 2063 @ 2019-05-17 13:29:15 - Clint: Also some standard issue hotties that don't quite hit a 10

Message 2064 @ 2019-05-17 13:29:44: I really don't give a crap about most of the guys up there. They're worthless for the most part

Message 2065 @ 2019-05-17 13:31:19: But I have never done anything that wrong. I am more innocent than 50% of the people I know, at minimum, and more innocent than 90% of people in that hell hole where I lived

Message 2066 @ 2019-05-17 13:47:21 - Courtney: Ahhh...ok! Definitely no statue of limitations and I hope whoever was involved with that situation is punished to the full extent of the law! I can appreciate the wanting to be even before you leave the earth! It's great that you reached out to people that you were mean to as a kid! Glad you moved away from there. Definitely sounds like lots of evil people live there.

Message 2067 @ 2019-05-17 13:48:43: Yes they are rotten

Message 2068 @ 2019-05-17 13:48:50 - Clint: I don't fully understand why

Message 2069 @ 2019-05-17 13:50:07 - Clint: It is corruption everywhere. I think that somehow there is some genetic thing for people that have lived there for generations. It is also just the worst, most tribal aspects of human nature being brought out by the contained small environment

Message 2070 @ 2019-05-17 13:50:15: I could go on for days

Message 2071 @ 2019-05-17 13:50:49 - Clint: There is one place up there called Buck Mountain [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

Message 2072 @ 2019-05-17 13:52:11 - Clint: But what outsiders don't realize is that the people living in the main area aren't what they're cracked up to be. It seems like this nice place where people have a twang sound when they talk and there is a church every 4 miles, and all this beautiful scenery. But stick around and you'll realize you are in hell
[REDACTED]

Message 2074 @ 2019-05-17 13:54:58 - Clint: Wtf is wrong with these people. If I had a nickel for every time some "good boys" as they are perceived by people, were involved in something like that I wouldn't have to worry about money ever again
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

Message 2076 @ 2019-05-17 13:56:27 - Courtney: That's horrible! How can he just decide not to investigate. Disgusting!

Message 2077 @ 2019-05-17 13:56:37: Wow! That's crazy! 2019-05-17 13:57:09 - Clint:

Yes. It's who you are and who you know and if you're on the good side you get away with anything.

Message 2078 @ 2019-05-17 13:57:18 - Clint: They play by their own rules

Message 2079 @ 2019-05-17 13:57:35 - Clint: The narc detective was friends with the owner of that restaurant

Message 2080 @ 2019-05-17 13:57:48: Of course! Unfortunately, a lot of small towns have those flaws.

Message 2081 @ 2019-05-17 13:58:20 - Clint: He would go around asking these 16 year old girls voyeuristic questions about what all they had did with the various grown men that were preying on them there

Message 2082 @ 2019-05-17 13:59:43 - Clint: One of them was a guy named Doug who was nicknamed, by himself as "Pedophile Doug" and they joked that he should wear a cape and have PD in a diamond on the front, and he would hold his arms out like Superman flying when they talked about it as a joke

Message 2083 @ 2019-05-17 14:00:53: So this narc detective, who by the way also directly propositioned girls who worked there right in front of everyone, would be asking some 16 year old girl "did Doug ever. "

Message 2084 @ 2019-05-17 14:03:47 - Clint: He offered one girl some stereo equipment for "one time in the cooler" and I guarantee that stereo equipment was stolen from some drug bust he did. People complained about him robbing them when he pulled them over. And he always had stuff to sell that make no sense in any light other than that he was selling for personal gain stuff he had taken from people he arrested.

Message 2085 @: He resigned over a slew of charges they made against him, including hosting “sex and drug parties” with high school girls, using stuff from the evidence room

Message 2086 @ 2019-05-17 14:22:33 - Clint: But word of advice, if you’re ever up there sight seeing, which I encourage you to do if you have the chance because it is gorgeous up there [REDACTED]

Message 2087 @ 2019-05-17 14:23:23 - Clint: [REDACTED]

Message 2088 @ 2019-05-17 14:47:09 - Courtney: That’s crazy! Ahhhh...so real “mountain people”. I’ll be sure to avoid it. I’m out in the mountains all of the time hiking. I’ve never been to beech mountain, but I frequent the linville area.

Message 2089 @ 2019-05-17 14:47:21: Oh nice

Message 2090 @ 2019-05-17 14:47:25: That is right there

Message 2091 @ 2019-05-17 14:47:56 - Clint:

Buck mountain is near Linville. Id say about 15 mins

Message 2092 @ 2019-05-17 14:48:02 - Clint: Please don’t speak my name lol

Message 2093 @ 2019-05-17 14:48:35: State and Federal level law enforcement might want to see what you’ve told them at some point

Message 2094 @ 2019-05-17 14:48:51 - Clint: But yeah, Buck Mountain is notorious

Message 2095 @ 2019-05-17 14:49:07: Some good people the live there and some extremely mean people too

Message 2096 @ 2019-05-17 14:49:17 - Courtney: I don’t speak to people while I’m hiking

Message 2097 @ 2019-05-17 14:49:21: My moms ex boyfriend lived up there

Message 2098 @ 2019-05-17 14:49:29: He was a real nice guy but tough as hell

Message 2099 @ 2019-05-17 14:50:02 - Clint: He said how it was the people up there would try to plow all over you and you had to come back at them like hell to keep them off

Message 2100 @ 2019-05-17 14:51:02 - Clint: Told me about how this guy named Billy Johnson stopped him in the middle of the road and “not asked me, but informed me that I was taking him to the beer store, or he’s going to kill me”

Message 2101 @ 2019-05-17 14:52:05: This dudes name was mike and he said he proceeded to make Billy Johnson terrified for his life chasing them through the wildness or something. I can’t remember what he said he did but it was pretty extreme and let him know that he better not try that on him again

Message 2102 @ 2019-05-17 14:52:17: The main family that lives up there is the Oakes family

Message 2103 @ 2019-05-17 14:53:50: This dude that threatened him with his life over the beer store, Billy Johnson, had gotten out early on a 10 year prison sentence for participating with 4 of the Oakes brothers in gang assaulting and torturing 4 high school girls on the Appalachian trail, at shotgun point no less

Message 2104 @ 2019-05-17 14:54:35 - Clint: They tortured those girls horrifically, aside from the sexual assaults over a period of hours

Message 2105 @ 2019-05-17 14:54:59 - Clint: Put fish hooks in their eyelids and then poured moonshine in their eyes

Message 2106 @ 2019-05-17 14:55:32 - Clint: And why the hell you only get 10 years or that and then get out early is beyond me

Message 2107 @ 2019-05-17 14:55:32: Holy crap

Message 2108 @ 2019-05-17 14:55:45 - Clint: It was in the 70s if I remember right

Message 2109 @ 2019-05-17 14:55:55 - Clint: Back then that crime wasn't taken as seriously

Message 2110 @ 2019-05-17 14:56:17: Yes. What this guy told me was that for most of the time he lived up there the police refused to go up there

[REDACTED]

Message 2112 @ 2019-05-17 14:58:10 - Clint: And if you buy land up there and build a house, like some unsuspecting outsiders have done over how beautiful it is, don't piss them off

Message 2113 @ 2019-05-17 14:58:39 - Clint: Quite likely they will burn your house down whether you make them mad or not, but they are much better about that now

Message 2114 @ 2019-05-17 14:59:19: Yikes

Message 2115 @ 2019-05-17 14:59:26:

[REDACTED] told me about this man from Florida came up there and bought a big swath of land and put a house and some cattle behind a fence

Message 2116 @ 2019-05-17 14:59:38: This was in the past 10 years

Message 2117 @ 2019-05-17 15:00:03 - Clint: All was well until he decided to post a "no hunting no trespassing" sign on his land

Message 2118 @ 2019-05-17 15:00:06 - Courtney: Good to know. I want to buy a cabin up in the mountains eventually, but it will probably be Gatlinburg, TN.

Message 2119 @ 2019-05-17 15:00:08: Big damn mistake

Message 2120 @ 2019-05-17 15:00:39 - Clint: House instantly torched to the ground, shotgun shells buried in every head of cattle

Message 2121 @ 2019-05-17 15:00:56: That's crazy

Message 2122 @ 2019-05-17 15:01:06 - Clint: The Oakes own that mountain, no matter how much you pay for any piece of it

Message 2123 @ 2019-05-17 15:01:24 - Clint: Tell them they can't do anything on THEIR mountain and watch what happens to you

Message 2127 @ 2019-05-17 15:10:14: Yeah Gatlinburg is nice

Message 2128 @ 2019-05-17 15:10:38: Probably more affordable than the N.C. mountains [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Message 2129 @ 2019-05-17 15:11:02: So since you've been up there have you heard of a place called Seven Devils?

Message 2130 @ 2019-05-17 15:15:16: Wow! Yeah, it's pretty affordable. Yes, but I've never been before.

Message 2131 @ 2019-05-17 15:16:16: I recently learned that I am a direct descendant of one of the seven Devils the mountain is named after

Message 2132 @ 2019-05-17 15:18:55 - Clint: The legend goes that they had heard all of this references to 7 and the devil. There were seven mountain peaks, and the wind blowing in the winter was supposed to sound like the whistling of the devil, and then there was a story about one of the original families to Live there. A man named Billy Winters was supposed to have 7 sons who were mean as the devil

Message 2133 @ 2019-05-17 15:20:01 - Clint: My grandfather had apparently told us this and I was just too young to remember, but about a year ago I was talking to my aunt and William Winters son Daniel is my maternal grandfathers 4th or 5th great grandfather

Message 2134 @ 2019-05-17 15:20:25 - Clint: But all of that repeated seven and the devil was what they named it after

Message 2135 @ 2019-05-17 15:21:43: Clint: <https://www.ancestry.com/boards/thread.aspx?mv=flat&m=768&p=surnames.winters>

Message 2136 @ 2019-05-17 15:25:28: Wow. That's neat!

Message 2137 @ 2019-05-17 15:29:47: Here's another one

Message 2138 @ 2019-05-17 15:29:51: <http://familyhistory4u.blogspot.com/2009/08/seven-devils.html?m=1>

Message 2139 @ 2019-05-17 15:33:22: And I do admit to being a tad bit vain about all of the unique stuff tied to my family

Message 2140 @ 2019-05-17 15:34:11 - Clint: I'm also kin to Johnny Cash's daughter or wife. I can't remember which. Her name was June Cash

Message 2141 @ 2019-05-17 15:34:19: Clint: June Carter Cash

Message 2142 @ 2019-05-17 15:36:49: On my mom's side, I'm tied to the first pilgrim born aboard the Mayflower while in harbor, Peregrine White.

Message 2143 @ 2019-05-17 15:37:43 - Courtney: On my dad's side, I'm related to Franklin Pierce.

Message 2144 @ 2019-05-17 15:38:35: That's awesome

Message 2145 @ 2019-05-17 15:39:25 - Courtney: Other than that I had some vaudeville performers on my dad's side and a famous trick pool player, Joe Hood.

Message 2146 @ 2019-05-17 15:43:38 - Courtney: My dad has Joe's pool cues, an old original copy of the book he wrote, and some other stuff. It's pretty cool, but it's clearly not an inherited skill because I'm not that great at it

Message 2147 @ 2019-05-17 15:46:39: That is awesome!

Message 2148 @ 2019-05-17 15:46:59: I have almost certainly saw or read about Joe at some point Message 2149 @ 2019-05-17 15:47:06: Saw pictures that is

Message 2150 @ 2019-05-17 15:47:29 - Clint: It's not an inherited skill for anyone

Message 2151 @ 2019-05-17 15:47:40 - Clint: I used to play 18 hours week

Message 2152 @ 2019-05-17 15:47:54 - Clint: You spend your first 2 years doing that mostly racking balls

Message 2153 @ 2019-05-17 15:48:12: If you play in a real pool hall

Message 2154 @ 2019-05-17 15:48:46 - Clint: I won quite a bit gambling in the beginning though

Message 2155 @ 2019-05-17 15:49:07 - Clint: And that is rocking about the first pilgrim

Message 2156 @ 2019-05-17 15:50:13: That's great! It's definitely fun, but like you said, you have to spend a lot of time.

Yeah, my mom's family on her mom's side spent a lot of time documenting the family lineage. It's cool to know so far back

Message 2157 @ 2019-05-17 15:51:10 - Clint: When I started the pool hall I went to was mostly a bunch of wussies that were afraid to gamble. All good players constantly wanted to gamble and me being one of the few that did and being a beginner, I would get handicaps that were so extreme they had no chance

Message 2158 @ 2019-05-17 15:51:30: Yeah it is

Message 2159 @ 2019-05-17 15:51:38: It is very interesting

Message 2160 @ 2019-05-17 15:54:18 - Courtney:

I wish I knew more about my dad's side, but his mom died and I know nothing about his biological dad. I know his step father was a horribly abusive alcoholic. I know a bit about my grandfather's side, but just his mom's side. I actually have immigration documents from when they came to the US from England via Canada.

Message 2161 @ 2019-05-17 15:55:14: Do you still play pool?

Message 2162 @ 2019-05-17 15:59:33: Not much at all

Message 2163 @ 2019-05-17 15:59:45: Once every 4 or 5 months

Message 2164 @ 2019-05-17 16:00:00:

At my best I was semi pro level

Message 2165 @ 2019-05-17 16:00:35 - Clint: I played Gerda Hoffstatter a race to 5 in an exhibition when I was 17. She won 5-3

Message 2166 @ 2019-05-17 16:00:57 - Clint: I do my been playing about 1.5 years

Message 2167 @ 2019-05-17 16:02:01 - Clint: Yeah these horribly abusive alcoholics make life hard.

Message 2168 @ 2019-05-17 16:41:27 - Clint: And Joes pool cues might be worth some $$

Message 2169 @ 2019-05-17 16:42:03: This guy was alive during what era? I'm going to look him up. I will recognize when I see him

Message 2170 @ 2019-05-17 16:46:27: Oh yeah

Message 2171 @ 2019-05-17 16:46:56: He's the one from late 18th century who wrote at least one book I believe

Message 2172 @ 2019-05-17 16:47:17 - Clint: One of the first professional trick shot players.

Message 2173 @ 2019-05-17 17:44:12 - Clint: They all had that neat and trim appearance

Message 2174 @ 2019-05-17 17:44:36 - Clint: Back then. Not the biker with a cigarette hanging out of the mouth

Message 2175 @ 2019-05-17 18:01:09 - Clint: This is going to destroy me

Message 2176 @ 2019-05-17 18:01:29 - Clint: Tunny would know who she told

Message 2177 @ 2019-05-17 18:02:24 - Clint: I am certain there are people in Wells Fargo for whom who all have heard something is not nearly a mystery

Message 2178 @ 2019-05-17 18:02:30 - Clint: But I just want to know what happened

Message 2179 @ 2019-05-17 18:02:35: But forget it

Message 2180 @ 2019-05-17 18:02:55 - Clint: I break down every single day and there is no end

Message 2181 @ 2019-05-17 18:03:06 - Clint: I'm crushed like hell right now

Message 2182 @ 2019-05-17 18:03:26: This is what I just typed to Jenny

Message 2183 @ 2019-05-17 18:03:46: You would understand if you were me and you couldn't get a girlfriend for 15 years over these people and what they did to you, and the same garbag they say made it up here and you could see it in the way people treated you instantly

Message 2184 @ 2019-05-17 18:04:02 - Clint: I will never have another girlfriend for the rest of my life and I will never know what it is like to be in love, because this hell finds me wherever I go, and there is no peephole to small for it to plow through like a freight train straight out of hell. and there doesn't exist such a thing as a person who could care any less what happens once it does.

Message 2185 @ 2019-05-17 18:04:09 - Courtney: Yeah, he was from way back! I hope you can find a way to move past the thought that anything has spread!!

Message 2186 @ 2019-05-17 18:04:14: This is reality

Message 2187 @ 2019-05-17 18:04:46: What?

Message 2188 @ 2019-05-17 18:05:06: Oh I see

Message 2189 @ 2019-05-17 18:05:18: Sent Sent

But I am not in the mood for anything light hearted

Message 2190 @ 2019-05-17 18:05:38 - Clint: There is no help for me so I'd might as well stop talking about it

Message 2191 @ 2019-05-17 18:05:59 - Courtney: I mean throughout Charlotte and potentially in the bank. I really think it is more contained.

Message 2192 @ 2019-05-17 18:06:17: What'd Jenny say?

Message 2193 @ 2019-05-17 18:06:22: It is a small world

Message 2194 @ 2019-05-17 18:06:43 - Clint:

I will not be able to avoid these people in this city

Message 2195 @ 2019-05-17 18:07:12 - Clint: And whatever it is that goes around, the default action is for whoever someone sees around me, to tell them

Message 2196 @ 2019-05-17 18:07:19: I only have one planet

Message 2197 @ 2019-05-17 18:07:25: Jenny says nothing

Message 2198 @ 2019-05-17 18:07:40 - Clint:

She is taking a nap and she will be pissed at me for bringing it up

Message 2199 @ 2019-05-17 18:08:09 - Clint: She needs to live in a world where this didn't happen and I screw that up every time I bring this up

Message 2200 @ 2019-05-17 18:08:38 - Clint: And she knows no boundaries to the lengths she will go to find back at this perceived aggression

Message 2201 @ 2019-05-17 18:10:16 - Clint: Like I say, it has something to do with me being a dangerous person I think

Message 2202 @ 2019-05-17 18:10:22: Or dishonest

Message 2203 @ 2019-05-17 18:10:36 - Clint: Or something that would make people feel obligated to tell someone else

Message 2204 @ 2019-05-17 18:10:50: Jenny is replying

Message 2205 @ 2019-05-17 18:11:26 - Clint: Her reply will come from this planet she lives on where the hell Im in has nothing to do with her and she didn't do anything

Message 2206 @ 2019-05-17 18:11:59 - Clint: It will totally disregard the truth and probably be an attack at me

Message 2207 @ 2019-05-17 18:12:07: She is very selfish

Message 2208 @ 2019-05-17 18:12:46 - Clint: She's giving and caring until her own lot is at stake and then she's like a bear protecting its cubs and all bets are off

Message 2209 @ 2019-05-17 18:13:12 - Clint: No amount of bloodshed is off the table if it is necessary to keep her from feeling less than perfect

Message 2210 @ 2019-05-17 18:15:36: It's going to piss me off to read this crock of shit she comes up with. It is just a waste of my time

Message 2211 @ 2019-05-17 18:33:06 - Clint: Ok so she actually had something decent to say

Message 2212 @ 2019-05-17 18:33:32 - Clint: I threw in there "I know it wasn't you but ..." before I went on a rant

Message 2213 @ 2019-05-17 18:33:44 - Clint: So that puts her in the sandbox where it's safe to play 2019-05-17 18:34:34

And I do think my lecturing her about the fact that she doesn't have to be perfect to be a good person is having an effect. I think she is getting an insight from what I told her

Message 2214 @ 2019-05-17 18:35:05 - Clint: Normally throwing in "I know it wasn't you.." doesn't immunize me from an attack

Message 2215 @ 2019-05-17 18:35:41 - Clint: This whole thing causes her terrible emotions and it feels to her like an attack when I bring it up, when I'm just trying to find the truth

Message 2216 @ 2019-05-17 18:36:12 - Clint: Lol she actually has cheered me up temporarily, which is nice for change

Message 2217 @ 2019-05-17 18:37:07 - Clint: And I get into some pretty profound moral philosophizing at times when we talk about this. I tend to make a big deal out of life

Message 2218 @ 2019-05-17 18:42:53 - Clint: This is what I typed her after I figured out what her issue was. It was several days later, but she said she felt like I was trying to make her a witch like the Salem witch trials

Message 2219 @ 2019-05-17 18:42:59 - Clint: But I will tell you this. I never thought you were a witch. I thought you were a good person who cares about people but for some very strange reason wouldn't tell me.

Message 2220 @: You are human Jenny. To be human is to do things that are wrong in big or small ways. There is no one who is exempt. Jenny the good person can and will do things that can be seen as morally wrong and are hurtful to others.

Message 2221 @: The things like this Jenny does say nothing whatsoever about Jenny the good person. Jenny is a good person before she does them and Jenny is still a good person after she does them. Jenny is a human being just like me and the limitations that all human beings have will make it inevitable that she will not be perfect in thought or deed.

Message 2222 @: The destruction I caused others before I had reached my 15th birthday is impossible to measure. I was absolutely horrible to other children from the ages of 9 all the way into high school. Some of these children had to talk to school counselor over what me and my friends put them through. One came to school crying in fourth grade. Without a doubt I have caused one or more of them pain and emotional problems that they still suffer from today. I cannot imagine the pain of being a child who only wants to have friends like all the other children, but who is instead made a sport to entertain me and the rest of the children who got entertainment out of being cruel to them. I cannot imagine that pain; I only know that it has to be unbearable. I did that. I did that to innocent little children. I took part in ruining their childhood and messing them up for life.

Message 2223 @: After all of this I still say I am a good person today. It is because my mistakes do not define me. My actions were not so much a reflection of me as they were a reflection of my limitations. To be that person who hurts children is not much less than the best I could have aspired to given my life and the fact that my brain wasn't half developed at my age.

Message 2224 @: I am a good person because I have enduring qualities of trying to do the right thing, and of caring about others. That I cannot escape my limitations 100% of the time and that I do things that are hurtful and cruel does not make me any less a person, it just makes me a person.

Message 2225 @: This is how you are too Jenny. You have good intentions for everything you do. You are as good as a person can get. I think you have a different definition of what doing something wrong means than I do. According to your definition I can tell you 100% you have never done anything wrong in your life, period. Not a chance. Would bet my immortal

Message 2226 @ 2019-05-17 18:43:37 - Clint: It seems to have worked like magic in solving some of her psychological quirks. She's acting quite differently

Message 2227 @ 2019-05-17 19:37:20 - Courtney: Hmmm...well, I'm glad she's cheered you up and what you said to her seems to have helped

Message 2229 @ 2019-05-17 19:38:07 - Clint: Cause I'm pretty sure that is the ultimate source

Message 2230 @ 2019-05-17 19:39:02 - Clint: I am not sure that Abbey would exaggeratedly make up stuff about me being at the hospital. That's the only thing I recall telling her that might sound bad to someone who didn't know better

Message 2231 @ 2019-05-17 19:39:47: He would be the only source of info Abbey has about my life

Message 2232 @ 2019-05-17 19:40:06: I can't think of anyone else now that her sister is out of the possibilities

Message 2233 @ 2019-05-17 19:40:46 - Clint: He claimed not to have a clue what it was that other people were saying about me when we were on good terms

Message 2234 @ 2019-05-17 19:41:02 - Clint: Claimed it made him mad too 2019-05-17 19:41:42

But his [REDACTED] told me "he doesn't care about you" and "he couldn't and say something like what he did" or something like that

Message 2235 @ 2019-05-17 19:42:18 - Clint: She refused to tell me because she said it would hurt my feelings but I will ask her and tell her about this situation

Message 2236 @ 2019-05-17 19:42:21: She will tell one

Message 2237 @ 2019-05-17 19:44:40 - Clint: Like I say, I don't care what was said. I care about knowing it. There is nothing so bad about my life that I cannot defend. Whatever I am accused of doing or being is garbage, I think. It is this hit and run, I tell people this and it ruins your reputation among the people I tell, then I exit stage left and somehow engineer the situation that it is impossible for you to respond to what I say, because the people I say it to will never, ever, ever, ever tell you

Message 2238 @ 2019-05-17 19:45:16 - Clint: I mean this is fucking ridiculous

Message 2239 @ 2019-05-17 19:46:37 - Clint: One of these days I'm going to take a blow torch to someone's face, or hold them over a Volcano. At this point I'm doubting that will work. For sure the past 700 people who have been told this would let me fall into a volcano before they told me

Message 2240 @ 2019-05-17 19:50:41: I mean I get mad as hell

Message 2241 @ 2019-05-17 19:55:40: I mean it is worth my life and the lives of potentially dozens of people to keep whatever the hell is being said about me from me. What could this bullshit be?

Message 2242 @: I cannot think of a sentence that could be constructed that does not directly threaten the creator of the universe that would be so taboo as to take five million years effort to still not get.

Message 2243 @: It is no problem for people to repeat this bullshit to any and everyone they meet, but they will never tell me

Message 2244 @ 2019-05-17 19:57:01 - Clint: I'm going to have to get legal help

Message 2245 @ 2019-05-17 19:57:04: This is garbage 2019-05-17 19:57:59

Maybe I can get the U.S. Military involved and see if the world's only superpower can get it out of these chickenshits mouths in front of me

Message 2246 @ 2019-05-17 19:59:24 - Clint: I am apparently someone so bad that it cannot be spoken. Some strange voodoo rule dictates that it is to be blasted to the known universe every time I walk out of The door

Message 2247 @ 2019-05-17 20:00:15 - Clint: I'm being too big of a wussy about it

Message 2248 @ 2019-05-17 20:00:27 - Clint: I'm asking people. Forget that. Hasn't worked for 15 years

Message 2249 @ 2019-05-17 20:00:42 - Clint: Actually scratch that, we're not at 22 years

Message 2250 @ 2019-05-17 20:00:49: Now

Message 2251 @ 2019-05-17 20:16:31: It's probably something obviously untrue to anyone with half a brain

Message 2252 @ 2019-05-17 20:17:20: Well the other half of their brain doesn't know better than to treat me like a criminal with a terrible disease and tell other people

Message 2253 @ 2019-05-17 20:17:52: And I'm mad as hell right now and am about to speak in very negative terms about Wells Fargo

Message 2254 @ 2019-05-17 20:18:08: Well, you did say the people back home weren't the sharpest

Message 2255 @ 2019-05-17 20:18:26 - Clint: Have already texted some very true and not flattering things about the banks

Message 2256 @ 2019-05-17 20:18:28: Bank

Message 2257 @ 2019-05-17 20:18:34: Singular

Message 2258 @ 2019-05-17 20:18:44: Why wells?

Message 2259 @ 2019-05-17 20:18:52: Sent Sent

And am waiting for my friend to respond

Message 2260 @ 2019-05-17 20:19:04 - Clint: Well I'm doing everyone favor

Message 2261 @ 2019-05-17 20:19:20: First I tell you that I'm saying something bad

Message 2262 @ 2019-05-17 20:19:35 - Clint: Second what I am saying is 100% true in my mind

Message 2263 @ 2019-05-17 20:19:59 - Clint: And now I'm asked to take the extraordinary step of telling you what I am saying about you and why

Message 2264 @ 2019-05-17 20:20:35 - Clint: Because this shit was spread there and I know it

Message 2265 @ 2019-05-17 20:22:00 - Courtney: Speaking about me? For what? Being a decent human being and responding to your texts? Not telling you what you want to hear even though it is the truth?

Message 2266 @ 2019-05-17 20:22:12: No not you personally

Message 2267 @ 2019-05-17 20:22:29 - Courtney: Received

Ok, I was scratching my head there for a moment

Message 2268 @ 2019-05-17 20:22:45 - Clint: But the fact that I have begged people at this bank to tell me on the verge of death and they will not Message 2269 @ 2019-05-17 20:23:00: Who? Tunny?

Message 2270 @ 2019-05-17 20:23:04: If the bank doesn't like how that reflects on them then sorry

Message 2271 @ 2019-05-17 20:23:10: Yes and also Nikita

Message 2272 @ 2019-05-17 20:23:14: Terra one time

Message 2273 @ 2019-05-17 20:23:17: Ryan

Message 2274 @ 2019-05-17 20:23:27: But Tunny for sure knows

Message 2275 @ 2019-05-17 20:23:47: Sent Sent Sent

The facts are not going to be censored 2019-05-17 20:24:04

I am sorry but I live through too much hell over this Message 2276 @ 2019-05-17 20:24:31 - Clint: And as long as it is only my problem it will be my problem

Message 2277 @ 2019-05-17 20:24:45 - Clint: That's is what is obvious

Message 2278 @ 2019-05-17 20:24:59 - Courtney: I would say that it is highly unlikely that they know nothing. I'd be surprised if they did. They likely would have spoken to a member of management if you approached them while you were still there, but none of them did.

Message 2279 @ 2019-05-17 20:25:49 - Clint: And you and everyone else that hasn't had this happen should be glad that you've never sat in tears and thought of how you couldn't take it and that your poor mother would have to sell everything she owns to give you a burial

Message 2280 @ 2019-05-17 20:26:05 - Clint: You don't know what pain is until You've been there

Message 2281 @ 2019-05-17 20:26:10 - Clint: And that's where I've been over this Message 2282 @ 2019-05-17 20:26:24: And say they did hear something, how would they be of fault if it was simply spoken by someone else (i.e. Jenny since you think she would be the source) without them inquiring?

Message 2283 @ 2019-05-17 20:26:45: I have no idea

Message 2284 @ 2019-05-17 20:27:02 - Clint: I am not talking of being at fault

Message 2285 @ 2019-05-17 20:27:10: And it is pointless to bring that up

Message 2286 @ 2019-05-17 20:27:22 - Clint: But Tunny knows and she won't tell me

Message 2287 @ 2019-05-17 20:27:41 - Clint: Despite that I have told her on the verge of death that it would be forgiven instantly

Message 2288 @ 2019-05-17 20:28:05 - Clint: I see no reason to excuse an adult human being for this behavior 2019-05-17 20:28:28

I am apparently less than human over whatever garbage has been said about me

Message 2289 @ 2019-05-17 20:28:52: And I'm not human enough to be given the opportunity to respond

Message 2290 @ 2019-05-17 20:29:13 - Courtney: I'm so sorry that the evil from home haunts you so much that you think it would follow you here and spread across you previous place of employment. I'm unless Jenny shouted it from the rooftops (she definitely didn't), I doubt it's farther than her or maybe Tunny since you are pretty convinced she knows.

Message 2291 @ 2019-05-17 20:29:33 - Clint: I don't even deserve to know what was said. It's apparently gratifying to add that extra torture to the mix

Message 2292 @ 2019-05-17 20:30:01 - Courtney: I don't think anyone thinks that of you, aside from the evil ppl back home who really don't matter anyhow

Message 2293 @ 2019-05-17 20:30:14 - Clint: Yeah but can you not see how I would be in permanent limbo over the fact that they won't tell me

Message 2294 @ 2019-05-17 20:30:29: It is a total mystery

Message 2295 @ 2019-05-17 20:30:51 - Clint: I cannot think of anything at all that would merit these circumstances

Message 2296 @ 2019-05-17 20:31:07 - Clint: And the next time someone says it, or one of the next 1,000 times I need to be able to respond

Message 2297 @ 2019-05-17 20:31:46 - Clint: I mean anything I can think of that bad I would have been nabbed by the FBI before anyone had a chance to tell a soul

Message 2298 @ 2019-05-17 20:32:06 - Courtney: If I knew whatever it was, I would surely tell you. I would hope the same of others. Those that you listed are people of integrity. Many don't sugar coat either, so I don't think they'd avoid telling you.

Message 2299 @ 2019-05-17 20:32:12 - Clint: I have hints of what it might be and theories

Message 2300 @ 2019-05-17 20:32:29 - Clint: But i can't run down the list with everyone I meet 2019-05-17 20:33:00

I understand how torturous it must be to know that ppl might have heard something that is untrue and you can't defend it.

Message 2301 @ 2019-05-17 20:33:01: I can't say- Clint:

Message 2302 @: Just so you know I'm not a psychopathic killer.

Message 2303 @ 2019-05-17 20:33:17 - Clint: Yes and the fact that it ruined my life

Message 2304 @ 2019-05-17 20:33:32 - Clint: I am not overreacting to this 1%

Message 2305 @ 2019-05-17 20:33:51 - Clint: It would seem that way to someone who didn't live through that I did down there

Message 2306 @ 2019-05-17 20:35:02 - Courtney: I can tell you that I come from a small town too and I know people have spread lies about me and I can tell you I don't know all of them. Small towns are brutal.

Message 2307 @ 2019-05-17 20:35:57 - Clint: I spent years in bed at night thinking this exact thought "where could I get a gun? My grandfather used to have one and I bet it's at his house somewhere. Or I could Tell my friend that I want to shoot his cig and then turn it on myself before he can do anything about it. But it would suck if I didn't aim right because I would be a vegetable and I would be even more miserable"

Message 2308 @ 2019-05-17 20:36:32 - Clint: This was my life on and off for years

Message 2310 @ 2019-05-17 20:37:41 - Clint: And actually I'm not sure when it started, but for sure by the time I was 26. And there were people who used similar tactics at least since i was 16 I am sure

Message 2311 @ 2019-05-17 20:38:14: So if it seems like I'm

Making a big deal out of nothing, imagine living a solid 5 years of That Message 2312 @ 2019-05-17 20:38:24 - Clint: Dying like hell to know wtf people say

Message 2313 @ 2019-05-17 20:38:30: Then you come here Clint:

Message 2314 @ 2019-05-17 20:38:45: Whatever it is makes it here 2 seconds after someone has the opportunity Message 2315 @ 2019-05-17 20:38:56 - Clint: You show your Facebook page once and boom!

Message 2316 @ 2019-05-17 20:39:01: Instant hell

Message 2317 @ 2019-05-17 20:39:10 - Courtney: I'm sorry to hear that and I hope that you find a way to channel your feelings towards the situation in a constructive way. I know it likely doesn't feel this way, but the situation is not worth your life!!

Message 2318 @ 2019-05-17 20:39:11 - Clint: But you trust the people involved

Message 2319 @ 2019-05-17 20:39:24: You will ask them

Message 2320 @ 2019-05-17 20:39:43: Finally you will know what it is or at least stop it in its tracks

Message 2321 @ 2019-05-17 20:39:53: But hell no!!!'

Message 2322 @ 2019-05-17 20:40:01: What are you thinking

Message 2323 @ 2019-05-17 20:40:16 - Clint:

That's the world everyone else lives in, not you

Message 2324 @ 2019-05-17 20:40:37 - Clint: And THEY WILL LET YOU DIE before they tell you

Message 2325 @ 2019-05-17 20:41:07: Then lie their asses off for a year and a half

Message 2326 @ 2019-05-17 20:41:12: For no apparent benefit

Message 2327 @ 2019-05-17 20:41:32: Other than some trivial having to admit they did something wrong

Message 2328 @ 2019-05-17 20:42:20: You seem pretty convinced that Jenny has some sort of psychological condition that would prevent her from being truthful, so that would be a pretty good explanation of why she won't/can't tell you. Maybe she is truly the only one that knows anything here.

Message 2329 @ 2019-05-17 20:42:32: Yes she does

Message 2330 @ 2019-05-17 20:42:46: It is puzzling and took me a while to figure out

Message 2331 @ 2019-05-17 20:42:55: But that's it

Message 2332 @ 2019-05-17 20:43:15 - Clint: And I think she has read my thing a few times cause she's being a little different Message 2333 @ 2019-05-17 20:43:19: I know it's painful, but if that's the case, you're kind of between a rock and a hard place.

Message 2334 @ 2019-05-17 20:43:50 - Clint: Yeah well the hard place is not doable

Message 2335 @ 2019-05-17 20:44:01: Cause it makes my life hell

Message 2336 @ 2019-05-17 20:44:43 - Clint: And there is some amount of legal or other force that can be applied to someone somewhere to tell me what the hell was said

Message 2337 @ 2019-05-17 20:45:08 - Clint: And I am sorry for going off

Message 2338 @ 2019-05-17 20:45:19 - Clint: But this is the stupidest thing I've ever seen

Message 2339 @ 2019-05-17 20:46:16 - Clint: And like I say, to do this to someone cannot be legal. I have not much idea why, but there is no way it is in accordance with the law for this to happen

Message 2340 @ 2019-05-17 20:47:03 - Clint: And that is a very probable explanation or potential explanation for why people won't tell me, that's an alternative and I was actually happy when I thought that was the case

Message 2341 @ 2019-05-17 20:47:23 - Clint: The people know they've violated some law

Message 2342 @ 2019-05-17 20:47:28: And that's why Clint:

Message 2343 @ 2019-05-17 20:47:59: So all I have to do is emphasize that it is ok and I don't want to get anyone in trouble and will not

Message 2344 @ 2019-05-17 20:48:13: But nope. Dead end there

Message 2345 @ 2019-05-17 20:48:37: I understand. I'm certain I've suggested this before, but maybe your doctors can help you work through some sort of strategy that can help you fixate less on the situation. If there's a good possibility it lies with Jenny only, that's a plus! I know it bothers you what she might have heard, those back home, and the potential that others here have heard it, but maybe they can help you strategize. Maybe they can give you some direction...like trying to ask [REDACTED] what he's said about you since you think he's the source

Message 2346 @ 2019-05-17 20:49:06 - Clint: Yes that's what I'm doing. I'm asking her

Message 2347 @ 2019-05-17 20:49:20 - Clint: But there is no chance it is Jenny only

Message 2348 @ 2019-05-17 20:49:59 - Clint: There is a remotely remote chance it is Jenny as Tunny only but I'm doubting that in the extreme

Message 2412 @ 2019-05-17 22:27:58 - Clint: I may have been the first person he ever spoke well of behind their back. I have reason to believe. But like I say, he is composed as a human being to be full of hatred and cruelty and it takes too much effort for him to be anything else

Message 2414 @ 2019-05-17 22:30:02 - Clint: He's a bad example but like I say there are plenty of rotten people up there and I don't know why that is. There are a lot of good people too. But it's like a 60/40 or 70/30 and the bad ones are often not a little bad but very much so

Message 2416 @ 2019-05-17 22:55:41 - Clint: That kind of makes it clear who you're worried about

Message 2418 @ 2019-05-17 23:00:37: With Jenny?

Message 2420 @ 2019-05-17 23:03:01: That doesn't mean I'm worried about her. Just unclear what the church will really do other than say something to her about honesty and sins.

Message 2422 @ 2019-05-17 23:10:23: In the same camp as me

Message 2424 @ 2019-05-17 23:13:34 - Clint: So you can see how my imagination runs wild with what this guy might have said

Message 2426 @ 2019-05-17 23:14:16 - Clint: And I cannot live through much more of it, is my fear

Message 2428 @ 2019-05-17 23:15:13 - Clint: He was pissed at me. He doesn't say nice stuff about people when he's on good terms with them

Message 2429 @ 2019-05-17 23:15:22 - Clint: It won't happen. But thank you

Message 2430 @ 2019-05-17 23:15:30 - Clint: I cry or almost cry every single day

Message 2431 @ 2019-05-17 23:15:39: It has destroyed me

Message 2432 @ 2019-05-17 23:15:48 - Clint: And that you can find a way to cope...maybe with the help of your doctors or through your own perseverance

Message 2433 @ 2019-05-17 23:15:53 - Courtney: I'm sorry

Message 2434 @ 2019-05-17 23:15:55: It won't happen

Message 2435 @ 2019-05-17 23:16:03: Yeah what can you do 2019-05-17 23:16:33

I want Tunny and Jenny and whoever else to be at my funeral whenever it happens

Message 2436 @ 2019-05-17 23:17:10 - Clint: I want them to see my poor mother obliterated when she puts me in the ground, after selling everything she owns to afford to do so

Message 2437 @ 2019-05-17 23:17:38 - Clint: So that they can see what has played in my mind on and off for 1.5 years

Message 2438 @ 2019-05-17 23:18:12 - Clint: And whatever they get from keeping the truth from me, I hope they get a lot of out it because it has been at an enormous price.

Message 2439 @ 2019-05-17 23:18:25 - Clint: The problem is I am the one who pays the price

Message 2440 @ 2019-05-17 23:18:38 - Clint: And I'm so subhuman that the fact that I am paying it doesn't matter

Message 2441 @ 2019-05-17 23:18:45: Not to them

Message 2442 @ 2019-05-17 23:19:19 - Clint: So it doesn't matter how much torment I go through. It all amounts to nothing no matter how much piles up

Message 2443 @ 2019-05-17 23:19:33 - Clint: Tunny is a nice and caring person

Message 2444 @ 2019-05-17 23:19:42:to everyone else

Message 2445 @ 2019-05-17 23:19:54: Which does me no good

Message 2446 @ 2019-05-17 23:20:03 - Clint:

I'm like a black man at a KKK rally

Message 2447 @ 2019-05-17 23:20:22: That everyone pats each other on the back does me no good

Message 2448 @ 2019-05-17 23:25:27: And sorry I take that back

Message 2449 @ 2019-05-17 23:25:46: I shouldn't say such things. But this drives me insane.

Message 2450 @ 2019-05-17 23:26:15: I cannot believe that people do this to me and then value me so little as to not just tell me so I can go on 2019-05-17 23:37:04

But sorry to go on a tirade with you

Message 2451 @ 2019-05-17 23:37:22 - Clint: I get caught up in this and I don't know how to deal with people

Message 2452 @ 2019-05-17 23:38:07 - Clint: It's so hard to try to judge what is right and wrong for someone else when you are so different than everyone else. It's like the best I will ever be able to do is to take a stab in the dark

Message 2453 @ 2019-05-18 09:56:37 - Clint: Sorry, went off the rails again. I'm going to try to drop this subject again.

Message 2454 @ 2019-05-18 10:21:20 - Clint: It won't happen. I'll be tormented by it sometime today or tonight. But I will try not to talk to you about or at least put down my phone when I start hyperfocusing on it career I will sign whatever they need to make sure they don't worry about it.

Message 2474 @: That's just an offer because I think at times of getting legal help over this and I would prefer not to. I try to drop it over and over, but it comes back and it would get rid of it if I could just talk to people. And I want to tell Tunny I am sorry for being cruel to her. I'll do that at some point in the distant future. I will send money to her church. So for the umpteenth time I'm going to try to drop it.

And it's your turn to unravel or at least dominate the conversation for a bit. I've enjoyed hearing about your history and lack of religious convictions

Message 2475 @ 2019-05-19 10:09:17 - Clint: And forget all of that. It is becoming clear that Jenny has used me and never cared about me for a second. I have been plowed all over by your bank and almost everyone in it that I worked with.

Message 2476 @ 2019-05-19 11:11:35: Hey sorry, I was at my sister's house and in the pool all day. I'll read through and reply when I get a moment. I'm trying to get ready to go back to work tomorrow, so it might be a little bit. Regarding the last text...I'm sure Jenny cares about you. You definitely weren't plowed over by the bank and I never witnessed anyone treating you unfairly.

Message 2477 @ 2019-05-19 11:14:05: Yes sorry

Message 2478 @ 2019-05-19 11:14:15 - Clint: I'm going nuts thinking about this

Message 2479 @ 2019-05-19 11:14:41 - Clint: For sure you didn't plow over me and for sure Shana didn't, or Christian or Jessica or Marco

Message 2480 @ 2019-05-19 11:14:59 - Clint: Or Bill. Plowed over is an overstatement in any case

Message 2481 @ 2019-05-19 11:15:14 - Clint: And I am sorry for saying something that may be hurtful

Message 2482 @ 2019-05-19 11:15:55 - Clint: But Jenny has started this "I need to take care of me" thing, that seems to suggest I have used her or imposed on her

Message 2483 @ 2019-05-19 11:18:00 - Clint: And to me it is quite the opposite. She has taken advantage of all my kindness. She has done a lot for me too. But she is saying that this situation has made her realize she needs to take care of her. But all I have been doing is trying to get the truth that she has, and she is the one who started this destruction. Had she not done what she did this situation would not exist. Had she told me the truth at any point and I was able to resolve it by that it would have been over

Message 2484 @ 2019-05-19 15:53:49: And I am very very sorry for anything I said that was hurtful. I try not to get in places where I act like that Message 2485 @ 2019-05-19 15:54:57 - Clint: To me in the moment it is as real as night and day and I appreciate you listening to all of this.

Message 2486 @: But I must be honest and say that I thought you had probably heard this at some point when I worked there. My imagination may have run wild

Message 2487 @ 2019-05-19 15:56:02 - Clint: But I drove up to the mountains to stay with my mom and meet my web design client. I've been thinking all the way here and it is clear that I am traumatizing Jenny

Message 2488 @ 2019-05-19 15:58:10: I've read up on this condition that she has, which doesn't have a name but is just described as a trait.

Message 2489 @: What these people do is they are so terrified of being exposed as a bad person over something they did wrong, their mind distorts facts to make them seem like they did nothing.

Message 2490 @: What has happened is I have pursuing the truth and I keep exposing the mismatch between reality and what she says. It is putting her mind in overdrive and it is killing her

Message 2491 @ 2019-05-19 15:58:25 - Clint: And make no mistake that I never doubted that you cared about me

Message 2492 @ 2019-05-19 15:58:45 - Clint: It just seemed like your opinion of me changed in a negative way

Message 2493 @ 2019-05-19 15:58:57 - Clint: I am sure I was just hyper sensitive

Message 2494 @ 2019-05-19 15:59:05: I haven't had a chance to read back yet. Between the endless laundry you can imagine for a family of 5, general tidying, and trying to get my daughter to sort through and get rid of some stuff, I haven't had a minute yet. I will read back for sure. I'm glad you drove out to see your mom and get away!

Message 2495 @ 2019-05-19 15:59:32: Ok perfect Sent Message 2496 @ 2019-05-19 16:00:09: But here is my problem with this situation. Jenny has gotten back in touch with these people out of something I did

Message 2497 @ 2019-05-19 16:00:25 - Clint: And I need her to quit talking to them immediately

Message 2498 @ 2019-05-19 16:00:39 - Clint: And she is disabled and I am putting her through hell

Message 2499 @ 2019-05-19 16:00:59 - Clint: And I owe you a big damn favor

Message 2500 @ 2019-05-19 16:01:07 - Courtney: My opinion never changed. Maybe you just sensed my need for a vacation after all of the project madness.

Message 2501 @ 2019-05-19 16:01:25 - Clint: I suck at laundry but if you need a website for some thing I will give you a bunch of free time

Message 2502 @ 2019-05-19 16:01:31 - Clint: Not sure what else I could do

Message 2503 @ 2019-05-19 16:01:51 - Clint: I offer accounting and tax work to other friends but in your case you've got that covered

Message 2504 @ 2019-05-19 16:02:03: But I am traumatizing Jenny

Message 2505 @ 2019-05-19 16:02:12: I broke down over it on the way over here

Message 2506 @ 2019-05-19 16:02:36 - Courtney: I appreciate that! I know that it bothers you that Jenny said that she needs to focus on her because of what she's done to you, but it's a good thing she realized it.

Message 2507 @ 2019-05-19 16:02:36 - Clint: And you want to know who I think is really at fault

Message 2508 @ 2019-05-19 16:02:53 - Courtney: Maybe that means you are closer to closure!

Message 2509 @ 2019-05-19 16:02:55 - Clint: After thinking about this Message 2510 @ 2019-05-19 16:03:07: Well she says she needs to focus on her

Message 2511 @ 2019-05-19 16:03:37 - Clint: Like that she has neglected herself out of caretaking me

Message 2512 @ 2019-05-19 16:04:08 - Clint: And she has but she doesn't acknowledge at all that the caretaking was triggered by what she did

Message 2513 @ 2019-05-19 16:04:25 - Clint: But here is who is responsible

Message 2514 @ 2019-05-19 16:04:25 - Courtney: Ohhh. I thought maybe she was realizing she had things she needed to work on

Message 2515 @ 2019-05-19 16:04:40 - Clint: Yeah she denies the whole thing

Message 2516 @ 2019-05-19 16:04:55 - Clint: She defends against this at all costs

Message 2517 @ 2019-05-19 16:05:34: And what happens is she constructs ever more intricate behaviors to make a reality where she did nothing wrong

Message 2518 @ 2019-05-19 16:05:59 - Clint: I found a guy whose books I own a few of

Message 2519 @ 2019-05-19 16:06:13 - Clint: That is an apparent expert on her thing

Message 2520 @ 2019-05-19 16:06:39: And it's like a literal reality warping mechanism that operates in people like hers

Message 2521 @ 2019-05-19 16:07:38: They are so terrified of what it would mean if they were less than perfect and did something wrong, their mind bends the facts and alters them to the extent that they can halfway consciously believe they did nothing

Message 2522 @ 2019-05-19 16:08:12 - Clint: This doctor had diagnosed me with autism is sharp as hell and seems like she needs some business. I can get her for an hour for $120

Message 2523 @ 2019-05-19 16:08:27 - Clint: I bet she would know exactly what to do 2019-05-19 16:09:35

If she doesn't I will email Guy Winch who is an apparent expert on this and offer him a bunch of my money for an hour of his time. He seems pretty high tier so I'd say it's going to take $500 to get him on the horn for an hour

Message 2524 @ 2019-05-19 16:10:49 - Clint: But here is who is to blame- the nameless, faceless, and quite probably dead people who put in place all of these hypersensitive laws about HR, privacy, people with disabilities, blah blah blah

Message 2525 @ 2019-05-19 16:12:36 - Clint: They were probably a bunch of ignorant bureaucrats like all people who make this crap.

Message 2526 @: They have no clue how people and workplaces work, obviously.

Message 2527 @: Another big culprit is lawyers who are money hungry to hammer someone every chance they get

Message 2528 @ 2019-05-19 16:12:55 - Clint: These laws have good intentions and good purposes

Message 2529 @ 2019-05-19 16:13:37 - Clint: But in my case they have made my life hell. They have made it so that something totally innocent my friend didn't know better to do was wrong, or at least potentially so

Message 2530 @ 2019-05-19 16:14:53 - Clint: And my friend happens to have this thing about never admitting to doing something wrong, and these people put it on paper that what she did is.

Message 2531 @: And I don't want to get in a legal discussion but let's just say that's the case hypothetically. It makes my point because this is what I believe

Message 2532 @ 2019-05-19 16:16:08 - Clint: So in the age where every company on the face of the earth knows everything about me through internet tracking cookies and artificial intelligence, a bunch of useless laws that are supposed to protect me in a bunch of idiots minds have caused this shit show mess

Message 2533 @ 2019-05-19 16:16:44 - Clint: And you don't have to address the legal aspect of this at all. Ignore the whole thing since you're on your work phone. I'm just ranting and this is exactly how I see it

Message 2534 @ 2019-05-19 16:16:59 - Clint: In no other context could this behavior be seen as wrong, period

Message 2535 @ 2019-05-19 16:17:35 - Clint: So now I've got to fix this situation 2019-05-19 16:18:16

My goals are to a) somehow get Jenny to drop communications with people and b) reverse the trauma I caused her Message 2536 @ 2019-05-19 16:19:04 - Clint: B) can be accomplished in the short term by using reality deflecting language and saying that me thinking this is my "illness"

Which seems to comfort her

Message 2537 @ 2019-05-19 16:25:07: And if you could possibly do this little thing for me when you get back. The people who I believe have heard these things are Ryan, Terra, Tunny, possibly some management, and some in that circle of the other three. Nikita may have

Message 2538 @: If you could let them know that I suspect that people outside of the bank have said some things about me that made it inside the bank, and that they are very hurtful no matter what they are, and that anything extreme is definitely false, and tell them I have good intentions and mean no one no harm. Apologize to Terra for the message I sent her. Apologize to Tunny also, and let her know that I wasn't joking at all when I told her I was in tears. That I had broken down repeatedly that day and on the other times I talked to her. And ask them to please keep whatever it was to themselves. If any of them have any influence over Jenny, see what they can do to keep her from talking to these people. Explain to them that people have bad intentions towards me, etc.

Message 2539 @: I think you are right that this can be contained. The only issue now is I have hit Jenny's reality warping mechanism with a sledgehammer day and night and it is killing her. So I've got to get her better

Message 2540 @ 2019-05-19 16:25:27 - Clint: But I will write you something to send to each of them

Message 2541 @ 2019-05-19 16:26:37 - Clint: I am pretty sure that Terra was told

And it made it to Ryan through her. Jenny has given definitely false info regarding how much she talks to Terra and I think she hides it for a reason

Message 2542 @ 2019-05-19 16:27:50 - Clint: Like I say, there is no point in you addressing this, but I do think that is what it is. I think she has gotten the idea on her own or been given it by someone else that she has done something legally wrong

Message 2543 @ 2019-05-19 16:28:48 - Clint: If that is the case I wouldn't have boo hooed over it for a second, and the only reason I've ever thought of Getting any legal people

Involved was to pry the truth out of people

Message 2544 @ 2019-05-19 18:40:09 - Clint: At one point I was threatening legal action at Tunny and Jenny.

Message 2545 @: I got so unbelievably mad that they wouldn't tell me the truth and were apparently cool with me dying, in my mind. I had told them both it would all be forgiven.

Message 2546 @: At some point around this time Jenny said she wanted to talk to my doctor. I told her they wouldn't let her but I could record us talking and they could see how "delusional" I was.

Message 2547 @: This accusing me of being "delusional" was a reality altering tactic to preserve her sanity, but I didn't recognize it at that time.

Message 2548 @: So I recorded a bunch of phone calls where I basically took the role of an interrogator. I talked to her exactly like an FBI agent talking to a top 10 fugitive would. That's how I sounded to myself. All of her explanations were obvious crap and her story got mixed up. She showed every sign of deception in the books. Every behavior you expect from someone who is lying their ass off she had, persistently over each conversation.

Message 2549 @: Then I worked it out in my mind that she didn't think I was being truthful when I said I wouldn't do anything. I told her I would just tell her what I thought happened and get it off my chest. I deleted the recordings. She went into bs mode again and I didn't know why, but I thought it was a sign she was totally self centered. I hyperfocused on the situation the rest of the night until it drove me mad and I started saying terrible stuff to her and calling her names that I never want to come out of my mouth again.

Message 2550 @: I had told her the process to get someone involuntarily hospitalized and she did that. Told the people a bunch of stuff about me having delusions. The first doctor was biased against me and I was worried, so I halfway agreed. Then they put me in "observation", which is what they do when someone contends that they are fine and its questionable if they have a problem.

Message 2551 @: I was of the mentality that if I had to halfway agree with them that's what I'd do, because I've been in that situation before and when a doctor gets biased against you it is hopeless to change their mind. They will keep you forever.

Message 2552 @: Over a period of 2 or 3 days a series of M.D. psychiatrists and psychiatrist assistants (I think they are some kind junior doctor like a physicians assistant) determined that I was my normal self and that my thoughts made sense. One of them told me "we put you in observation, which is what we often do in 'he said, she said' disputes like this. And it's a good thing that you were brought here because you've been examined and there is nothing"

Message 2553 @: So that's when I started being more honest as opposed to halfway saying I had some problem.

Message 2554 @ 2019-05-19 18:42:36 - Clint: At that time I had the mindset of all out war on all involved and of holding any and all involved over a barrel since that's what it would take. I'd take whatever damages I get and use them to hire private detectives to see if people involved still say stuff to others, and also spend it on myself for whatever it was I wanted. I had determined that people knew what was up and that they were all self centered

Message 2555 @ 2019-05-19 18:44:51 - Clint: So I had no reason not to go at people full force and hit them as hard as I can. And I would be justified over the suffering this had cost me.

Message 2556 @: I went back and forth with this in my mind, and got Jenny on another phone call since I deleted the old ones. I was the same interrogator. But when I hung up I felt absolutely terrible and started breaking down. That's when I text you the second time to discuss this Message 2557 @ 2019-05-19 18:47:18 - Clint: And I thought I was over it after talking it through and figuring out what motivated her. Seeing that she has a disability of sorts and that she cares about me.

Message 2558 @: But the pain of it didn't go away. I kept thinking of how I couldn't believe that people did this to me and wouldn't tell me. I felt like I was nothing to anyone.

Message 2559 @: And now this whole situation has ruined my life. In all likelihood I will break down over this at least 6 times a week for the rest of my life.

Message 2560 @ 2019-05-19 18:48:31 - Clint: I go back and forth in my mind as to what these people think and why they do what they do, and back and forth about am I making excuses for people. I see people as mean liars one second and as nice people

The next

Message 2561 @ 2019-05-19 20:38:30: This is going to kill me

Message 2562 @ 2019-05-20 17:52:02: Ok so I'm trying to be done with this again. I'm going to amend and say please don't share this with anyone

Message 2563 @ 2019-05-20 17:52:30: Unless it is a manager at WfB who asks about me texting their employees

Message 2564 @ 2019-05-20 17:52:40 - Clint: I feel very bad for being aggressive with Tunny

Message 2565 @ 2019-05-20 17:52:50 - Courtney: Sorry long day yesterday and work was nuts today! I didn't forget about you

Message 2566 @ 2019-05-20 17:53:06 - Clint: You are fine. And I appreciate your help 2019-05-20 17:53:42

This has been very hard for me due to my psychological traits

Message 2567 @ 2019-05-20 17:53:47: Ok, no worries. I don't intend on sharing it. Of course!

Message 2568 @ 2019-05-20 17:53:56 - Clint: I have extreme difficulty understanding other people

Message 2569 @ 2019-05-20 17:54:16 - Clint: And when I get really bad sometimes I see other people as mean or immoral

Message 2570 @ 2019-05-20 17:54:36 - Clint: I also systematically make people to be out worse than they are all of the time

Message 2571 @ 2019-05-20 17:54:52 - Clint: It is because of my childhood and the extreme abuse I suffered

Message 2572 @ 2019-05-20 17:55:38 - Clint: My brain is hyper focused on finding the danger and hostility in every person and situation, and I see it where it isn't really at as a consequence

Message 2573 @ 2019-05-20 17:56:04: That is understandable

Message 2574 @ 2019-05-20 17:56:16 - Courtney: I make benign or ambiguous statements and behaviors out to be malicious

Message 2575 @ 2019-05-20 17:56:25 - Clint: I see people as insulting me when they are not

Message 2576 @ 2019-05-20 18:00:13 - Clint: I have 2 modes of existence that I often go to, in an emotional sense. One is where I am totally dead to the idea that the world has any feelings at all. I get in that space. It is like this thing is so mean and cruel that it poses far greater threat to me than I do it, and so I am not held back from lashing out at a monster that has no feelings.

Message 2577 @: Then I have a mode where all I see is suffering. All the time it is all there is. I see everyone else's pain and heartbreak and torment, and my own.

Message 2578 @: A third mode I get into is where I am just freewheeling and having fun.

Message 2579 @: But I don't often get in any state of mind where I see the world as a good place. It is either cold and mean or full of unjust and unspeakable suffering

Message 2580 @ 2019-05-20 18:00:54 - Clint: And this is how I feel, not how I see things intellectually

Message 2581 @ 2019-05-20 18:03:18 - Courtney: I'd say that the world isn't really a great place as a whole, so I can see that. Not everything is bad, but there is plenty of terrible things to go around!

Message 2582 @ 2019-05-20 18:24:06: Yep

Message 2583 @ 2019-05-20 18:24:30 - Clint: This is my view- suffering is and always has been the dominant activity on planet earth

Message 2584 @ 2019-05-20 18:25:01: The amount of suffering so overwhelms everything else that it's not too far from the truth to say that it is all that is

Message 2585 @ 2019-05-21 11:03:25 - Clint: So I'm telling Jenny that she never said anything or talked to anyone and that I believe that.

Message 2586 @: This has destroyed me and I will never recover. I will have Jenny as a friend for however long I live as long as I deny that I believe she talked to someone.

Message 2587 @: I see it as very probable that this costs me my life within the next 1 to 2 years. But thank you again for your help. It very much helps to have people to talk to.

Message 2588 @: So I like I say, just keep all I said between you and I, please.

Message 2589 @ 2019-05-21 11:03:58 - Clint: And stay in touch. We can talk about happier subjects like your heritage, etc.

Message 2590 @ 2019-05-21 12:24:51 - Courtney: Hey, sorry working on hiring. Don't let it destroy you.

Message 2591 @ 2019-05-21 12:25:41 - Courtney: Talk through it with your doctors and see if they can help resolve the issue or reduce the stress it's causing.

Message 2592 @ 2019-05-21 12:57:04: Yeah I will

Message 2593 @ 2019-05-21 12:57:24: Are you back at WFB?

Message 2594 @ 2019-05-21 12:57:32: From your Maternity leave ?

Message 2595 @ 2019-05-21 13:06:04 - Courtney: Yes, yesterday was my first day back.

Message 2596 @ 2019-05-21 14:42:03 - Clint: That's a big change of pace 2019-05-21 14:42:22

You're the latest addition to my collection of informal psychotherapists

Message 2597 @ 2019-05-21 14:43:04 - Clint: I'll let you retire from that role now. And sorry for this am. My phone is a weapon on mass destruction when I'm not in a good move

Message 2598 @ 2019-05-21 14:43:20: Mood*

Message 2599 @ 2019-05-21 17:17:15 - Clint: Oh yeah. We have 26 or 28 interviews tomorrow-Friday. Pure insanity. I understand! Hope your day is going better now.

Message 2600 @ 2019-05-21 17:17:28: What's!

Message 2601 @ 2019-05-21 17:17:37: How many you hiring?

Message 2602 @ 2019-05-21 17:17:42: What!

Message 2603 @ 2019-05-21 17:17:44: No s

Message 2604 @ 2019-05-21 17:17:54: Sent Sent

At least 15, we might be able to do more.

Message 2605 @ 2019-05-21 17:18:04 - Courtney: Waiting on the final number Message 2606 @ 2019-05-21 17:18:04: For Charlotte only?

Message 2607 @ 2019-05-21 17:18:22 - Clint: The balance of India/onshore is changing?

Message 2608 @ 2019-05-21 17:18:27 - Courtney: Yeah. We have 9 finishing training Friday.

Message 2609 @ 2019-05-21 17:18:36: Denver is hiring too

Message 2610 @ 2019-05-21 17:18:41 - Clint: It used to be downsize downsize downsize

Message 2611 @ 2019-05-21 17:18:58 - Courtney: Yeah, sr leadership finally realized that it wasn't the answer. 2019-05-21 17:19:06

So you have potentially 15 in Charlotte

Message 2612 @ 2019-05-21 17:19:13: And even more in Denver

Message 2613 @ 2019-05-21 17:19:55: Fewer in Denver will be hired

Message 2614 @ 2019-05-21 17:20:04 - Courtney: I think they're getting 10

Message 2615 @ 2019-05-21 17:22:27 - Courtney: We will have hired at least 24 in Charlotte

Message 2616 @ 2019-05-21 17:22:32: This year

Message 2617 @ 2019-05-21 17:22:58: We have had a bunch of changes in leadership structure

Message 2618 @ 2019-05-21 17:23:06: So that has helped a bit

Message 2619 @ 2019-05-21 17:25:26: I think we'll be getting closer to 20 out of this round though. We'll be closer to our regular staffing

Message 2620 @ 2019-05-21 17:26:13: Before the additional move to add more in India

Message 2621 @ 2019-05-21 17:35:01: Sorry

Message 2622 @ 2019-05-21 17:35:03: Got a call

Message 2623 @ 2019-05-21 17:35:10: No worries

Message 2624 @ 2019-05-21 17:35:23: Sent Sent

Good that senior leadership finally figured that out

Message 2625 @ 2019-05-21 17:36:00 - Clint: Which they could have done years ago by merely listening to what every single RCBO and every single WLS analyst said from day 1

Message 2626 @ 2019-05-21 17:37:12: You don't have to comment on this, but the way that whole India situation was handled is a textbook demonstration of total incompetence

Message 2627 @ 2019-05-21 17:38:02: And at the senior leadership level that place was ran terribly. Absolutely laughable incompetence, except that it isn't funny at all the misery it caused so many analysts

Message 2628 @ 2019-05-21 17:45:17 - Clint: And I'm sorry if the truth as I see it is harsh. It is harsh but it is true and I don't know how to not tell the truth.

Message 2629 @ 2019-05-21 17:46:49 - Courtney: It was definitely tough on everyone! Still is. I'm just glad we're ramping back up.

Message 2630 @ 2019-05-21 17:46:57: Yes!

Message 2631 @ 2019-05-21 17:47:11 - Clint: So what changed in leadership?

Message 2632 @ 2019-05-21 17:47:18: Is Pete still in charge?

Message 2633 @ 2019-05-21 17:53:07: A lot! Peter's boss has changed a few times. His current boss was pushing for more India too (and above him too) and was behind our last addition there, but he realized it wasn't a great move.

Message 2634 @ 2019-05-21 17:54:06: Anyone who wants more India is our to lunch

Message 2635 @ 2019-05-21 17:54:08: Out

Message 2636 @ 2019-05-21 17:54:25: Peter is not anymore. I think the change is official next week, but we've been loosely reporting to our new leader for a month or so.

Message 2637 @ 2019-05-21 17:54:58: So is bill still 1 level Below Pete's role

Message 2638 @ 2019-05-21 17:55:27: They've restructured how all of the functions from the operating groups in are reporting now. It separated by pre and post close.

Message 2639 @ 2019-05-21 17:55:28: Yes

Message 2640 @ 2019-05-21 17:55:37: That's cool

Message 2641 @ 2019-05-21 17:55:46: IMO they only need one senior leader

Message 2642 @ 2019-05-21 17:55:59: That whole hierarchy is a waste

Message 2643 @ 2019-05-21 17:56:18: Yeah, they are streamlining more each quarter

Message 2644 @ 2019-05-21 17:56:34: Peter will be on a leadership assignment likely until he retires

Message 2645 @ 2019-05-21 17:56:36: Like you could have one guy over all of WLS and one guy under him/her over each segment

Message 2646 @ 2019-05-21 17:56:58 - Clint: You don't have to manage people if you know what you're doing

Message 2647 @ 2019-05-21 17:57:15 - Courtney: There will be one over all of spreading. Not quite sure how it will all work

Message 2648 @ 2019-05-21 17:57:46 - Clint: You hire smart people and get out of their way

Message 2649 @ 2019-05-21 17:57:56 - Clint: That is the best most efficient way to manage

Message 2650 @ 2019-05-21 17:58:01: At least that I know if

Message 2651 @ 2019-05-21 17:58:02: Of Message 2652 @ 2019-05-21 17:58:22: And WLS does the opposite in many ways, or did when i was there

Message 2654 @ 2019-05-21 17:58:43 - Clint: They hire smart people and get in their way at every opportunity

Message 2655 @ 2019-05-21 17:58:51 - Courtney: I don't know who my manager will be in n the next few months e❖
2019-05-21 17:58:58

And I'm not talking about your level

Message 2656 @ 2019-05-21 17:59:20 - Courtney: Oh yeah, I know. It's about time they streamline

Message 2657 @ 2019-05-21 17:59:21: If you know how to manage you can put a business on autopilot

Message 2658 @ 2019-05-21 17:59:26: Too much redundancy

Message 2659 @ 2019-05-21 17:59:27: Yes totally

Message 2660 @ 2019-05-21 17:59:48: Gray Bennet knew exactly how to do things

Message 2661 @ 2019-05-21 17:59:59: He was sharp as a tack and knew what to do

Message 2662 @ 2019-05-21 18:00:19: Yes, Gray was amazing!

Message 2663 @ 2019-05-21 18:00:22 - Courtney: I had lunch with him 3 times

Message 2664 @ 2019-05-21 18:00:52 - Clint: And lol I watch what I say cause it magically appears in the workplace

Message 2665 @ 2019-05-21 18:01:25 - Clint: The 2nd lunch we had I said something about India not leaving enough notes and not enough notes on certocs in general

Message 2666 @ 2019-05-21 18:01:32 - Clint: Just casual conversation

Message 2667 @ 2019-05-21 18:02:16 - Clint: Next day a team meeting was called and Shana said

Message 2668 @: “Make sure you leave notes. It got up to somebody high up somehow that we’re not leaving enough notes”

Message 2669 @ 2019-05-21 18:02:33 - Clint: I tried not to act guilty lol and I didn’t mean for that to happen

Message 2671 @ 2019-05-21 18:05:39: Received Received

He was a great guy. Incredibly down to earth. When Anthony Ballard was deployed, Gray came to manage my team in Winston for a week. He got us lunch and we ate together in our large conference room and he had a few meetings to speak to us. I was thoroughly impressed with how much he wanted to interact with us.

Message 2672 @ 2019-05-21 18:08:21: Yes

Message 2673 @ 2019-05-21 18:08:48 - Clint: He told me “if you want to know how to make your business better you ask your desk level employees”

Message 2674 @ 2019-05-21 18:09:05 - Clint: That simple insight is so hard for leaders to get and it baffles me

Message 2675 @ 2019-05-21 18:58:55 - Courtney: For sure! Desk level and front line managers (especially those that have done the desk job) are a great source of information!!!

Message 2676 @ 2019-05-21 19:10:14 - Clint: Yes I consider managers like you to be the same

Message 2677 @ 2019-05-21 19:10:42 - Clint: I guess the way to put it is people who do the job or have done the job on a daily basis

Message 2680 @ 2019-05-21 19:16:41 - Clint: And I don’t particularly talk very nice about him

Message 2681 @ 2019-05-21 19:16:50 - Clint: Unfortunately what I say is the truth

Message 2682 @ 2019-05-21 19:25:23 - Clint: That’s the thing. If anyone wants to know the real scoop about who and what I am and what I have done, including my worst deeds, they can just ask Jenny cause I’ve told her the whole thing. The good, the bad, the especially bad, the ugly

Message 2683 @: And she doesn’t Judge me for any of it. Whatever he has said about me that got up here by means of Abbey cannot be true. He is so ruthless and cruel with everything he says and if you have a scar on your character or even a freckle he makes it out to be a malignant tumor. So the mere fact that he said it means it is not true.

Message 2684 @: So whatever I am accused of doing or being isn’t true. Jenny apparently knows now. I wish I could make up an example of what he might say but I can't. I know how he blows up everything about everyone else but I'm not sure how he would twist some harmless or sort of harmful thing I've done to make me out to be Satan. I've done plenty of wrong in my life, and when I say I can defend my life I don't mean all of my actions. I can merely defend that the actions I did were wrong but that I haven't fallen shorter than any other human being would have had they been in my shoes.

Message 2685 @: My joke is that I quit drinking when I turned 21 and it's not really a joke. I was a party animal for a good bit of my teens and would have racked up plenty of citations during those years.

Message 2686 @: But outside of that and the one time I punched a guy in the face I've not done anything in my life that would even get me jail time if I were caught

Message 2687 @ 2019-05-21 19:40:05 - Clint: For some reason I'm getting the feeling that whatever was said people thought it was true and still do. Anything other than the plain fact that I went to a hospital Bc my mom said she was worried about me is almost certainly crap. Abbey knew that and the only other person I know she would get info from was this guy

Message 2688 @ 2019-05-21 19:41:26 - Clint: I'm feeling better about it now and idk what I'm going to do. I would so like to know

Message 2689 @ 2019-05-21 19:43:47 - Courtney: I'm glad you're feeling better about it now!

Message 2690 @ 2019-05-21 19:43:55: Yes let's hope it lasts

Message 2691 @ 2019-05-21 19:44:09: And here's the thing

Message 2692 @ 2019-05-21 19:44:29: Sent

Remember I told you that people started saying whatever it was about me around the time I was 26

Message 2693 @ 2019-05-21 19:44:42 - Clint: That's when it seemed to have started

Message 2694 @ 2019-05-21 19:44:57 - Clint: That was the same time I started hanging out with him again

Message 2695 @ 2019-05-21 19:45:12 - Courtney: So clearly he was saying false things

Message 2696 @ 2019-05-21 19:45:30 - Clint: I know the people at the restaurant had used some similar stuff in the past

Message 2697 @ 2019-05-21 19:45:53 - Clint: Yeah so he might be the main guy behind this last round. Idk

Message 2698 @ 2019-05-21 19:46:11 - Clint: But it's probably between him and the others

Message 2699 @ 2019-05-21 19:47:09 - Clint: All I know is I had banging hot girls all giddy about me left and right from about age 23 and then when I started pursuing them at 25 and 26 this campaign started

Message 2700 @ 2019-05-21 19:47:32 - Clint: Without a doubt the restaurant people were out to get me

Message 2701 @ 2019-05-21 19:47:59 - Clint: And I don't tend to fight back. I kind of live in my own world and don't pay attention to others

Message 2702 @ 2019-05-21 19:49:17 - Clint: So I let whatever it was get way too much momentum.

Message 2703 @: And whatever it was, it was something where people felt obligated to tell others. That was the big problem. It didn't have to be one of the originators, anyone who had heard whatever from anyone would warn people or tell them

Message 2704 @ 2019-05-21 19:49:56 - Clint: And I have a general trait of women liking me, women and girls since about age 16

Message 2705 @ 2019-05-21 19:50:02: When I quit high school

Message 2706 @ 2019-05-21 19:50:59: In high school I had no success or middle school either cause I wanted the two hottest girls in the school and no less in middle school and maybe I had a handful in high school.

Message 2707 @: But all the girls at the restaurant liked me

Message 2708 @ 2019-05-21 19:51:15 - Clint: It is some quality I have that I cannot fully pin down

Message 2709 @ 2019-05-21 19:51:40 - Clint: It could be that I like them and share their low opinion of the typical man
2019-05-21 19:53:08

I generally got to hating almost

All guys up there. That was part of the problem. I didn't care what they thought of me so they end up my enemies by default. I have maybe 2 male friends from the mountains that I talk to still

Message 2710 @ 2019-05-21 20:02:34 - Clint: Because of this I couldn't get a consistent girlfriend the entire time I lived there and I got one almost as soon as I moved to Charlotte. The difference is obviously whatever garbage people there said, and the same garbage that people here have now heard and are possibly repeating

Message 2711 @ 2019-05-21 20:04:40 - Clint: Had a girl that was cheating on her fiancé with me that I saw in Johnson City TN for a time. That was one thing I did, cross state lines and go there where these people weren't at so much. But it is a 1 hr + drive

Message 2712 @ 2019-05-21 20:05:46: But she was like a 4 week adventure and done. At the time I was looking for a girl to eventually marry. My mindset has changed since and I'm not sure I ever want to be married Message 2713 @ 2019-05-23 14:50:22 - Clint: How has your day been? Crazy?

Message 2714 @ 2019-05-23 17:04:56: Understatement

Message 2715 @ 2019-05-23 17:49:50: Lol

Message 2716 @ 2019-05-23 17:50:01 - Courtney:

They're always changing something

Message 2717 @ 2019-05-23 18:06:20: Oh yeah. That's the one thing you can guarantee about banking!

Message 2718 @ 2019-05-23 18:16:25 - Clint: I like this latest change

Message 2719 @ 2019-05-23 18:16:48 - Clint: Less India = bright idea that was almost too late

Message 2720 @ 2019-05-23 18:17:03 - Clint: Are they upping the CAII promotions again too?

Message 2721 @ 2019-05-23 18:17:27 - Clint: Before they were saying those were going to halt almost completely 2019-05-23 18:29:59

Who knows about promotions! That part frustrated me the most. Ppl will stay with progression. I'm hoping it goes back to what it was.

Message 2722 @ 2019-05-23 18:30:24 - Courtney: New leadership says we will not get low on the staffing again.

Message 2723 @ 2019-05-23 18:30:30 - Clint: Yeah they kind of fixed something that wasn't broken

Message 2724 @ 2019-05-23 18:30:55: Clearly not worth the saves since we are currently undoing them with all of our hires

Message 2725 @ 2019-05-23 18:30:59 - Clint: Meaning the onshore people are here to stay as a percentage

Message 2726 @ 2019-05-23 18:31:27 - Courtney: Yes, I think we'll say close to 60 onshore

Message 2727 @ 2019-05-23 18:31:41 - Clint: Which Is what? About 70/30

Message 2728 @ 2019-05-23 18:32:08: Close to 50/50. Not sure what the India plan is.

Message 2729 @ 2019-05-23 18:32:25: They've got 50-something

Message 2730 @ 2019-05-23 18:32:36 - Clint: So you think they may let go of some India?

Message 2731 @ 2019-05-23 18:33:00 - Courtney: I'm thinking that they won't backfill when they leave. Not sure.

Message 2732 @ 2019-05-23 18:33:13 - Clint: Yeah sounds like a full roster

Message 2733 @ 2019-05-23 18:33:44: And of course "new Management" - Clint: Will be "the last people" at some point

Message 2735 @ 2019-05-23 18:34:11 - Courtney: And the new people after them might get a bright idea

Message 2736 @ 2019-05-23 18:34:34: I'm just glad that they get it now. Some of them were part of the push for offshoring.

Message 2737 @ 2019-05-23 18:34:34 - Clint: There's a nearly fool proof way to run that Dept and never screw up this bad

Message 2738 @ 2019-05-23 18:34:53 - Clint: It's called, listen to the offices and listen to the analysts

Message 2739 @ 2019-05-23 18:35:30: Did it screw up quality and piss off the offices really bad? Is that what triggered it ?

Message 2740 @ 2019-05-23 18:35:43 - Clint: I had at interview at BAC

Message 2741 @ 2019-05-23 18:35:58 - Clint: Their India people aren't allowed to do certocs

Message 2742 @ 2019-05-23 18:36:41: What apparently happened is they had a massive push to offshore

Message 2743 @ 2019-05-23 18:36:41 - Courtney: They've always been concerned about perceived quality. Many thought onshore were wrong too, but a lot of it was preference. The big thing is timeliness

Message 2744 @ 2019-05-23 18:36:53 At BAC: Message 2988 @ 2019-05-23 18:37:02 - Clint: Quality is always a concern though

Message 2745 @ 2019-05-23 18:37:20: And their India people were missing violations chronically

Message 2746 @ 2019-05-23 18:37:38 - Clint: So they put all the certocs onshore and India can only do spreading Message 2747 @ 2019-05-23 18:37:48 - Courtney: Not surprising. It seems all of the banks try it.

Message 2748 @ 2019-05-23 18:37:54: Yes and they fail

Message 2749 @ 2019-05-23 18:37:57 - Clint: Everyone wants to save money

Message 2750 @ 2019-05-23 18:38:03: BB&T failed

Message 2751 @ 2019-05-23 18:38:06: BB&T had the same thing

Message 2752 @ 2019-05-23 18:38:07: Yep

Message 2753 @ 2019-05-23 18:38:33: The big problem is the lack of human capital on the production floor

Message 2754 @ 2019-05-23 18:38:43: We should have learned, but they don't pay me the big bucks to make these decisions

Message 2755 @ 2019-05-23 18:39:05: It takes a good 10 years minimum to build that up and more like 15 to 30

Message 2756 @ 2019-05-23 18:39:18 - Clint: You can have QA train people

Message 2757 @ 2019-05-23 18:39:40: But QA can only do so much. They can't be at everyone at all times

Message 2758 @ 2019-05-23 18:40:46 - Clint: Whereas I started with nothing but finance and accounting knowledge just like they did, but I had Paul Burke and other people who could pass down tidbits of decades worth of know how that they had accumulated and that had been passed down to them

Message 2759 @ 2019-05-23 18:41:18 - Clint: So I was well poised to have an accelerated learning curve and be really good really fast

Message 2760 @ 2019-05-23 18:41:43 - Clint: Had all I had been the training by QA I wouldn't have had a prayer to ever get as good as I got

Message 2761 @ 2019-05-23 18:42:17 - Clint: Not to disparage them, just to say again that they only have so much knowledge and so much time

Message 2762 @ 2019-05-23 18:42:48 - Clint: The collective knowledge of the dept is massive in Charlotte, Winston, etc. or was when I was there

Message 2763 @ 2019-05-23 18:43:16: Clint: Yeah exactly

Message 2764 @ 2019-05-23 18:43:29: And they should pay you the big bucks!

Message 2765 @ 2019-05-23 18:44:06 - Clint: They should put your salary and the senior person who wants more India in the first places salary together

Message 2766 @ 2019-05-23 18:44:12: Divide by 2

Message 2767 @ 2019-05-23 18:44:33 - Clint: Make the result your salary and then axe him

Message 2768 @ 2019-05-23 18:44:58 - Clint: The dept would save money, the job would be done better, and you would make more. It's a win, win, win

Message 2769 @ 2019-05-23 18:50:11 - Clint: I mean for real, would it ever have taken you this long to realize it wasn't working

Message 2770 @ 2019-05-23 18:51:47: Bahahaha!!! Right?

Message 2771 @ 2019-05-23 18:52:21 - Courtney: Enough escalations had to make it that high for it to be an issue.

Message 2772 @ 2019-05-23 18:52:31 - Courtney: It took longer than I anticipated too

Message 2773 @ 2019-05-23 18:52:39: Yeah I can imagine

Message 2774 @ 2019-05-23 18:52:47: So some LTMs got mad

Message 2775 @ 2019-05-23 18:53:06 - Clint:
And got on a warpath, I imagine

Message 2776 @ 2019-05-23 21:57:46 - Clint: I'm glad your day was productive

Message 2777 @ 2019-05-23 21:57:55: Mine sure as heck wasn't

Message 2778 @ 2019-05-24 12:42:31: Ready for the weekend? 2019-05-24 13:17:01
Sent So ready

Message 2779 @ 2019-05-24 14:00:44: I'm ready sort of. It's going to be a bunch of work for me

Message 2780 @ 2019-05-24 14:00:50 - Clint: I can't get anything done

Message 2781 @ 2019-05-24 14:03:44 - Clint: I won't talk about it any more but this situation with what happened has destroyed me. Every single day it hits me like a ton of bricks and I feel paralyzed.

Message 2782 @ 2019-05-24 16:35:59 - Clint: But sorry to bring that up

Message 2783 @ 2019-05-24 16:36:06 - Clint: It's Debbie downer for sure

Message 2784 @ 2019-05-24 16:36:28 - Clint: I feel better now. I just hope that no one still believes whatever was said

Message 2785 @ 2019-05-24 16:37:38: And that they do not repeat,
Or that they do repeat it and whoever they repeat it to tells Me.

Message 2786 @: I'm the exact opposite of your bank. WFB is sick of being front page news. If whatever was said about me was on a 90 second commercial during the super bowl it would make my year

Message 2787 @ 2019-05-24 16:37:48 - Clint: Or if it was CNN headline news

Message 2788 @ 2019-05-24 16:51:23 - Clint: But it was him. I was thinking about it and I would see mutual friends of ours and they would have a lower reputation of me in their mind. One guy sticks out in particular. So the whole time I've thought he was my friend he's been saying god knows what behind my back.

Message 2789 @ 2019-05-24 16:51:39 - Clint: So he was one of the main guys behind it from age 26 onward

Message 2790 @ 2019-05-24 21:51:05 - Courtney: I'm sorry it's still impacting you. It sucks when ppl you think are your friends turn out to be shitty human beings

Message 2791 @ 2019-05-24 22:23:39 - Clint: Yeah it hits me every day

Message 2792 @ 2019-05-24 22:24:18 - Clint: But you can forget whatever it is being true and anyone who has or does repeat it has broken the law

Message 2793 @ 2019-05-24 22:27:13 - Clint: And I will take anyone who does to court

Message 2794 @ 2019-05-24 22:27:38 - Clint: And I'm thinking I will show pictures of people who have said this or that I think have

Message 2795 @ 2019-05-24 23:07:37: Tunny and Jenny are no better than him

Message 2796 @ 2019-05-24 23:08:15: I did so much for both of them and they have ruined me and won't even tell me the truth

Message 2797 @ 2019-05-24 23:08:20: Rotten people.

Message 2798 @ 2019-05-25 16:19:53: It infuriates me

Message 2799 @ 2019-05-25 16:20:27- Clint:
I can only imagine what horrible hell he has said of me and these rotten little girls have repeated it

Message 2800 @ 2019-05-25 16:21:21 - Clint: What in God's name am I doing saying anything good about them. Tunny is a self centered liar and a bigot with no character who holds herself to no standard of what it means to be a moral person

Message 2801 @ 2019-05-25 16:21:45 - Clint: She will get what she deserves and I will not feel sorry for her

Message 2802 @ 2019-05-25 16:22:08 - Clint: Just like she doesn't feel sorry for me when I'm on the verge of death over what SHE did

Message 2803 @ 2019-05-25 16:22:16 - Clint: Her and her little buddy Jenny

Message 2804 @ 2019-05-25 16:23:00 - Clint: They have ruined this city for me, or at least came close by trying . But they will not do it

Message 2805 @ 2019-05-25 16:23:10 - Clint: It will be hell for them before it will be hell for me

Message 2806 @ 2019-05-25 16:23:21 - Clint: Same thing for the country and every other city

Message 2807 @ 2019-05-25 16:24:45: I will stop her lying little tongue right in its tracks. I have never seen such a moral coward in all of my life such as her and the rest of the people who have heard and/or repeated whatever garbage it is

Message 2808 @ 2019-05-25 16:25:28 - Clint: All of the above have violated the law

Message 2809 @ 2019-05-25 16:26:09 - Clint: I am in hell over this every other day and playing the nice guy is part of what has gotten me here

Message 2810 @ 2019-05-25 16:27:33 - Clint: They are exploitative people without character or moral courage and it just awakens the lion in them every time I try to be the bigger person. They see bigger as weaker because in their mind it is foolish to care about what the right thing to do is

Message 2811 @ 2019-05-25 16:28:09: They think I should - Clint: Be a chickenshit and take advantage of people like they do.

Message 2812 @ 2019-05-25 16:28:59 - Clint: It is about appearances, not about what they actually do. If they look fine then that is all that matters. They do not care about the kind of person they are.

Message 2813 @ 2019-05-25 16:29:12 - Clint: Or the consequences of their actions

Message 2814 @ 2019-05-25 16:46:44: Very sorry. I really need to stop

Texting anyone when I'm in a bad mood. I obviously don't think these things when I've got an even mood.

Message 2815 @ 2019-05-25 16:47:04 - Clint: This thing just hits me and I get in a really bad place

Message 2816 @ 2019-05-25 17:50:17 - Clint: But it is absolutely ridiculous how Tunny will not talk to me. I would never let her suffer like this Message 2817 @ 2019-05-25 17:51:27 - Clint: I am destroyed every single day over this, over what she done. And she somehow is comfortable living in life knowing what I she has caused me without doing anything about it

Message 2818 @ 2019-05-28 12:52:15: Do you agree with me? - Clint: 2019-05-28 12:52:36

That it is very immoral and cruel for Tunny not to tell me when I am begging her on the verge of death?

Message 2819 @ 2019-05-28 12:53:18 - Clint: I did so much for her and she has destroyed me with what she has done. I see her as a very immoral person given the way she behaves.

Message 2820 @ 2019-05-28 12:53:41 - Clint: Between her and Jenny. It is going to take me years to recover from this Message 2821 @ 2019-05-28 14:03:25 - Clint: I'll try not to type any more novels until you respond. And sorry if I disturbed your Memorial Day extended weekend with my others. I get so mad about this Message 2822 @ 2019-05-28 14:04:33 - Courtney: Sorry Clint work is beyond crazy today and I was at my sister's house all weekend. I will take a look when I get a minute. Hope you are doing well today.

Message 2823 @ 2019-05-28 14:04:51: Thank you

Message 2824 @ 2019-05-28 15:20:34 - Clint: I am absolutely destroyed

Message 2825 @ 2019-05-28 15:31:58 - Clint: And plowed over is an understatement of what has been done to me

Message 2826 @ 2019-05-28 15:32:13 - Clint: I could never treat someone so horrible like everyone has me

Message 2827 @ 2019-05-28 18:56:15 - Clint: I mean you people are horrible. Unbelievable

Message 2828 @ 2019-05-28 18:56:52: Every last one of You

Message 2829 @ 2019-05-28 18:56:53: Clint, I don't think I've ever treated you poorly.

Message 2830 @ 2019-05-28 18:56:58: I do

Message 2831 @ 2019-05-28 18:57:34: The whole bank disrespected me and treated my like I was a nobody after this happened

Message 2832 @ 2019-05-28 18:57:56 - Clint: And I beg and plead for help for 1.5 years and do not get it

Message 2833 @ 2019-05-28 18:58:19 - Clint: How humiliated would you be begging on your deathbed and no one cares

Message 2834 @ 2019-05-28 18:58:24: Over and over

Message 2835 @ 2019-05-28 18:58:39 - Clint: Instead they lie to you and belittle you and block you

Message 2836 @ 2019-05-28 18:58:55: Like you're not worth anything more than a flea

Message 2837 @ 2019-05-28 18:59:06: I will never recover from this Message 2838 @ 2019-05-28 18:59:17: Not in the next 5 years I do not think

Message 2839 @ 2019-05-28 19:01:46 - Clint: And I'm not worth the truth. My life isn't worth the truth. No one but me cares about my suffering or my life or my poor mother.

Message 2840 @ 2019-05-28 19:02:23 - Clint: If people do not know what they have caused by now it is because they do not care.

Message 2841 @ 2019-05-28 19:20:36 - Courtney: Clint, I know nothing of what you believe was said other than what you've shared with me. I don't know what may have been said between those you believe were involved. The whole bank has not disrespected you. Maybe a few individuals may have that happen to work or have worked there in the past. I'm sorry that this has caused you such anguish. I wish I could help you more than I have, but I've done all that I can. I have offered up a great deal of my time to offer you support. I haven't had a chance to look back at your new texts because I'm still working as we speak.

Message 2842 @ 2019-05-28 19:21:38 - Clint: Yes I appreciate your time

Message 2843 @ 2019-05-28 19:21:57 - Clint: I am going to have to go to therapy for this

Message 2844 @ 2019-05-28 19:22:18 - Clint: Most likely for years so I will try to leave you alone about it soon

Message 2845 @ 2019-05-28 19:22:32: And I will Try now but I never succeed 2019-05-28 19:22:45

I am absolutely destroyed about this

Message 2846 @ 2019-05-28 19:23:14: It is getting clear that I will not recover anytime soon. I am sorry for anything I have caused you

Message 2847 @ 2019-05-28 19:23:26: I have been traumatized by this Message 2848 @ 2019-05-28 19:34:22 - Courtney: I understand that it has caused you a lot of pain. I don't think therapy is a bad idea. It would definitely help you work through it all.

Message 2849 @ 2019-05-28 19:34:48: I am traumatized

Message 2850 @ 2019-05-28 19:35:00 - Clint: It's beyond pain that is clear

Message 2851 @ 2019-05-28 19:39:50 - Clint: I am paralyzed by this every single day

Message 2852 @ 2019-05-28 19:40:02 - Clint: It hits me at some point and it is devastating

Message 2853 @ 2019-05-28 20:10:01 - Clint: The only thing I have in my life is ironically the person who started it all

Message 2854 @ 2019-05-28 20:10:29 - Clint: It makes me feel better when I talk to Jenny. I am so destroyed and I have no one

Message 2855 @ 2019-05-29 06:19:54 - Clint: What are the chances of me getting hired back on?

Message 2856 @ 2019-05-29 13:21:41 - Clint: I am terrified that they are about to kick me out of my apartment when my lease is up

Message 2857 @ 2019-05-29 13:22:42 - Clint: I am not the same as I was. I would be just as good an employee but I would have to miss meetings, not answer phone calls immediately, etc at times because I break down crying multiple times almost every day

Message 2858 @ 2019-05-29 13:22:56 - Clint: And I am generally feeling like I'm in shock

Message 2859 @ 2019-05-29 13:24:47: I'm different now. My personality is different. I am withdrawn and shattered. But if I were left alone I could be just as good an employee as before. I cannot move back to the mountains. I cannot go back to that hell under any circumstances

Message 2860 @ 2019-05-29 14:34:10 - Courtney: Hey Clint. Sorry for the delay, working through the training details and stuff today. We're only hiring temps right now and we've already got them locked down to start Monday. I'm sorry that you think they might kick you out when your lease is up. I hope that's not the case!!

Message 2861 @ 2019-05-29 14:34:34 - Clint: I bet that is why Alice farmer contacted me

Message 2862 @ 2019-05-29 14:34:45: They denied it today

Message 2863 @ 2019-05-29 14:34:48: I asked

Message 2864 @ 2019-05-29 14:34:53 - Clint:

But something fishy is up

Message 2865 @ 2019-05-29 14:35:14: Alice Farmer?

Message 2866 @ 2019-05-29 14:35:16 - Clint: They are making measurements to remodel my unit and they don't do that with me in it

Message 2867 @ 2019-05-29 14:35:21: Ohhhh

Message 2868 @ 2019-05-29 14:35:26 - Courtney: She is the one that got me on as a contractor the first time

Message 2869 @ 2019-05-29 14:35:35: Ahhh ok.

Message 2870 @ 2019-05-29 14:35:43: In August 2013

Message 2871 @ 2019-05-29 14:35:58: Received

We're not working with her.

Message 2872 @ 2019-05-29 14:35:59: It was her and her firm

Message 2873 @ 2019-05-29 14:36:05: Yeah then hmmm...

2019-05-29 14:36:17:

I think she passed it to another guy though

Message 2874 @ 2019-05-29 14:36:18 - Courtney: Unless we're working with someone else on her team.

Message 2875 @ 2019-05-29 14:36:26: Named Ryan, in 2012

Message 2876 @ 2019-05-29 14:36:28: 2013

Message 2877 @ 2019-05-29 14:36:51: Oh did you go through mindseeker?

Message 2878 @ 2019-05-29 14:36:52 - Clint: So you're hiring a bunch of contractors to see how the onshore thing works

Message 2879 @ 2019-05-29 14:37:04 - Clint: Actually I may be getting confused

Message 2880 @ 2019-05-29 14:37:10: She was Mergis

Message 2881 @ 2019-05-29 14:37:26 - Clint: And now that I think of it it was Randstad that got me on

Message 2882 @ 2019-05-29 14:37:32: Or some offshoot of them

Message 2883 @ 2019-05-29 14:37:37: We've already hired 9 FTEs

Message 2884 @ 2019-05-29 14:37:50: And you are hiring 6 more contractor

Message 2885 @ 2019-05-29 14:37:53: But these guys are being brought on as temps because it's faster

Message 2886 @ 2019-05-29 14:38:04: 22 in CLT and 15 in Denver

Message 2887 @ 2019-05-29 14:38:09 - Clint: And they will be eventually hired most likely

Message 2888 @ 2019-05-29 14:38:10: Denver's already started

Message 2889 @ 2019-05-29 14:38:32: When does the new spreading software get implemented?

Message 2890 @ 2019-05-29 14:38:55: It's happening in phases

Message 2891 @ 2019-05-29 14:39:07: GIB is first if I remember correctly

Message 2892 @ 2019-05-29 14:39:15: I thought MRA was nice

Message 2893 @ 2019-05-29 14:39:26 - Clint: I hope this is as good or better. The plan is better I am sure

Message 2894 @ 2019-05-29 15:09:04 - Courtney: It seems better from what I've seen

Message 2895 @ 2019-05-29 20:18:18: What does it do differently?

[REDACTED]

Message 2898 @ 2019-05-29 20:20:55: What we almost went to

Message 2899 @ 2019-05-29 20:21:07 - Courtney: Sent

So it's the best bar none?

Message 2900 @ 2019-05-29 20:21:14: Without question?

Message 2901 @ 2019-05-29 20:22:08: Wells tech didn't like Ncino because I believe the data is housed in the cloud...they seem a huge fan

Message 2902 @ 2019-05-29 20:22:21 - Courtney: The one we went with has much better reporting output

Message 2903 @ 2019-05-29 20:22:25 - Clint: What is wrong with the cloud?

Message 2904 @ 2019-05-29 20:22:36 - Clint: Could vs being on hardware?

Message 2905 @ 2019-05-29 20:22:45: Like in-house hardware? 2019-05-29 20:23:59

You'd think they'd be more progressive with technology, but they have major risk concerns for whatever reason. They were ok if we housed it in the cloud (because we could control it), but not the provider.

Message 2906 @ 2019-05-29 20:24:32: Oh I see

Message 2907 @ 2019-05-29 20:24:46 - Clint: So they don't have direct control over the security

Message 2908 @ 2019-05-29 20:25:11 - Clint: That makes sense. I wouldn't trust a tech company with a bunch of overseas people

Message 2909 @ 2019-05-29 20:25:35 - Clint: I've unfortunately saw how people get screwed in my current business

Message 2910 @ 2019-05-29 20:27:14 - Courtney: Yeah. It makes sense. They need to start considering more internal cloud stuff. It isn't just the future, it's the now!!!

Message 2911 @ 2019-05-29 20:27:35: I don't know the company

Message 2912 @ 2019-05-29 20:27:53: Cloud is expensive and it's cheap

Message 2913 @ 2019-05-29 20:28:16 - Clint: Expensive for the company that creates it, cheap for the buyers. That's how it works in web hosting

Message 2914 @ 2019-05-29 20:28:31: I get all my servers from AWS and I am in love with them

Message 2915 @ 2019-05-29 20:29:31 - Clint: But idk how WFB could efficiently create their own cloud. They probably have the budget but it's cheaper to go with a company with scale.

Message 2916 @: AWS is as secure as it gets Message 2917 @ 2019-05-29 20:29:52 - Clint: I need to look at their annual filing and see what their PP&E is but it's massive

Message 2918 @ 2019-05-29 20:29:59 - Clint: And I mean massively massive

Message 2919 @ 2019-05-29 20:30:14 - Clint: And I'm partially speculating

Message 2920 @ 2019-05-29 20:30:19 - Courtney: Apparently, they have some stuff on an internal cloud. We discovered when investigating the different tools.

Message 2921 @ 2019-05-29 20:30:32: Hmmm....

Message 2922 @ 2019-05-29 20:31:54: The way it works with web hosting is you have a massive set of hardware that collectively creates one could

Message 2923 @ 2019-05-29 20:31:56: Cloud

Message 2924 @ 2019-05-29 20:32:11 - Clint: And that cloud can be sliced up in as many pieces as you want

Message 2925 @ 2019-05-29 20:32:52 - Clint: It is like have your own private server hardware.

Message 2926 @: On my AWS accounts, I am the only one with access to the server. Not even AWS employees can get in

Message 2927 @ 2019-05-29 20:33:25 - Clint: They are separated by something called hypervirtualization

Message 2928 @ 2019-05-29 20:35:11 - Clint: It's a nice concept. The catch is you have to set everything up yourself. So I set up the OS, the server hardware, the database connections, all of it

When you go with godaddy you are paying a big fee and that big fee pays for the phone support people who hold your hand

Message 2929 @: When you go with AWS you lose the phone people and the dumbed down setup interface, but you get 3x the performance per half the cost

Message 2930 @ 2019-05-29 20:37:47 - Clint: And those [REDACTED] people lose their appeal once you get good. They are no longer people who hold your hand but a bunch of idiots who get in your way.

Message 2931 @: But setting up servers is kind of hard. It was a good 3 days of hell for me learning how to do it,

Message 2932 @: You have configuration files that you cannot download but have to edit through an SSH terminal. You have to run vi commands to edit it. Very tedious the first time but you get used to it.

Message 2933 @: I get all hot and bothered over super high performance and it's enough for me to not care. The docs for AWS are only about 6,000 pages.

Message 2934 @ 2019-05-30 12:27:35 - Clint: And I got on a total novel there

Message 2935 @ 2019-05-30 12:27:52 - Clint: I tend to do that. I am never at a shortage of things to say

Message 2937 @ 2019-05-30 21:55:37: Oh no

Message 2938 @ 2019-05-30 21:55:48: Yep

Message 2939 @ 2019-05-30 21:56:13 - Clint:

She repeatedly falls for him

Message 2941 @ 2019-05-30 21:56:58 - Courtney: Some women are drawn to men that treat them poorly for whatever reason

Message 2951 @ 2019-05-30 22:00:12 - Clint: And that "whatever reason"

Message 2952 @ 2019-05-30 22:00:57 - Clint: That is women who were abused as children. They subconsciously create the situation they were raised in. They have a subconscious need to gain control over that situation

Message 2953 @ 2019-05-30 22:01:28 - Clint: They want to relive it and have it turn out differently, but this all happens almost completely outside of their awareness

Message 2955 @ 2019-05-31 14:30:53: Do you have a minute

Message 2956 @ 2019-05-31 16:59:19: You're probably too busy and it is Friday. Have a great weekend

Message 2957 @ 2019-05-31 17:07:07 - Courtney: Sorry. I hardly have time to breathe these days 💎

Message 2958 @ 2019-05-31 17:07:21: So much is going on

Message 2959 @ 2019-05-31 17:07:44: I'm not going to have that concern in the near future is what I worry

Message 2960 @ 2019-05-31 17:07:54: I am sure a lot is

Message 2961 @ 2019-05-31 17:09:55: And actually never mind

Message 2962 @ 2019-05-31 17:10:14: I was going to bring up that topic again but it is hopeless

Message 2963 @ 2019-05-31 17:15:03 - Clint: But I hope you find some time for you in the middle Of all of this Message 2964 @ 2019-05-31 17:16:55 - Clint: 3 kids + a household + a full time office job makes for a lot of responsibility and doesn't leave much to spare 2019-05-31 17:35:43

Yes! It definitely does not leave any time! There is no enough time in the day for everything. I hope I can find some time too!

Message 2965 @ 2019-05-31 17:36:43 - Clint: I am sitting here watching my life melt because I am too devastated to do anything

Message 2966 @ 2019-05-31 17:37:05: I am in unbearable emotional pain for a good portion of most days

Message 2967 @ 2019-05-31 17:37:17 - Clint: And increasing my medication doesn't help

Message 2968 @ 2019-05-31 17:38:45 - Clint: I am on a plan where I can take 5mg to 10mg or more if I want, and I've been on 10mg up from 5 for probably a week or more and it isn't making a difference. I tried 15 mg a while back and that didn't help either.

Message 2969 @: I have emotional trauma over this whole thing and I am seeing what has happened now. It is worse than I thought

Message 2970 @ 2019-05-31 17:39:04: But I am literally going to take years to recover from this

Message 2971 @ 2019-05-31 17:39:48 - Clint: And my Medication upping has impaired my cognitive functions again, so I'm miserable and stupid

Message 2972 @ 2019-05-31 17:50:25 - Courtney: I'm sorry to hear that. I hope you can find the right balance of everything to get you back where you want and need to be!

Message 2973 @ 2019-05-31 17:51:15 - Clint: I am not sure what I am going to do

Message 2974 @ 2019-06-01 17:40:38 - Clint: Hey have shared anything I've told you thus far, with anyone other than people in Wells Fargo on your work phone who are listening or watching in without you are I knowing? I know that at one point I said you could share it with managers if they ask about my texting people and then I went back on that and said keep it between you and I

Message 2975 @ 2019-06-01 17:40:53 - Clint: And I hope you have a great weekend!

Message 2976 @ 2019-06-01 20:58:21 - Courtney: Hey! Nope. Nothing more than mentioning that I was offering you support during a difficult time in your life when they noticed my phone sitting on the conference room table going off several times. I haven't shared any detail, as you requested. Thanks! I hope you do too!

Message 2977 @ 2019-06-03 06:21:01: Thank you © I had teetered back and forth about if I wanted it shared but ultimately decided I did not. I have thought about making my life public over this and the rest of the people who have been so terrible to me in the past, and that is sort of where I was coming from in saying share it with managers if they ask about me texting their employees with despairing pleas and/or cruel messages. I didn't want it out there for the world just yet, but eventually was going to get there.

Now I have kind of went back to being a private person, sort of. I'm no longer hiding on Facebook though. I have a profile with 2 friends and am not asking for more, but every single thing except my friends is public. I also have a domain for my own name if I ever decide to go public with my life. People are so unbelievably horrible. So I'm glad that in that slight period where I thought of you sharing with others that you didn't. For now that works out best for me.

Message 2978 @: I have always been a very private person, largely because there is so much about my life that requires explanation and a gentle slope into understanding.

Message 2979 @: I am trying to have blind faith against 100% of the evidence that there are people who will not treat me with such ruthless cruelty and then not even admit it to me at all costs.

Message 2980 @: If I go public with my life then every single good and bad thing about me will come straight from the source and then any and everyone who wishes can challenge me in public with the facts they feel I distorted, left out, or fraudulently came up with.

Message 2981 @: I do not see that happening just like that though. My health is not good and I am starting to prepare for the worst case scenario. I always wanted to make the world a better place somehow and help people. I wrote a book a long time ago about the mistakes I made as a teenager, that was intended to be given out to teenagers to help them make the right choices in that time of their life. I may edit and make a new version of it and I am also trying to find the strength to write a book about my life and what I have learned from my struggles and what it means to be human.

And also how unbelievably cruel people have been to me. I am now of the opinion that the majority of people who have had the least bit of privilege in their lives whatsoever do not know what it means to be a moral person. I am stunned and shocked beyond belief by how selfish and cold hearted people are.

Message 2982 @: Both of these books with either be distributed for free with an option to donate or be put in my mom's name as the copyright holder and she can get any money made off of them. If it's in my name my creditors will just get it if something were to happen to me like a heart attack. if for some reason a large sum of money came from them I would want a portion to go to children I was cruel to as a kid and my mom would do that for sure.

Message 2983 @: So I've got 2 websites right now and those 2 books that I need to find the strength to write. I have been paralyzed day after day and having trouble doing much of anything on my new project. But I will do that and I will have something to show for my life no matter what happens. I want to make them all as good as possible.

Message 2984 @ 2019-06-04 15:48:30: How are you Courtney

Message 2985 @ 2019-06-04 16:36:21: I'm ok. Trying to keep my mind straight through the tornado of things going on. How are you?

Message 2986 @ 2019-06-04 16:36:45 - Clint: I'm doing kind of good I think

Message 2987 @ 2019-06-04 16:37:07 - Clint: I am less devastated today and yesterday was a better day too

Message 2988 @ 2019-06-04 16:37:40 - Clint: I was crushed when I went to bed and crushed when I woke up this morning but other than that I've had 2 days that are so far an improvement

Message 2989 @ 2019-06-04 16:37:58: What's the tornado?

Message 2990 @ 2019-06-04 16:38:32 - Clint: I called a recruiter about a CA role online and it was filled. I said "oh this must have been for Wells Fargo" she's like yep how did you know

Message 2991 @ 2019-06-04 16:38:56 - Clint: I told her I used to work there and talked to you still

Message 2992 @ 2019-06-04 16:39:15 - Clint: You guys filled that fast. It was only posted 13 days ago according to online

Message 2993 @ 2019-06-04 16:39:39 - Courtney: Yeah. All 22 started and this week

Message 2994 @ 2019-06-04 16:39:48: That's part of it

Message 2995 @ 2019-06-04 16:39:59 - Courtney: That is total for Charlotte + Denver?

Message 2996 @ 2019-06-04 16:40:11: Or just Charlotte

Message 2997 @ 2019-06-04 16:42:33: Charlotte

Message 2998 @ 2019-06-04 16:42:39: Denver hired 15 temps 2019-06-04 16:42:49
22 contractors in Charlotte?

Message 2999 @ 2019-06-04 16:43:26 - Clint: On top of the 9 FTEs you already had

Message 3000 @ 2019-06-04 16:43:32: Hired

Message 3001 @ 2019-06-04 16:43:39: You guys are beefing up

Message 3002 @ 2019-06-04 16:43:42: Yup

Message 3003 @ 2019-06-04 16:46:04: Sent Sent

They go from one extreme to another

Message 3004 @ 2019-06-04 16:46:08: And do it fast

Message 3005 @ 2019-06-04 16:46:20 - Clint: Get rid of 50 and send them to India

Message 3006 @ 2019-06-04 16:46:46 - Clint: Then hire 50 back in the space of a month once you figure out that was a bad idea

Message 3007 @ 2019-06-04 18:25:30: Yup!!

Message 3008 @ 2019-06-04 19:06:26: I'm not going to make it

Message 3009 @ 2019-06-04 19:06:43: I'm in hell again. It never leaves for long

Message 3010 @ 2019-06-04 19:24:18 - Courtney: I'm sorry! I hope it gets better Message 3011 @ 2019-06-04 20:12:56: Thank you!

Message 3012 @ 2019-06-04 20:13:15 - Clint: It so drives me nuts how I cannot just have a conversation about this

Message 3013 @ 2019-06-04 20:13:24: And I do not understand Jenny

Message 3014 @ 2019-06-04 20:14:55: She lies to me about this and it's obviously because of the terrible feelings she gets from doing something wrong, but I have no idea what she says to others. For all I know she believes every last thing she heard, still tells people, and puts on show when she talks to Me

Message 3015 @ 2019-06-04 20:15:20 - Clint: And she might still be in contact with people who are intent on killing me

Message 3016 @ 2019-06-04 20:16:11 - Clint: And who will use every drop of info about my current situation that she gives them to make attempts at my life

Message 3017 @ 2019-06-04 20:16:50 - Clint: And to ruin me further and cast me in a worse light than they already have

Message 3018 @ 2019-06-04 20:17:37 - Clint: This is all the result of me not fighting back. People are vicious and I let them run wild because I care about them

Message 3019 @ 2019-06-04 20:18:20 - Clint: I need to be vicious back.

Message 3020 @ 2019-06-04 22:58:16 - Clint: Does it make sense what I am saying?

Message 3021 @ 2019-06-04 22:58:29 - Clint: Not counting where I keep getting pissed and saying I need to be vicious, mean, etc

Message 3022 @ 2019-06-04 22:58:56: But how the fact that I am being kept in the dark is enough to never give me security?

Message 3023 @ 2019-06-04 22:59:34 - Clint: They are all lying and/or refusing to tell me what was said, so I have no way of knowing what else they are hiding

Message 3024 @ 2019-06-04 22:59:53 - Clint: And I am forever tethered to these people until they tell me the truth

Message 3025 @ 2019-06-05 09:56:20 - Clint: Do you understand at all?

Message 3026 @ 2019-06-05 09:56:29 - Clint: And you need to check out my Facebook profile

Message 3027 @ 2019-06-05 09:56:34: It's wonderful

Message 3028 @ 2019-06-05 09:57:06 - Clint: All public all day 24/7 . No friends allowed but I post stuff for the world to see

Message 3029 @ 2019-06-05 09:59:03: I need to get some more. I haven't spent a terrible amount of time

Message 3030 @ 2019-06-07 21:32:18 - Clint: And I sent you a novel. This is how it is texting with me.

Message 3031 @ 2019-06-07 21:32:41 - Clint: I've been chatting with Shana. Do you ever talk to her?

Message 3032 @ 2019-06-07 21:33:56 - Clint: I think she may have left WLS by the time you came to Charlotte. I'm thinking my recent texts may have been while she's on leave . Hope I didn't make her beep while she's on the delivery table like I damn near did you

Message 3033 @ 2019-06-07 21:38:26 - Courtney: Hey sorry! Work has been crazy, as usual! I talk to her from time to time, but it's been a while since we last talked. She interviewed me Ballard and Athey. She left when I was in Charlotte. Jess filled her position. I really thought Shana would get site leader, but it worked out much better for her to move on from the department! Hahaha. Oh no! I didn't know she was pregnant!! I haven't talked to her in long enough for that to be the case though!!

Message 3034 @ 2019-06-07 21:41:07 - Clint: Yeah she is my favorite manager of all time

Message 3035 @ 2019-06-07 21:41:15 - Clint: Not to put people in a competition

Message 3036 @ 2019-06-07 21:41:40 - Clint: But regarding what I said before, does what I am saying make sense to you?

Message 3037 @ 2019-06-07 21:50:07 - Courtney: It makes sense. I get why you'd feel that way, especially with how isolated and in the dark you're feeling, but I doubt that's the case with Jenny. I don't think she'd talk to you if she believed it. Also, I definitely don't think she'd try to do you harm in that way.

Message 3038 @ 2019-06-07 21:50:34: Yes here is the thing

Message 3039 @ 2019-06-07 21:50:40 - Clint: These people are out to kill me

Message 3040 @ 2019-06-07 21:51:00 - Clint: The police were willing to cover it up for them

Message 3041 @ 2019-06-07 21:51:31 - Clint: Did I tell you about Jenny filling involuntary commitment papers on me?
2019-06-07 21:56:27

No!

Message 3042 @ 2019-06-07 21:56:39: Yes

Message 3043 @ 2019-06-07 21:56:54: She got her friend who lives next to her and is a police officer to help her

Message 3044 @ 2019-06-07 21:57:09 - Clint: And she has told me about this guy before

Message 3045 @ 2019-06-07 21:57:25 - Clint: She has him get information about people if she is worried about them

Message 3046 @ 2019-06-07 21:58:01 - Clint: So I have no idea what she has told him and if he has went and contacted the police down there

Message 3047 @ 2019-06-07 21:58:07 - Courtney: I suppose I can understand why. If she knows that the situation has caused you to have suicidal thoughts, it probably worried her. It's possible it was because she cares.

Message 3048 @ 2019-06-07 21:58:21 - Clint: He could have called them and said "what do you know about this guy"

Message 3049 @ 2019-06-07 21:58:44 - Clint: And in the process initiated a conversation that disclosed details about me up here

Message 3050 @ 2019-06-07 21:59:06: And disclosed that I know they were going to cover it up

Message 3051 @ 2019-06-07 21:59:28 - Clint: That I know the people were out to kill me, which they were not previously aware that I knew

Message 3052 @ 2019-06-07 21:59:41 - Clint: Yes it was over me talking suicidal

Message 3053 @ 2019-06-07 22:00:12: And more about her being mad at me and afraid I would speak about her personal life that she has shared with me

Message 3054 @ 2019-06-07 22:00:56 - Clint: Because I was getting fed up with her. At that point I didn't realize that she has this psychological thing and had concluded she wouldn't tell me the truth because she is a deceitful person who doesn't care about people

Message 3055 @ 2019-06-07 22:01:13: I went off the rails completely

Message 3056 @ 2019-06-07 22:02:12 - Clint: But now I am not only tethered to Charlotte, I am tethered to her because I can't safely leave without knowing what they have been told and also without knowing that she won't go and contact any or all of them later after I leave

Message 3057 @ 2019-06-07 22:02:22 - Clint: She lies and then pretends like she didn't

Message 3058 @ 2019-06-07 22:03:36 - Clint: She has a trait of gossiping like all humans, and it is impossible for me to know what she says and who she talks to because she will say no one by default.

Message 3059 @: So when she says "I don't talk to any of those people" that is evidence for nothing because that is what she's going to say whether it is true or it isn't

Message 3060 @ 2019-06-07 22:04:32 - Clint: And I don't need an army of people who are out to kill me getting allies up here, and I cannot prevent that from happening in any way I see other than to babysit this situation indefinitely

Message 3061 @ 2019-06-07 22:04:51 - Clint: I am unfortunately going to have to take this to the courts

Message 3062 @ 2019-06-07 22:04:59 - Clint: And whoever gets hurt gets hurt

Message 3063 @ 2019-06-07 22:05:14: Get the N.C. SBI involved

Message 3064 @ 2019-06-07 22:05:27 - Clint: Possibly federal level law enforcement jumps in the mix

Message 3065 @ 2019-06-07 22:05:49 - Clint: And it is a felony to lie to them even if you're not detained for questioning

Message 3066 @ 2019-06-07 22:05:59 - Clint: So maybe she will tell them the truth

Message 3067 @ 2019-06-07 22:06:28 - Clint: And I will not have any mercy and any and all involved. That game is up and I'm done begging

Message 3068 @ 2019-06-07 22:06:37: Begging gets me nowhere

Message 3069 @ 2019-06-07 22:06:52: Threatening legal action gets me nowhere

Message 3070 @ 2019-06-07 22:07:02: Asking calmly gets me nowhere

Message 3071 @ 2019-06-07 22:07:15: Being cruel gets me nowhere

Message 3072 @ 2019-06-07 22:07:52: The response to all of the above is a tacit "I don't give a shit about you" along with explicit lies on and on forever

Message 3073 @ 2019-06-07 22:08:06: And I have nothing to lose at this point Message 3074 @ 2019-06-07 22:09:26: The truth about my life, including the things I wish weren't true, is nothing for me to be ashamed of taken as a whole, and cannot compare to whatever lies have been told about me.

Message 3075 @: I am in a race to see who offs me first, the people up there or me and I'm being called evil and pathetic in mutually exclusive ways

Message 3076 @ 2019-06-07 22:10:21 - Clint: So let the whole world see it all and let the people who lie to me lie to the courts. If I get some negative consequence I am not forced to live

Message 3077 @ 2019-06-07 22:12:15 - Courtney: While I don't know Jenny that well, I don't think she'd do anything that could potentially cause you harm . Maybe she poked around trying to seek information about you and unknowingly caused harm in the process.

Message 3078 @ 2019-06-07 22:12:42: She already has if she's told her police officer friend

Message 3079 @ 2019-06-07 22:12:50 - Courtney: But I don't think she'd do anything beyond that Message 3080 @ 2019-06-07 22:13:02 - Clint: And whatever she has told Abbey has made it back to the people back home

Message 3081 @ 2019-06-07 22:13:16 - Clint: It doesn't matter what she knows or what she intends

Message 3082 @ 2019-06-07 22:13:30 - Clint: So she has ruined my life completely

Message 3083 @ 2019-06-07 22:13:40 - Clint: Her and whoever else might have been involved

Message 3084 @ 2019-06-07 22:13:42 - Clint: And I like her

Message 3085 @ 2019-06-07 22:13:53: That is the thing. I care about her and she cares about me

Message 3086 @ 2019-06-07 22:14:46 - Clint: But this aversion she has to admitting anything wrong, which makes this impossible to talk about or to negotiate any kind of solution has ruined my life

Message 3087 @ 2019-06-07 22:15:06: It causes her to act extremely selfishly when she feels threatened

Message 3088 @ 2019-06-07 22:15:12: I am in hell daily

Message 3089 @ 2019-06-07 22:15:36 - Clint: And I will not live through this if I don't do something about it

Message 3090 @ 2019-06-07 22:15:55 - Clint: And as long as I am weak and on the verge of death I will not get The truth from anyone

Message 3091 @ 2019-06-07 22:15:58: That's clear

Message 3092 @ 2019-06-07 22:16:15 - Clint: They do not pity me they see it as an advantage for them

Message 3093 @ 2019-06-07 22:16:34 - Clint: So I'll get some lawyers and judges and law enforcement involved

Message 3094 @ 2019-06-07 22:16:45 - Clint: Who aren't broke and on the verge of death.

Message 3095 @ 2019-06-07 22:17:06 - Clint: And who can actually cause consequences to people who tell them 10,000 lies

Message 3096 @ 2019-06-07 22:19:50: I was in a good Mood earlier

Message 3097 @ 2019-06-07 22:20:02 - Clint: I got a renewal notice for my lease

Message 3098 @ 2019-06-07 22:20:14 - Clint: That was the best news in a while

Message 3099 @ 2019-06-07 22:20:41 - Clint: But then this inescapable situation that dominates my life came back in my mind 2019-06-07 22:21:41

And I am not 100% she cares about me. I lean that way

Message 3100 @ 2019-06-07 22:22:05 - Clint: For sure she doesn't care about me when it comes to her being less than perfect

Message 3101 @ 2019-06-07 22:22:32 - Clint: That is the situation that must be defended at all costs and rationality and conscience go out the window

Message 3102 @ 2019-06-07 22:23:14 - Clint: It is terrifying for her what might happen. Her perceptions are off completely in regards to that but it is real to her

Message 3103 @ 2019-06-07 22:25:40 - Clint: But to get off that subject

Message 3104 @ 2019-06-07 22:26:02 - Clint: WLS made a huge mistake in not giving Shana that job

Message 3105 @ 2019-06-07 22:26:15: Immeasurably huge

Message 3106 @ 2019-06-07 22:29:29 - Clint: I'm glad to hear you got a renewal letter for your lease! I'm sorry that the situation keeps creeping up on you though! Yeah, I really thought she and Kat (Denver) would each get site leader. I was surprised when they didn't. Bill came highly recommended by Gray

Message 3107 @ 2019-06-07 22:34:23: Yeah Kay

Message 3108 @ 2019-06-07 22:34:28: Kat

Message 3109 @ 2019-06-07 22:34:33: I barely remember her

Message 3110 @ 2019-06-07 22:34:44: Sent Sent

And that recommendation from Gray

Message 3111 @ 2019-06-07 22:35:00 - Clint: Was a torpedo for everyone that didn't have a recommendation

Message 3112 @ 2019-06-07 22:35:32 - Clint: Their battleship was sunk in one blow

Message 3113 @ 2019-06-07 23:48:32 - Clint: I'll talk to you tomorrow 2019-06-08 08:39:41

Did you guys get gratification out of disregarding and disrespecting me? Just curious? When I ask you and Christian in 4 separate meetings in 9 days to leave me alone cause I'm stressed cleaning up the mess that you made, and I STILL get emails and pings annoying me about work that is 30 days past due after I'm at work till 3:30 am the previous night?

Message 3114 @ 2019-06-08 08:40:23 - Clint: Was this some sort of game? I'm starting to think that the way I was treated was some sort of hobby for everyone there to see how much crap I would take before I left

Message 3115 @ 2019-06-08 08:40:58 - Clint: And I don't mean to be mean but these are the facts

Message 3116 @ 2019-06-08 08:41:13 - Clint: If the way it sounds doesn't sound good then that's not my problem

Message 3117 @ 2019-06-08 08:41:41 - Clint: How many meetings would have been sufficient? If I had 3 meetings per day?

Message 3118 @ 2019-06-08 08:42:17 - Clint: You seem to require a dynamic amount of reminders that bumps up by one every time I give you one

Message 3119 @ 2019-06-08 08:43:02 - Clint: And even after I tell Christian that I was at work till 3:30 am

Message 3120 @ 2019-06-08 08:43:29 - Clint: And I send what's her name the email that I don't need emails like that, he shoots back with what he "expects" in a nasty email

Message 3121 @ 2019-06-08 08:44:58 - Clint: Then I walk out and you message me wanting to "talk about it" for the 15 thousandth time? Was there some sort of kick you got about "talking about" what bothers me when I'm killing my self at that job and then doing exactly what I tell you bothers me immediately every token

Message 3122 @ 2019-06-08 08:45:01: Time*

Message 3123 @ 2019-06-08 08:46:46 - Clint: It's like disrespecting me and disregarding everything I say was some sort of game. I had to be treated like I didn't matter and people enjoyed it

Message 3124 @ 2019-06-08 08:47:48 - Clint: I mean all of you people are straight from hell

Message 3125 @ 2019-06-08 08:55:36 - Clint: Apparently whatever the fugitive heard from the racist sociopath and then told to

Jenny was widely believed and people set out to show me how much what I thought and mattered and how much I mattered as such a disdainful person, when 100% of the evidence in the form of my hard work and my honest and ethical behavior was in contradiction to whatever was said. You believed this chain of garbage over what was in front of your own eyes. It didn't make your life one bit harder but it made mine hell. Actions speak louder than words and talk is cheap, but talk has the advantage of being fun for people and making a sport out of someone who cares

Message 3126 @ 2019-06-08 11:06:54 - Courtney: Clint your thoughts are definitely way off from the truth. I've never heard anything about this until you texted me about it. Even if we had heard anything, do you really think we'd believe work gossip? I didn't even know you and Jenny were friendly outside of work. The meetings were to ensure you were ok because we were concerned about you. It was our responsibility to make sure you were ok. Not just from a management perspective, but that's just what decent humans do. Some of it was also to check in on work and see what we could do to help distribute work. You were never treated differently than anyone else would have been if we had concerns about well being and/or ability to complete work. We also had meetings with plenty of others about work getting done, so definitely no bias there. Any way that you may have been treated differently was actually to your benefit (i.e. added flexibility in scheduling to suit your needs). It is clear that our concerns were not unwarranted because you've said that you've had suicidal thoughts. I'm so sorry that we couldn't do more to help you.

Message 3127 @ 2019-06-08 16:51:24: The meetings were at my request and not yours

Message 3128 @ 2019-06-08 16:51:39 - Clint: After I got back from my leave

Message 3129 @ 2019-06-08 16:52:06: And I went on a tirade because I got in a bad place

Message 3130 @ 2019-06-08 16:52:34 - Clint: And the subject of all 4 meetings was that I needed you guys to leave me alone

Message 3131 @ 2019-06-08 16:54:09 - Clint: And I had had meetings about this before

Message 3132 @ 2019-06-08 16:54:28 - Clint: And I was getting work done just like I told you in all 4 meetings

Message 3133 @ 2019-06-08 16:55:04 - Clint: It was just that I had to get them out to my offices because they were screwed from you guys letting work pile up

Message 3134 @ 2019-06-08 16:55:19 - Clint: So I couldn't turn them in to WLS at the same time

Message 3135 @ 2019-06-08 16:55:47 - Clint: But I told you and told you that Thursday or Friday they would be turned in and I had a huge amount

Message 3136 @ 2019-06-08 16:55:54: And what do you do?

Message 3137 @ 2019-06-08 16:56:22 - Clint: You have a meeting and have some girl send me an email about items in my queue past due 30 days

Message 3138 @ 2019-06-08 16:57:11 - Clint: Then after I told you Friday that I had been there till 3:30am from Thursday and would have a huge load of items to turn in

Message 3139 @ 2019-06-08 16:57:33 - Clint: All of your concerns, which you harass me about against my wishes and repeated asking

Message 3140 @ 2019-06-08 16:57:40: Should have been settled

Message 3141 @ 2019-06-08 16:58:10: And I email Stephanie to say "enjoy your vacation and I don't need this email"

Message 3142 @ 2019-06-08 16:58:22: I get ANOTHER email

Message 3143 @ 2019-06-08 16:59:08 - Clint: Sent

"These items have been in your queue and past due for 30 days. We do not expect to see these items in your queue going forward"

Message 3144 @ 2019-06-08 16:59:26 - Clint: How many times can I be disregarded and ran into the ground

Message 3145 @ 2019-06-08 16:59:37 - Clint: And yes i has suicidal thoughts

Message 3146 @ 2019-06-08 17:00:08 - Clint: And they were due to this persistently being treated like someone who didn't matter

Message 3147 @ 2019-06-08 17:00:37: Which started right after this thing and came from many people

Message 3148 @ 2019-06-08 17:02:25: Why in this meeting with the engagement team where Stephanie was told to send me this email

Message 3149 @ 2019-06-08 17:02:40 - Clint: Which by the way also followed up a ping

Message 3150 @ 2019-06-08 17:02:48: Why didn't it come up

Message 3151 @ 2019-06-08 17:05:11: "Clint is cleaning up Sent

The mess Christian made by sitting on his ass and letting work pile up and not doing anything about it. He's asked us repeatedly for the past 9 days to leave him alone, and the 30+ day old items are not his fault by simple math. We'd like to respect Clint's wishes that he has repeatedly asked, especially since he's trying to smooth things over with his offices. Let's leave Clint off this email, with no further begging and pleading required from him"

Message 3152 @ 2019-06-08 17:05:29: Here is the pattern

Message 3153 @ 2019-06-08 17:05:36 - Clint:

I say something and it doesn't matter

Message 3154 @ 2019-06-08 17:05:46 - Clint: How I am treated by coworkers doesn't matter

Message 3155 @ 2019-06-08 17:06:01 - Clint: And this was not persistently the case

Message 3156 @ 2019-06-08 17:06:13 - Courtney: No one harassed you, Clint. The reporting emails that went out were standard procedure. Everyone with items past due received emails. That's what our reporting committee was created for. Christian followed up because he was confirming that you were going to get the requests out. Having things sit outstanding for long periods of time raise red flags at the senior management level and also raise concerns with audit. Also, submitting lots of items at once, rather than regularly over time caused issues for QA. You were never treated like you didn't matter.

Message 3157 @ 2019-06-08 17:06:44 - Clint: It only started after this whole thing and it was from many people

Message 3158 @ 2019-06-08 17:07:09: I told him before I sent the email to Stephanie

Message 3159 @ 2019-06-08 17:07:18: So he had no reason

Message 3160 @ 2019-06-08 17:07:29 - Clint: And I also had worked things out with QA

Message 3161 @ 2019-06-08 17:07:34: And told him that I had 2019-06-08 17:07:38

Sent Sent QA was fine

Message 3162 @ 2019-06-08 17:07:50: And that was another reason I didn't turn them in

Message 3163 @ 2019-06-08 17:08:06 - Courtney: No one was exempt from receiving emails regarding reporting issues. Stephanie sent the email as she was supposed to. It wasn't something discussed on a daily basis.

Message 3164 @ 2019-06-08 17:08:14 - Clint: I had to leave notes for QA for complicated requests

Message 3165 @ 2019-06-08 17:08:57 - Clint: Then why didn't I receive this email the first Monday back?

Message 3166 @ 2019-06-08 17:09:00: Or Tuesday

Message 3167 @ 2019-06-08 17:09:05 - Clint: She was told to send it to me

Message 3168 @ 2019-06-08 17:09:14: Period

Message 3169 @ 2019-06-08 17:09:53 - Clint: I can't remember the timing of the one, because we're not doing them since we've had reporting issues with FLO, but I think that one was only once a week.

Message 3170 @ 2019-06-08 17:09:57 - Clint: Your reporting issues were garbage and not my fault. And I told you and told you and told you and told you and told

Message 3171 @ 2019-06-08 17:10:13: Ok

Message 3172 @ 2019-06-08 17:10:24 - Clint: So why send me an email in response

Message 3173 @ 2019-06-08 17:10:46 - Clint: She sends it without prompting according to what you say

Message 3174 @ 2019-06-08 17:10:51 - Courtney: Clint, the reporting committee was just to keep things on our radar, especially for things that could slip through the cracks.

Message 3175 @ 2019-06-08 17:11:07 - Clint: But why do I get a ping from Christian

Message 3176 @ 2019-06-08 17:11:26 - Clint: And why does he respond with an angry email when I tell her I don't need it
2019-06-08 17:12:00

Likely because you said you were getting stuff completed and he wanted to start seeing items drop off the report.

Message 3177 @ 2019-06-08 17:12:18 - Clint: And The reporting committee was dragging their ass for the month I was gone

Message 3178 @ 2019-06-08 17:12:45 - Clint: Stuff slipped through the cracks over their failure to harass other people

Message 3179 @ 2019-06-08 17:13:09: And I had already told him I was there till 3:30 and things would be turned in Message 3180 @ 2019-06-08 17:13:33 - Clint: How many meetings did all of the other analysts have?

Message 3181 @ 2019-06-08 17:13:48 - Clint: For all of these things that fall through the cracks?

Message 3182 @ 2019-06-08 17:13:54: They notified everyone regularly. Nothing slipped through the cracks, volumes were just high and difficult to manage.

Message 3183 @ 2019-06-08 17:13:56: Their meetings apparently worked

Message 3184 @ 2019-06-08 17:14:25: They are not difficult to manage

Message 3185 @ 2019-06-08 17:14:38 - Clint: Sitting there and letting them pile up is not managing

Message 3186 @ 2019-06-08 17:14:53 - Clint: And I am sorry I don't mean to be mean

Message 3187 @ 2019-06-08 17:15:56 - Clint: And this wouldn't have bothered if it weren't for the fact that this type of being totally disregarded came from many people and didn't happen until this thing started

Message 3188 @ 2019-06-08 17:16:03 - Courtney: There's only so much you can do with limited resources. Which is why we afforded you the ability to manage your work the way you did. There is only so much any person can do and that is something we've always told ppl when volumes are high.

Message 3189 @ 2019-06-08 17:16:04 - Clint: It came mostly from other employees

Message 3190 @ 2019-06-08 17:16:28: But it seemed like management had a lower opinion of me

Message 3191 @ 2019-06-08 17:16:38 - Clint: And to me this was a slap in the face

Message 3192 @ 2019-06-08 17:16:40 - Courtney: We never had a lower opinion of you

Message 3193 @ 2019-06-08 17:16:55 - Clint: What happened those 2 weeks when I came back

Message 3194 @ 2019-06-08 17:18:40 - Clint: That job put me through absolute hell repeatedly

Message 3195 @ 2019-06-08 17:18:52 - Clint: And I did everything I could to make things work better

Message 3196 @ 2019-06-08 17:19:02 - Clint: And I cared so much about my offices

Message 3197 @ 2019-06-08 17:19:11 - Clint: Every issue I had I tried to fix

Message 3198 @ 2019-06-08 17:19:26: I broke my neck to make things work with QA and they were

Message 3199 @ 2019-06-08 17:19:50 - Clint: I would trash talk the Dept for the traumatic stress I was under

Message 3200 @ 2019-06-08 17:20:07 - Clint: Then we would have a meeting at my request

Message 3201 @ 2019-06-08 17:20:12: Things would be better

Message 3202 @ 2019-06-08 17:20:15: Then more bs

Message 3203 @ 2019-06-08 17:20:29: And I am sorry for going off on you like this

Message 3204 @ 2019-06-08 17:20:48 - Clint: And you lessened the hell I was in more than anyone

Message 3205 @ 2019-06-08 17:21:05 - Clint: But giving me flexibility about trading due dates on items

Message 3206 @ 2019-06-08 17:21:26 - Clint: That made things 10X better instantly 2019-06-08 17:21:34

Nothing happened. Other than the fact that work wasn't going out from what we could tell. Christian had to do his job and make sure something was being produced. It was never him targeting you. He cared about your well being as much as I did.

Message 3207 @ 2019-06-08 17:21:51 - Clint: So sorry, I get really riled up thinking about all of that Message 3208 @ 2019-06-08 17:21:57: The whole thing

Message 3209 @ 2019-06-08 17:22:17 - Clint: And I cannot resist my phone when I get in these places in my mind

Message 3210 @ 2019-06-08 17:22:30: So sorry about that Message 3211 @ 2019-06-08 17:22:50 - Clint: I know you cared greatly. I'm sorry you feel like it put you through hell. We always let everyone know there's only so much that a person can do in a day and a work life balance is important.

Message 3212 @ 2019-06-08 17:22:58 - Clint: I was in a terrible place in my mind thinking about this Message 3213 @ 2019-06-08 17:23:28 - Courtney: I always tell people that it's so important to compartmentalize work. Don't take it home.

Message 3214 @ 2019-06-08 17:23:28 - Clint: Yes and I feel bad now for saying this to you

Message 3215 @ 2019-06-08 17:23:38: It's not worth it!

Message 3216 @ 2019-06-08 17:23:42 - Courtney: But those are my feelings that I have had at times

Message 3217 @ 2019-06-08 17:23:52 - Clint: Well when I feel like absolute hell

Message 3218 @ 2019-06-08 17:24:00: And people are supposed to be helping me

Message 3219 @ 2019-06-08 17:24:21 - Courtney: I unfortunately don't get to shut off work. It comes home with me, but I try my best to separate it.

Message 3220 @ 2019-06-08 17:24:31 - Clint: And they come by my desk at 4 Pm saying they've got to put 8 items back in my name 2019-06-08 17:24:54

And the worst thing possible that could happen would be for one of them to go past due

Message 3221 @ 2019-06-08 17:25:16 - Courtney: I'm sorry that you've ever felt that way. We tried to make it as fun of an environment as possible. Unfortunately, it's not always possible when we're busy.

Message 3222 @ 2019-06-08 17:25:19: And I'm literally feeling so bad physically that I can't go another minute, but I have no choice but to

Message 3223 @ 2019-06-08 17:25:51 - Clint: Well it was more management (not you) dragging their ass without concern for what it did to me

Message 3224 @ 2019-06-08 17:26:12 - Clint: People were assigned to help me

Message 3225 @ 2019-06-08 17:26:12 - Courtney: Yeah, putting work back is never cool.

Message 3226 @ 2019-06-08 17:26:30 - Courtney: We fortunately don't have that model anymore

Message 3227 @ 2019-06-08 17:26:57 - Courtney: You definitely shouldn't have felt that you needed to stay to get it done if you weren't feeling well.

Message 3228 @ 2019-06-08 17:26:57: But they took items then didn't do them and if I said anything about it Bill would yell at me

Message 3229 @ 2019-06-08 17:27:13 - Clint: Yeah well this is the end of the world if these things go past due

Message 3230 @ 2019-06-08 17:27:21 - Clint: That was the Dept's main concern

Message 3231 @ 2019-06-08 17:27:44: It was the stupidest idea

Message 3232 @ 2019-06-08 17:28:16 - Clint: And that is why you helped me so much by making that deal with me about trading

Message 3233 @ 2019-06-08 17:28:19 - Courtney: It still is, as there is huge pressure from the line and senior leadership. I guess running a backlog won't be happening during busy season again. They will keep the dept adequately staffed for it.

Message 3234 @ 2019-06-08 17:29:05: Yeah and all of the huge pressure is on my shoulders

Message 3235 @ 2019-06-08 17:29:11 - Courtney: Nothing we can do now, but work through it! Not letting anyone get stressed over something outside of their control.

Message 3236 @ 2019-06-08 17:29:19 - Courtney: And I'm sorry you ever did.

Message 3237 @ 2019-06-08 17:29:20: Yes

Message 3238 @ 2019-06-08 17:29:31: Well thank you

Message 3239 @ 2019-06-08 17:29:40: Sent

You are very good at not taking things personal

Message 3240 @ 2019-06-08 17:29:45: When I go off

Message 3241 @ 2019-06-08 17:30:07 - Clint: I am in agony over this whole thing we have been discussing on an off every day

Message 3242 @ 2019-06-08 17:30:23 - Courtney: Jenny got really stressed out one day and we told her the same. It's not worth it. You just have to leave it at work!

Message 3243 @ 2019-06-08 17:30:56 - Clint: The thing with you and Christian and Stephanie made me extremely mad but it was just what broke the camels back over how I saw myself being treated by others

Message 3244 @ 2019-06-08 17:31:09 - Clint: Yes Jenny cried at her desk

Message 3245 @ 2019-06-08 17:31:33 - Clint: Jenny had it in common with me that she cared about the job

Message 3246 @ 2019-06-08 17:35:08 - Courtney: I can assure you that we treated you the same as others in that regard. We were definitely a little softer on due dates and stuff. I'm glad that made things less stressful.

Message 3247 @ 2019-06-08 17:35:13: That she did

Message 3248 @ 2019-06-08 17:37:49 - Courtney: Yeah the due dates were softer on others as I see it

Message 3249 @ 2019-06-08 17:37:55: Before you especially

Message 3250 @ 2019-06-08 17:38:12: Because they could just put them back in my name

Message 3251 @ 2019-06-08 17:38:23 - Clint: And I'm not being mean but that is what happened

Message 3252 @ 2019-06-08 17:38:55 - Clint: But I was probably the only one or one of a few that was given the Liberty you gave me

Message 3253 @ 2019-06-08 17:39:10 - Clint: And check me on what I am telling you

Message 3254 @ 2019-06-08 17:40:41 - Clint: Ask my offices and they will tell you that I spoke very well of you often, never gave you a negative review in any instance, and if their memory is good enough they will remember specifically me telling them good things about the due date trading

Message 3255 @ 2019-06-08 17:41:51 - Clint: Like I say, I am moody and you fluctuated from a 7 to a 10 at any given time but I always had positive things to say about you and extremely little negative

Message 3256 @ 2019-06-08 17:43:00 - Clint: I would say I said 1 negative thing about you for every 25 times I said things what were positive. Probably 1 in 50 is closer

Message 3257 @ 2019-06-08 17:47:21 - Courtney: They shouldn't have been putting them back, unless they discussed with you first and maybe swapped for something else.

Message 3258 @ 2019-06-08 17:47:46 - Courtney: You were the only one afforded that flexibility in Charlotte

Message 3259 @ 2019-06-08 17:47:54: Idk about Denver

Message 3260 @ 2019-06-08 17:55:17 - Courtney: Well most of them did discuss

Message 3261 @ 2019-06-08 17:55:33 - Clint: And it was my fault in some cases by taking them

Message 3262 @ 2019-06-08 17:55:50 - Clint: I remember Austin I think his name was

Message 3263 @ 2019-06-08 17:55:56 - Clint: Had somewhere to be

Message 3264 @ 2019-06-08 17:56:07: And I took 8 back from him late in the day

Message 3265 @ 2019-06-08 17:56:12:

Message 3266 @ 2019-06-08 17:56:41 - Clint: He couldn't get to them because he didn't outsource his non specialty stuff

Message 3267 @ 2019-06-08 17:57:12 - Clint: In that case I should have said tough shit you're missing your appointment

Message 3268 @ 2019-06-08 17:57:31 - Clint: But my offices may have needed some of them

Message 3269 @ 2019-06-08 17:57:45 - Clint: I can't remember my reason for not putting them right back on him

Message 3270 @ 2019-06-08 17:57:59 - Courtney: Yeah, not good! I'm sure he had plenty of capacity in the first place. That's why he was given things!

Message 3271 @ 2019-06-08 17:58:01 - Clint: I just remember he had places to be

Message 3272 @ 2019-06-08 17:58:16 - Clint: Yes he was supposed to outsource his general work

Message 3273 @ 2019-06-08 17:58:20: They all were

Message 3274 @ 2019-06-08 17:58:25: But several did not

Message 3275 @ 2019-06-08 17:58:37 - Clint:

And I end up getting the work back

Message 3276 @ 2019-06-08 17:58:51: And to go back to you

Message 3277 @ 2019-06-08 17:59:06 - Clint: I would say the ratio might be 1/75

Message 3278 @ 2019-06-08 17:59:32 - Clint: I don't think I ever said much specific bad about you

Message 3279 @ 2019-06-08 17:59:53 - Clint: Just said at one point "I might have a few grievances with her" 2019-06-08 18:00:21

Mainly referring to the meeting I thought you were a part of but which may not have happened that day I left

Message 3280 @ 2019-06-08 18:00:48 - Clint: And I trash talked your spreads one day I am pretty sure

Message 3281 @ 2019-06-08 18:00:53: Lol

Message 3282 @ 2019-06-08 18:00:57: That was my vice

Message 3283 @ 2019-06-08 18:01:48 - Clint:

I was a little too apt to trash talk peoples spreads but still didn't do that much

Message 3284 @ 2019-06-08 18:02:32 - Clint: But I was having a disagreement with you and you thought you were right and I mentioned that I've seen 3 of your spreads and 2 of them were seriously botched

Message 3285 @ 2019-06-08 18:06:21 - Clint: And I am just telling you. I generally try my best to talk to people the same way to their face that I do when they're not present. It is a kindness that hasn't been afforded to me by every single person I have known.

Message 3286 @: I'm making a slight exception for Jenny. I'm in limbo as to what the heck is going on with her. She is so hard to figure out. I teeter back and forth on does she care about me or no, but I do my best to not speak of my doubts. She is very, very fragile.

Message 3287 @: I am going to get a super sharp psychotherapist and she will be a topic

Message 3288 @ 2019-06-08 18:07:51 - Clint: And that is another thing about me that I should probably change. Not sure if I ever will be able to

Message 3289 @ 2019-06-08 18:07:59: Must have been botched by someone that went in after me or I had a bad day. I hardly ever got any major errors . I appreciate talking to ppl the same you would behind their backs. That's how I live!

Message 3290 @ 2019-06-08 18:08:20: Yes

Message 3291 @ 2019-06-08 18:08:25: You remember one of them

Message 3292 @ 2019-06-08 18:08:26: I think she cares from what I've seen 2019-06-08 18:08:40

Remember the one where amortization hasn't been spread?

Message 3293 @ 2019-06-08 18:09:07: Never for FYA due to the CPA reporting it atypically

Message 3294 @ 2019-06-08 18:09:20 - Clint: You had to look a little close at it

Message 3295 @ 2019-06-08 18:09:39 - Clint: They had net income that hovered around $100m to $800m

Message 3296 @ 2019-06-08 18:10:14: And there was $7 m amortization in each fya from deferred charges being straight lined

Message 3297 @ 2019-06-08 18:10:49 - Clint: The CPA didn't report it on the non cash line, but accounted for it in the changes in operating working capital

Message 3298 @ 2019-06-08 18:10:56 - Clint: That is why you missed it

Message 3299 @ 2019-06-08 18:11:00 - Clint: And everyone else did too

Message 3300 @ 2019-06-08 18:11:14 - Clint: The 2nd one was an Atlanta customer

Message 3301 @ 2019-06-08 18:11:59 - Clint: No one liked Atlanta RCBOs much or had much positive to say about working with them. The grievance was that they wouldn't be responsive and get you info

Message 3302 @ 2019-06-08 18:12:10 - Clint: I had a different experience and loved those guys

Message 3303 @ 2019-06-08 18:12:46 - Clint: But for them you spread work in process to work in progress as inventory and you spread senior debt vs sub debt wrong

Message 3304 @ 2019-06-08 18:13:20 - Clint: The WIP was a total error. The sub debt can be forgiven because you had to do some acrobatics to figure it out

Message 3305 @ 2019-06-08 18:13:50 - Clint: No one else did the acrobatics, including the office who had never made a peep about it being botched every year

Message 3306 @ 2019-06-08 18:14:18 - Clint: But Ali Greenberg confirmed that i was right

Message 3307 @ 2019-06-08 18:14:40 - Clint: It was Atlanta bonded warehouse company

Message 3308 @ 2019-06-08 18:17:31 - Clint: You wouldn't have gotten an error from anyone except Elena for any of them though, even though they were wrong

Message 3309 @ 2019-06-08 18:21:26 - Clint: The third spread was an Ag deal that your office in Texas had before mine, and you did it perfectly, including spreading the commodity based derivatives correctly without ever seeing the guidelines that I wrote or probably not karilynns guidelines. I think I asked you and you said you just used your judgment and followed the cash flow

Message 3310 @ 2019-06-10 09:06:10 - Clint: Jenny and I are no longer friends

Message 3311 @ 2019-06-10 09:06:30 - Courtney: Do you view this as good or bad

Message 3312 @ 2019-06-10 09:06:35 - Clint: I would pay $1 billion dollars if I had it to go back and time and not meet this little witch

Message 3313 @ 2019-06-10 09:06:44: I guess good

Message 3314 @ 2019-06-10 09:06:45: Received Received 2019-06-10 09:06:48

She is by far the worst thing that has ever happened to me

Message 3315 @ 2019-06-10 09:07:05: DO NOT fucking laught

Message 3316 @ 2019-06-10 09:07:12 - Courtney: I'm sorry. Glad to hear that you're distancing yourself from her

Message 3317 @ 2019-06-10 09:07:29 - Courtney: I didn't mean it in any negative way

Message 3318 @ 2019-06-10 09:07:35: Do you realize how diedfe the person giuya Gabe been taking to this whole time is

Message 3319 @ 2019-06-10 09:07:47: I am destroyed Clint:

Message 3320 @ 2019-06-10 09:07:55: Permanently

Message 3321 @ 2019-06-10 09:08:09: Over her and this and all that happened

Message 3322 @ 2019-06-10 09:08:17: I will never be better

Message 3323 @ 2019-06-10 09:08:32 - Courtney: Not sure what you said before the destroyed part. I do know this has caused you pain.

Message 3324 @ 2019-06-10 09:08:42 - Clint: My mother will be buying me very soon if something doesn't changed

Message 3325 @ 2019-06-10 09:08:57: I said do you realize how destroyed the person you have been talking to is

Message 3326 @ 2019-06-10 09:09:19 - Clint: This is not something to laugh about for the next 2000 years

Message 3327 @ 2019-06-10 09:09:19 - Courtney: Yes, and I'm sorry if you thought the emoji was negative

Message 3328 @ 2019-06-10 09:09:33 - Courtney: I definitely didn't mean it that way

Message 3329 @ 2019-06-10 09:09:38 - Clint: No it wasn't negative and that is the problem

Message 3330 @ 2019-06-10 09:09:52 - Courtney: Distancing yourself from her is a step in the right direction

Message 3331 @ 2019-06-10 09:10:02: I'm not about laughing and bunnies

Message 3332 @ 2019-06-10 09:10:05 - Courtney: I think it will help you heal

Message 3333 @ 2019-06-10 09:10:26 - Clint: Yeah but now god knows who she's talking to and what she's told them

Message 3334 @ 2019-06-10 09:10:30: And will tell them

Message 3335 @ 2019-06-10 09:10:39: God damn it 2019-06-10 09:10:57

This is worse than it all

Message 3336 @ 2019-06-10 09:10:58 - Courtney: I would hope she's decent and says nothing

Message 3337 @ 2019-06-10 09:11:08: Yeah now you're being funny

Message 3338 @ 2019-06-10 09:11:28: She has let me live in misery and burn alive on the inside for 1.5 years

Message 3339 @ 2019-06-10 09:11:36 - Clint: Lies to me the whole time.

Message 3340 @ 2019-06-10 09:11:51: And let me be her slave to do any everything for her

Message 3341 @ 2019-06-10 09:12:10 - Clint: Which I was happy to do because I cared greatly about her

Message 3342 @ 2019-06-10 09:12:19 - Clint: Something she and I have in common

Message 3343 @ 2019-06-10 09:12:40 - Clint: She is very much about herself and so was I

Message 3344 @ 2019-06-10 09:12:46: I also cared about me

Message 3345 @ 2019-06-10 09:13:28 - Clint: Sent

This is the least decent human being you will ever meet

Message 3346 @ 2019-06-10 09:14:15 - Courtney: I'm just thinking maybe she'll realize the damage she's caused and not spread anything

Message 3347 @ 2019-06-10 09:14:20: Who knows

Message 3348 @ 2019-06-10 09:15:00: She doesn't care

Message 3349 @ 2019-06-10 09:15:29: Damage doesn't matter unless it is damage to her

Message 3350 @ 2019-06-10 09:15:48 - Clint: And the minute this friendship became 1% about me she nails

Message 3351 @ 2019-06-10 09:15:51: Bails Clint:

Message 3352 @ 2019-06-10 09:15:56: And I still look out for her

Message 3353 @ 2019-06-10 09:16:13 - Clint: She has shared personal details about her that are true

Message 3354 @ 2019-06-10 09:16:30 - Clint: Unlike 50% to 100% of what she has spread everywhere about me

Message 3355 @ 2019-06-10 09:17:00 - Clint: But I do not have the heart to tell anyone else over the pain it would cause her

Message 3356 @ 2019-06-10 09:17:21 - Clint: But it doesn't matter. This is getting handled

Message 3357 @ 2019-06-10 09:17:34 - Clint: My whole life is going to be public very soon.

Message 3358 @ 2019-06-10 09:18:27: And "spread anything"

Message 3359 @ 2019-06-10 09:19:07 - Clint: Implies there is a single thing about my life I am worried about anyone else knowing

Message 3360 @ 2019-06-10 09:19:28 - Clint: I have a life that is more defensible than 99.99% of all people

Message 3361 @ 2019-06-10 09:19:41: And it will be defended very soon.

Message 3362 @ 2019-06-10 09:20:15 - Clint: Any and all takers can and will be invited to take shots at me

Message 3363 @ 2019-06-10 09:20:37 - Clint: I have plenty I wish weren't true

Message 3364 @ 2019-06-10 09:20:48: I'm not a billionaire Message 3365 @ 2019-06-10 09:20:58 - Clint: I don't live in the playboy mansion.

Message 3366 @ 2019-06-10 09:21:07: Boo hoo

Message 3367 @ 2019-06-10 09:22:00 - Clint: I more genuinely boo hoo over the wrong things I have done but I am not in a worse

boat than any other person I know

Message 3368 @ 2019-06-10 09:22:30: I am a kind and compassionate person who has a heart

Message 3369 @ 2019-06-10 09:23:03 - Clint: And whatever it is in life I am lacking id like to meet the person who was raised in similar circumstances who has all these things

Message 3370 @ 2019-06-10 09:24:01: Bonus points to the first such person who also had a county full of vicious people oppose him for 15 years

Message 3371 @ 2019-06-10 09:24:15 - Clint: Judge me by my own standards and I fail

Message 3372 @ 2019-06-10 09:24:23 - Clint: But so does everyone else

Message 3373 @ 2019-06-10 09:24:53 - Clint: Judge me by the same standards as everyone else and I'm a contender for the world championship

Message 3374 @ 2019-06-10 09:25:53: This-

Message 3375 @ 2019-06-10 09:25:56 - Clint: Yeah but now god knows who she's talking to and what she's told them

Message 3376 @ 2019-06-10 09:26:03 - Clint: Doesn't refer to anyone in Charlotte

Message 3377 @ 2019-06-10 09:26:16: This refers to the people out for my life

Message 3378 @ 2019-06-10 09:26:45 - Clint: That she is talking to or at least what she says gets back to them

Message 3379 @ 2019-06-10 09:28:49 - Clint: But I will instantly take back the care about me part

Message 3380 @ 2019-06-10 09:29:07 - Clint: I think she may be genuine about that Message 3381 @ 2019-06-10 09:35:24 - Clint: My former worry was information that was spread where I used to live, false information mainly as well as truthful information that I could explain if people were given a gentle gliding into it, would make it here

Message 3382 @ 2019-06-10 09:36:08 - Clint: I am no longer worried about that much because no point in worrying about the possibility or probability of something happening that already has

Message 3383 @ 2019-06-10 09:36:26 - Clint: For a good bit now my concern has been primarily info going the other way

Message 3384 @ 2019-06-10 09:36:45 - Clint: And in that case if it's false info that's a good thing

Message 3385 @ 2019-06-10 09:37:00: And if it's true it's a very bad thing

Message 3386 @ 2019-06-10 09:41:25 - Clint: You seem to respond after about 27 texts which is understandable considering how fast my thumbs go and how voluminous my thoughts are. But I do regret calling her a witch

Message 3387 @ 2019-06-10 09:41:40: She's an overall good person who has caused me unbelievable pain

Message 3388 @ 2019-06-10 11:46:11: But people knowing about my life is unavoidable

Message 3389 @ 2019-06-10 11:46:49 - Clint: I at this point can choose between having privacy and having every lie and accusation in the books told about me

Message 3390 @ 2019-06-10 11:47:13 - Clint: Or I can take it public and just let the truth get out there

Message 3391 @ 2019-06-10 11:47:30 - Clint: And having privacy in North Carolina is off the table completely

Message 3392 @ 2019-06-10 11:47:58 - Clint: The exponential effect of every true and untrue thing about me being spread has happened sufficiently

Message 3393 @ 2019-06-10 11:48:50: There are now 100s or maybe closer to 1000 people in the mountains and several dozen here in Charlotte, possibly closer to 100 here

Message 3394 @ 2019-06-10 11:49:58 - Clint: The degrees of separation are too few for all of the information to not go from one end of this state to the other now that I have been on both sides

Message 3395 @ 2019-06-10 11:50:16 - Clint: And I am sure as hell not safe in the workplace

Message 3396 @ 2019-06-10 11:51:34 - Clint: When it is in front of the world like it very soon will be, who is the good guy and who the numerous bad guys are will be very clear. The hit and run is over forever

Message 3397 @ 2019-06-10 12:36:56 - Clint: And the shit show that is about to explode is unbelievable. I absolutely cannot believe that it has come to this. Why people in such good circumstances would wager on their chances of this not happening for no good reason and nothing to gain is beyond me. They think they have an ace in the Hole apparently, but by the end of the unbelievable hell that is likely about to ensue, it will be a big fat joker and the entire world will see them holding it. My life will never be the same from now on, that is for sure. I am permanently damaged and what is about to happen will not be a cherry on the cake but another cake itself piled on top, but one day I will be dead. That is the right I cherish the most and is a unique right in that it can never be taken away.

Message 3398 @ 2019-06-10 12:56:14 - Clint: People with something to lose in life and want to continue on with it burn holes in someone like me for no gain whatsoever

Message 3399 @ 2019-06-10 14:20:18 - Clint: This is what I just typed jenny

Message 3400 @ 2019-06-10 14:20:21 - Clint: I am sorry again for hurting you. It was very cruel of me to bring up the $100 thing again and to belittle all you have done for me. I will never be the same again from this point on. My mind has been permanently damaged by this and i am prone to lashing out. I am going to bed now. You are good enough jenny

Message 3401 @ 2019-06-10 14:20:47 - Clint: And it makes me cry that I made you feel like you are not when I know how much pain that causes you.

Message 3402 @ 2019-06-10 14:21:08: So I am sorry. I would like for my pain to mean enough to make someone cry. It makes me cry every single day and has for probably a month. I will cry every single day multiple times a day for the rest of my life over this. But it's not about me saying this. I won't message you again but I am hurting over what I said and I want you to know that Message 3403 @ 2019-06-10 14:21:16 - Clint: No one cries about my pain except me

Message 3404 @ 2019-06-10 14:21:26 - Clint: My poor mother will cry about it one day

Message 3405 @ 2019-06-10 19:38:59 - Courtney: Sorry, crazy busy day, as usual. I just logged off a few mins ago. I'll take a look through.

Message 3406 @ 2019-06-10 19:44:32 - Courtney: Does that mean you're considering creating the website you mentioned previously? 2019-06-10 19:46:51

Do you feel better apologizing to Jenny? I know that even though she's caused you pain you still care for her.

Message 3407 @ 2019-06-10 22:43:36 - Clint: I care about her a lot. I believe she cares about me most of the time. I do doubt it at times though. She is extremely selfish in many ways and is unable to see it

Message 3408 @ 2019-06-10 22:44:20 - Clint: What I think it is with her, and please don't share this, is that she has huge insecurities that were caused by her childhood

Message 3409 @ 2019-06-10 22:45:51 - Clint: She has feelings of inferiority and all kinds of doubts about her worth as a person.

Message 3410 @: She is further unable to distinguish her behavior from herself. The faulty belief that she has on a largely unconscious level, is that if you DO something wrong you ARE something wrong

Message 3411 @ 2019-06-10 22:49:54 - Clint: And with her self esteem ruined so bad from her childhood, this makes it intolerable to ever admit doing something wrong. She is so tender that it causes unbelievable pain and so fragile it would break her completely.

Message 3412 @: So she in her life builds up a fortress. Every chink in her armor has to be patched and she must be tough on the world. The fortress has a function, and that is to protect this person behind its walls from being shattered.

Message 3413 @: And this hyper-vigilant need to Protect herself consumes her mental and emotional resources. She doesn't have much left afterwards to direct to being concerned for others when she feels threatened

Message 3414 @ 2019-06-10 23:01:22 - Clint: I do hope that everyone involved realizes that I have told the truth 100% about everything that I have said. If someone has made a claim that I am some sort of devious liar and it is being believed, there is no justification. There is no evidence of anything but ethical, hard work, and generously helping others. If people wish to believe the words of a fugitive named Abbey against what their own eyes have seen,

Message 3417 @: How it is that Jenny and Tunny and everyone else involved want to explain their association with this person and their deliberate spreading of his garbage I am not sure. I do not see a morally acceptable reason to, especially considering that Tunny is of recent Asian descent and this person is a racist who has friends on his Facebook that celebrate Adolph Hitlers birthday. I have personally saw posts between him and one such guy where he appended 88 to the end of his post. I'm sure he has done this more than I have saw him

Message 3418 @ 2019-06-10 23:04:10: If they do not understand that mental illnesses do not equate to character flaws in any way, the resource they need to cure themselves of that blatant and cruel prejudice and bigotry is not a fugitive who does not take care of 6 of her children, and is wanted in several states for various crimes including identity theft against her own sister

Message 3419 @ 2019-06-10 23:15:20 - Clint: And again, it is unbelievable that it has come to this over a very simple request for the truth asked in 100 different ways, and under the terms for all involved that if they would just fess up and have a discussion there would be no consequence.

Message 3420 @: What they have to gain by lying and withholding the truth is beyond me but they had nothing to lose in telling me for

1.5 years

Message 3421 @ 2019-06-10 23:16:08 - Clint: And now I am left permanently damaged by what has happened. I am going to see a therapist but I am good at judging myself and my doctors rarely disagree. I do not think I will ever recover from this.

Message 3422 @ 2019-06-10 23:16:44 - Clint: If I do it will take 10 years of hard and painful work in therapy that will cause me that much more pain before the healing ever takes place

Message 3423 @ 2019-06-10 23:27:42: But I don't see it happened. I have never been in this condition before and it is terrible

Message 3424 @ 2019-06-11 05:02:30 - Clint: I hope this doesn't wake you up, but Abbeys sister is a good and honest person I have known well for a long time. We spent a lot of time together in my teenage years. I had first thought that she had heard whatever it was about me and told Abbey, then later deduced from

The conversation below that it was entirely from my ex "friend" by my best estimate. I had known abbey was talking to him. Read what her own sister thinks of this situation. This is all of her commentary when I brought up this to her and asked for help. All of my messages have been left out.

Message 3425 @: Good luck getting this person to come and defend her lies. If what her sister says is true, and 100% of the evidence leads me to believe it is, there is no prayer.

Message 3426 @: This is who people want to take sides with against a kind hearted man who killed himself to help others the whole time they knew him. They are not prejudiced against this person but instead are prejudiced against me.

Message 3427 @: They can give her a call and ask her to come say what she "knows." She won't come because she knows there will be a roadblock waiting on her.

Message 3428 @: In the meantime all of the scores of people I have did kind things for will have no problem vouching for me.

Message 3429 @ 2019-06-11 05:02:41 - Clint: Yeah. She's a habitual liar and a sociopath. She's given birth to 7 children and has nothing to do with six of them. She got pulled over last year and "borrowed" my social and identity to try to get out of it. She didn't show up in court so now she's a fugitive in NC as well as VA and Delaware I think.

Message 3430 @: What's next for you? Stay in Charlotte?

Message 3431 @: Looking back on your behavior in school and knowing what I know now about spectrum disorders, it makes sense.

Message 3432 @: I very much have positive memories of you too. Smart as hell with a great sense of humor. Your laugh made me smile.

Message 3433 @: As I said before, Abbey and I have not been in contact since she lied to me about the whole incident with her getting pulled over. I just have to separate myself and my family from her for now.

Message 3434 @: It seems best to let sleeping dogs lie. You know what I mean?

Message 3435 @: When Abbey lies, it's either to gain something or to get out of trouble. Would she have something to gain by saying stuff about you?

Message 3436 @: You said in a previous conversation you were delusional and needed to apologize to her. What changed?

Message 3437 @: You're worrying me. Don't worry about Abbey. Fuck that. Please take care of yourself.

Message 3438 @: Don't be sorry. I don't know what to say. I don't know what she might have said but I see it deeply effected you. It's hard not to let what other people say effect you but fuck em. They're not you. They don't know you nor pay your bills.

Message 3439 @: But she doesn't know you, does she?

Are people saying someone told them something about you?

Message 3440 @: Sadly, she hasn't matured beyond the age of 12. I guess since she's trying to lay low from the cops all she has to do is stir up crap. She's no ones friend. I know she can make you feel like you're the funniest, smartest person ever but she will turn on you in a second.

Message 3441 @ 2019-06-11 05:06:18 - Clint: I missed a few. This one was in the middle of the conversation-

Message 3442 @: I remember your sweet mama. You have her blood in your veins too. And this was at the top-

Message 3443 @: I do have more than one sister. Abbey and I have not spoken since she stole my identity and borrowed my social security number again late last year.

Message 3444 @ 2019-06-12 08:32:08: How is your day ?

Message 3445 @ 2019-06-12 08:32:39 - Clint: Or morning rather. I've been up all night

Message 3446 @ 2019-06-12 08:51:47: I'm taking action steps related to this and it will soon be public knowledge

Message 3447 @ 2019-06-12 08:52:08 - Clint: I understand that you think church is pointless due to your atheism

Message 3448 @ 2019-06-12 08:52:26 - Clint: But I am going to send this matter to the highest levels of Jenny's church

Message 3449 @ 2019-06-12 08:52:49 - Clint: She cares about what they think of her and it may change her behavior

Message 3450 @ 2019-06-12 08:52:59 - Clint: She has serious ethical problems

Message 3451 @ 2019-06-12 08:53:28 - Clint: And doesn't care about what her actions do to people but only cares if her actions are known

Message 3452 @ 2019-06-12 08:53:55 - Clint: So the unknown facts that are destroying my life need to become known.

Message 3453 @ 2019-06-12 08:55:01 - Clint: I may also post her pictures and the details of how she has exploited and used me and that she may be repeating defamatory lies that she got from a fugitive upon being prompted by others

Message 3454 @ 2019-06-12 08:55:34 - Clint: I will post pictures of Katie Xie and Tunny

Message 3493 @ 2019-06-13 17:11:06: If you want me to quit texting you let me know. I am sorry for the day and night texting I just go off the rails over this and can't always control myself

Message 3494 @ 2019-06-13 17:11:26 - Clint: I am seeing my doctor every 2 weeks starting today

Message 3495 @ 2019-06-13 17:37:56: Hey, Clint! I apologize for the delay. Work has been incredibly busy! I wanted to reach out to you regarding the texts you sent to me earlier this week and yesterday. I am not mad at you. However, I am concerned about your wellbeing, and am saddened that you're struggling, but I am not the right person to provide support. Please utilize your doctor/healthcare provider for support during difficult times.

1. My name is Leonard Clinton Williams III. I am writing to inform you of unbelievably wanton and vicious criminal and civil law violations which have been perpetrated against me. I have been subjected to such behaviors from several entities in my current city, Charlotte, N.C. The criminal behaviors I have been subjected to tie to a common origin; that being my former employer Wells Fargo. Each of you has jurisdiction or an interest in this matter or an interest in the parties involved; thus I am reporting to you. This is a formal complaint and also a request for help from those with criminal jurisdiction over the crimes involved.

2. The complaint will be outlined as follows: I will first give, in the immediately following paragraphs, a summary and overview of what has occurred. I have an air tight case, based on accumulated evidence and reasoned logic, for each allegation of criminal behavior I make in the summary and overview. Immediately following the summary and overview, I will give an outline of the body and conclusion of the complaint. I will then deliver the body and conclusion of the complaint. The body of the complaint will start by narrating the background and history that precedes the events that are the main subject matter of the complaint; it will then deliver a detailed account of the events that are the main subject matter of the complaint. Each section of the body which describes alleged criminal behavior will be followed by an analysis section. For those sections, the analysis will include a discussion of the evidence and the reasoning on which my conclusions are based. Paragraphs are numbered so that they can later be referenced, if and when referencing is needed. A simple font styling convention is followed, where important or emphasized words are italicized as is this example text, and words with special importance or added emphasis are both italicized and boldfaced as is this example text.

Summary and Overview

3. The first unlawful behavior was committed by Wells Fargo in December 2017, during the time in which I was an employee of Wells Fargo's commercial lending segment. A completely incompetent, incapable, and unqualified man was given a very senior role over the department I worked for at Wells Fargo. In a characteristic event of complete, absurdly incompetent idiocy this unqualified senior manager had a former employee "look into my past". In doing this, Wells Fargo committed a civil intrusion upon seclusion. This former employee is named Jennifer Cox ("Jenny"), and she was a friend of mine at Wells Fargo. Jenny had been one of my coworkers in our segment of commercial lending, and she and I had continued to be friends after she left Wells Fargo.

4. All I wanted was to talk about what had happened. I attempted repeatedly, and in futility, to have an honest conversation about this invasion of privacy. I did so for over 1.5 years following the first week of December 2017, the approximate time that the invasion of privacy occurred. I repeatedly offered to do so under terms of "being completely forgiven”, “no consequence”, and similar terms. At one point, I offered to sign a nondisclosure agreement. I didn’t know for a very long time that Wells Fargo was behind what had occurred. I just knew that someone from work had been speaking about me to others from the life I had left in the mountains of western N.C., which is the area where I had lived prior to moving to Charlotte.

5. It was the sudden change in behavior of my coworkers and management that made it clear to me that someone had been speaking to these people from my previous place of living. I was treated at Wells Fargo, during and following the first week of December 2017, in a way that was unmistakably familiar. It was reminiscent of and exactly like treatment that I had received while living in the mountains of western N.C.

6. In the mountains I was subjected to disparaging treatment and stigmatization because I have a history of hospitalization for mental health treatment. I lived in secret but terrible pain in this place, before moving to Charlotte N.C. in August 2011.

7. When I moved to Charlotte, in addition to leaving behind some very painful mistreatment, I had left behind a big mess. The mess I left behind included people who tried to kill me. Being told the truth literally felt like (and likely was) a matter of life and death.

8. Wells Fargo wasn’t interested in telling the truth. It seems clear, at the present moment, that Wells Fargo has instructed Jenny to not admit to what happened for the entire time. I believe she was told to not admit to it at all costs. My first attempts to be told the truth were directed at Jenny. I had known from the beginning that Jenny knew something about it. It was only after she made a Freudian slip that I realized she was the person (or among the persons) who had spoken to someone.

9. Rather than telling the truth, Wells Fargo turns to its seemingly most familiar method of engaging with life to address this situation; it's called crime. As my requests to be told the truth become more desperate and then eventually more intense and demanding, Wells Fargo decides to respond. The megabank appears to perceive requests for it to be truthful to be tantamount to a declaration of war. This mentality becomes evident when, in April 2019, Wells Fargo initiates a shock and awe counterattack of wantonly ambitious criminal behavior.

10. In its process of uncontained wanton criminality Wells Fargo induced into crime, corruption, and deceit what seems like the entire infrastructure of my city. This includes the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police, local crisis line, and The Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hospital Authority, the corporation which owns the hospital I go to for care and which currently does business as Atrium Health. Each of these entities has participated in Wells Fargo's criminal plans and criminal activities.

11. A local crisis line, known as Mobile Crisis and owned by The Sante Affiliate Group, was paid to create a fraudulent healthcare record. The same crisis line then participated in the obtaining and processing of a false pretense, fraudulent civil commitment petition. It does this along with Jenny and the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police.

12. An officer of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police, as an obviously premediated component of processing this knowingly fraudulent petition, deliberately violated my constitutional right to due process of law. As I will detail in the body of the complaint, he was aided in this by Atrium Health, the healthcare nonprofit that owns the inpatient psychiatric facility that I was transported to and then forced to stay in.

13. My inpatient stay was cut short because Wells Fargo had, apparently, made a miscalculation in its process of inducing Atrium Health into crime. Wells Fargo didn't pay off or work in secret with all of the staff at Atrium; it appears to have only paid off or worked in secret with some of the staff at Atrium. I was interviewed by more than one doctor during my stay at Atrium Health's inpatient unit. I was also interviewed by employees called psychiatrist assistants. After staying just a few days in the inpatient unit, a team of doctors and staff, I was told, had independently concluded that there was nothing at all wrong with me.

14. The findings of the doctors who examined me included that the claims on this petition, prepared by Jenny and a Mobile Crisis counselor, were clearly not true. These included claims that I was "paranoid", "delusional", and "thought my friends were out to get me", to paraphrase. This bizarre way of describing my claim that Jenny, and perhaps others, had perpetrated a violation of my privacy was intended to discount my belief that a privacy violation had occurred at Wells Fargo. The surrounding events make it clear that Wells Fargo has intended to use my mental health diagnosis to cover up its misdeeds. Wells Fargo has intended to convince me and anyone else that my belief about what had occurred was a "delusion" resulting from my mental health condition.

15. Following my hospital rejecting the civil commitment petition, Wells Fargo found itself in a pickle. The bank appears to have been concerned with what evidence my hospital may have of its criminal behavior. This becomes apparent when Wells Fargo again, seemingly reflexively, turns to crime.

16. Wells Fargo's next move is to offer an employee, named Shirley, at Atrium Health's finance department some, apparently large, amount of money. The money was to be in exchange for delivering, to Wells Fargo, my healthcare records from Atrium Health's internal records. This possibly also included obtaining and delivering records from other providers. Shirley would be able to procure my healthcare records if she could convince me to allow her to file a Medicaid application on my behalf. She could also procure them if she filed a Medicaid application without my consent or knowledge, and that is the avenue she eventually pursued.

17. Wells Fargo's criminal ambition is extreme and is only exceeded by my ability to catch them in the act. I catch them once again in this crime involving Shirley and Atrium Health. I characteristically know something isn't right on June 6th, 2019, when Jenny tells me that I need to call Shirley at Atrium Health. Jenny says that Shirley has called Jenny on Jenny's work number looking for me. This was odd for many reasons; the principal one being that I didn't even know Jenny's work number at this time (so how does Atrium get it?).

18. Trying to get to the bottom of what Atrium is up to, I record a phone conversation with Shirley without Shirley's consent or knowledge. In the state of N.C., I need neither. Shirley tells me that she is an employee of Atrium's finance department and that part of her role is filling out Medicaid applications on behalf of patients. Very early in our talk, I state that I have no interest in Medicaid. Despite this, Shirley makes repeated, sometimes desperate attempts, for spurious reasons and under false pretenses, to get my full 9-digit social security number.

19. I would later confirm with Atrium Health Corporate Privacy staff that Atrium's finance department's only use for my full social security number was to obtain my healthcare records and then file a Medicaid application. This makes it clear that my healthcare records were what Shirley was after. For reasons which will be explained in the body of this complaint, it seems almost certain that she intended to file a fraudulent Medicaid application to cover her tracks.

20. Given that Wells Fargo has used its enormous financial resources to induce Atrium Health into crime, it may appear that Atrium Health has been corrupted by Wells Fargo. Atrium Health's behavior, unfortunately, seems to indicate that to say that Wells Fargo corrupted Atrium Health is to make a bit of an overstatement. Atrium appears to have been either corrupt or ripe for corruption for the entire time I have been its patient. This seems to be the case despite the fact that Atrium's rabid corruption only became clear following my stay at its inpatient unit.

21. That Atrium has no inhibition in committing crimes is made clear following my telling my nurse practitioner psychiatrist, Kathleen Peniston ("Kathy" or "my doctor"), about the suspect behavior coming from Shirley and Atrium's finance department. During the appointment when I first tell her about Shirley's behavior, Kathy discounts my concerns; what I describe does not seem suspect to her. In a subsequent appointment, however, I give her more details that make it clear in her mind that what has occurred really is suspect. She doesn't directly express to me that she has had this realization, that what I had suspected was true. Instead, she gets a strange look on her face, the meaning of which didn't immediately fully register with me.

22. The meaning and implication of Kathy's strange demeanor became clear when, following the appointment where I gave her the new, more conclusively inculpatory details, I am speaking to Jenny. As we talk, Jenny, very strangely, has things on her mind that I have discussed with Kathy. I have spent many hours talking to Jenny, and I know exactly how it happens when she gets things on her mind like this. Jenny will sometimes express what I have come to call "plagiarized private thoughts."

23. Jenny, I have sadly come to realize, suffers from some kind of deficit. Despite being very capable in many ways, she has some limitations. One of the ways this deficit will express itself is by Jenny telling you things that she has heard from or discussed with others but to which she attributes to her own private thoughts or "speculations."

24. In investigating this strange occurrence, it became clear that Kathy had reached out to Jenny and Wells Fargo in an attempt to save Atrium from the consequences of Atrium's rampant criminal behavior. Kathy knew I had the recorded phone call with Shirley from Atrium's finance department. She seems to have clearly been concerned about the potential consequences for Atrium.

25. Kathy, it has become clear to me, is in this business for her career. That's what matters to her, and she has no compassion for her patients. Her career was her concern, not that Wells Fargo is abusing Atrium's facilities and using Atrium's government provided funds first to perpetrate and then to cover up Wells Fargo's criminal behavior.

26. Wells Fargo doesn't have to bribe Atrium for my health information, Kathy will hand it over voluntarily if that's what it takes to protect Atrium and her career. It may have been a tit for tat exchange in which each party shares notes, in an attempt to evade the legal liabilities each of them had accrued. It may have been an attitude of “he’s causing us trouble. Whatever Wells Fargo wants, I will just give it to them.”

Whatever it was, she shared my health information with someone who I had deauthorized over half a dozen times. It was a violation of my rights and violation of the law, and it was far from the first of these to happen.

27. I now have evidence that Kathy and Atrium have been engaging in HIPAA violations against me since at least May of 2019. It appears that Kathy had discovered that Atrium was up to no good early on, following my inpatient stay. It appears that this splurging of my health information wasn’t the first time that Atrium has contacted Jenny without my consent.

28. The evidence for these HIPAA violations includes that Jenny has been speaking to my mother, behind my back and against my consent, for a very long time. There is one entity in the state of N.C., or anywhere else that I am aware of, that has both Jenny’s number and my mother’s number. That entity is Atrium Health who, as I will describe in the body of this complaint, forced me to give both numbers to them and then refused to delete them.

29. Atrium Health doesn’t seem to realize that its patients have rights. Atrium’s employees seem so unafraid of consequences that they casually break the law anytime they feel like it. Their unlawful and unethical behavior continues to the present day, as does that of Wells Fargo.

30. During the time period in which the preceding described events occurred, my approach to addressing what has occurred slowly began to shift. It began as a simple request to be told the truth; it then transitioned into an investigation to be conducted for the purpose of building a case to be turned over for criminal and/or civil prosecution. I took the task of conducting an investigation upon myself. I knew that no one would believe me until I had evidence. I also have a habit of turning to my own resources when faced with certain tasks in life. I wear and have worn many hats in my now almost 40 years of living.

31. In the process of conducting my investigation, I have compiled a large amount of physical and third-party evidence. I use the term “physical evidence” in a way that is intended to be inclusive of digitally recorded phone calls and digital text messages. It is not intended to be limited only to things that are contained in or consist of some physical matter.

32. I have created a web portal to accompany the complaint. The web portal is housed on the internet domain investigationportal.com. The web portal serves three purposes.

33. The first purpose of the web portal is to house the evidence I have collected (and continue to collect) during my investigation. Many of the agencies I am reporting to have online portals to be used to submit evidence. These online portals have file size limits for any evidence that may be submitted. Much of my evidence files exceed these limits. Other agencies have no such portal. My web portal is secured and it is an efficient way to share the evidence with interested parties, all while controlling who has access to the evidence.

34. The second purpose of the web portal is to house detailed analyses of the evidence I have accumulated during my investigation. In each case, the analyses will serve one or more of the following functions, 1) Narrate events that have transpired; 2)

Provide the reasoning on which my conclusions are based; and/or 3) Provide background on and my insights into events that have transpired. These functions, together, singularly function to efficiently catch all interested parties up to speed on the content and events of my now over 2.5 years long investigation.

35. The web portal is meant to function as a self-contained portal for my investigation. Everything relevant to my investigation, directly or indirectly, is provided on the web portal. Any requests for additional information will be responded to as promptly as my condition allows (I am currently suffering from a disabling health condition). I will upload any requested additional information to the web portal.

36. The sections of the body and conclusion of the complaint will be outlined below. Some sections of the complaint will include an account of events that is followed by a succeeding section with an analysis of those events. The outline is as follows:

I. Detailed History

I.(a) Background of My Life Before Moving to Charlotte

37. I come from among the humblest of beginnings. My mother was barely 19 years old when I was born. She came from a poor family, and she didn't have a high school diploma. My father was also a high school dropout, as well as a habitual criminal with an apparent pathological personality. My mother's selflessness has defined her existence, and my father's pathological selfishness defined most of his until he died in 2009. For my protection my mother had left him when I was 3 years old. My father was using and manufacturing illegal drugs in our residence, and he also beat my mother up on a few occasions.

38. My childhood was chaotic, and I was hard for others to understand. In middle and high school there were two opposing realities that seemed constantly at play. One side of these opposing realities was my being a very capable student. I seemed to be the kind of raw material that a skilled group of teachers could make into a dramatic success in life. This is, perhaps, what made the other side of these opposing realities so frustrating; I was an increasingly chronic behavior problem and a dramatic underachiever. The staff at my middle school eventually determined that I must have been subjected to some sort of mistreatment at home. They were quite correct in this; I had been abused very severely for many years. I had also been spoiled by a permissive mother that bought be everything she could afford and most of the things she could not.

39. This mixed bag of a childhood was the source of the chaos; it was a situation where neither calling it good nor calling it bad will accurately convey the circumstances I faced. The school eventually referred me to an outpatient psychologist, and he was able to dramatically improve my behavior. Unfortunately, my rapid progress appears to have given a false sense that I was ok to navigate life on my own. After the frequency of our counseling sessions slowly decreased, finally reaching zero, I began to have behavior problems and to skip school. My high school career ended when I got suspended and also quit on the exact same day, the day after I turned 16.

40. The event that would come to define my life occurred a few years later, when I was 18 years old. I was admitted to a mental hospital called Broughton that is located in Morganton, N.C. I had no idea that this event would follow me for the rest of my existence. At the time, I scarcely even realized where I was at. I was admitted voluntarily and signed an agreement to stay for 21 days.

41. My arrival at the Broughton hospital was the result of bad lifestyle choices I had made coming back to bite me with consequences. I had, as a teenager, adopted what my friends and I called a party lifestyle. In the months preceding my hospitalization, I had begun to experiment with hallucinogenic drugs. I was later told by the medical staff at the hospital that for some percentage of those who experiment with or regularly use these drugs, the use will trigger an enduring mental illness. The illness will require medication therapy, most likely for the remainder of the affected person's life.

42. My stay at the hospital was a very low point in my life, at that time the lowest of all. I was subjected to abuse and mistreatment by staff, and I had a miserable time. I was also subjected to very biased treatment by the M.D. psychiatrist, Dr. Hai Chung, who was assigned to my unit.

43. Dr. Chung adopted a biased attitude towards me after I had challenged him on some of his conclusions. I wanted to clear up some misconceptions that he and other staff had. I also wanted to share my thoughts as to what condition I should be diagnosed with. I felt that I was suffering from a different condition than the condition he had concluded that I was suffering from.

44. Dr. Chung seems to have taken great offense to my not deferring to his medical and other opinions. He adopted an attitude of dismissing and refusing to listen to anything that I said. This was troubling because in this hospital the M.D. psychiatrist is who determines when you are allowed to go home, and I desperately wanted to go home.

45. Dr. Chung eventually persuaded me to sign a voluntary agreement for a prolonged stay of an additional 60 days. The 60 days would start the day after the initial 21-day agreement had expired. This under the promise I would be returned home much earlier than the agreement outlined. It was also under the threat that if I didn't sign the agreement, he would have the courts compel me to an even longer stay of an additional 90 days.

46. The promise for early return home was contingent upon my "doing well" at the time the decision was to be made. The entire staff of the unit thought I was doing very well as my early return date approached. I was excited and convinced I would finally be going home.

47. I was devastated when Dr. Chung didn't keep his promise. He instead, on the proposed early return date, assigned me to a "long-term" unit. I would be scheduled to stay at least another 30 days. The medical staff at the long-term unit would have the option to return me to home early. In hospitals like this hospital, the doctors have unlimited discretion in returning people home from care. I was, however, bound for up to an additional 30 days by the agreement I had signed.

48. The medical staff at the new unit was much more professional and much more willing to listen to me, but they did things that disturbed me. In one interview with a psychologist, I was asked “are you hetero or homosexual?” I replied that I was heterosexual. The psychologist responded “are you comfortable with that?” I gave him what I see as the obvious reply, “yes”, to this question. This question and other questions that were asked seemed to be clearly designed to “fish” for reasons to keep you at this hospital.

49. Then I had other grievances. During my stay at this hospital, I was placed on a medicine that has, as a side effect, a tendency to make you sleep extremely long hours. A certain portion of those taking this medication will sleep 12 to 18 or even more hours per day, each day. This is a side effect of this medication that is beyond the control of the people who experience it.

50. I was one such person who experiences this side effect, and I would sleep 12 to 14 hours per day. This caused me to be absent for some my assigned programs on some days. The medical staff threatened to extend my stay over these absences. To their credit, they did not extend my stay. I was allowed to return home 9 days earlier than the end date of the agreement I had signed. I was very disturbed, still, that my hellish stay was almost prolonged as a result of a medication side effect I had no control over.

51. My conclusion after staying at this hospital can be stated as follows: You never, ever give anyone any reason to have you sent to one of these places. If you do find yourself in such a place, your primary goal is not to tell them the truth or to tell them what you think. If you tell them the truth, as you see it, and they do not listen, you immediately stop telling them the truth. You tell them what they want to hear. What they want to hear is your only prayer of getting out, and what they want to hear is for you to repeat what they themselves have already concluded.

52. It seemed clear to me that if you go to one of these places, you will be kept there forever. It seemed clear to me that if you find yourself in such a place, you do not disagree with them, or you will be subject to an indefinite stay; the biased doctors will invent every reason under the sun to keep you. This conclusion becomes relevant in events that occur much later and which will be described in a later section of this complaint.

53. There was initially some confusion and disagreement regarding my diagnosis among medical staff at the hospital. Subsequent to my returning home, it was eventually settled that I suffer from a condition called bipolar disorder type I. This was the diagnosis that I had recommended to the Dr. Chung, who had refused to listen to me and insisted on another diagnosis. This condition is considered a serious mental illness by The American Psychiatric Association, but those who suffer from it can often have very successful lives.

54. The hospital was a low point that caused me to eventually rebound to a much higher point. I was freshly 19 years old upon returning home from the hospital. Up into age 20, I continued to have an increasingly diluted and increasingly sporadic “party” lifestyle. Then sometime during my 20th year, I abandoned this lifestyle completely. As my bad habits were tapering off (I even eventually quit smoking cigarettes), I began to work with my outpatient psychologist, John Monguillot (“John”), towards fulfilling some goals. I wanted to make something out of my life.

55. John was the first outpatient psychologist I had since middle and high school. During my middle and high school years, a man named Ray Powers (referenced in paragraph 38) had treated me for behavioral problems. I had flourished under the care of Ray Powers. I began, once again, to flourish under the care of John.

56. At the time I began to work with him John was the first person to be in my corner in many years. My teachers in elementary, middle, and high school had all wanted the best for me. They encouraged and supported me to no end. Upon my final walking out of the doors of my high school, I found myself in a world of vicious opposition. I have since come to realize that having goals and ambitions and then pursuing them intensely doesn’t trigger the most positive emotions in others.

57. As I worked with John, I determined that the mess I had made of my life didn’t have to be. My terrible performance in school had nothing to do with lack of ability. It was completely due to lack of effort. I have been noted for and observed to have abnormal intellectual abilities in several domains. The verdict of almost all who have known me is that I am very bright and, to some, even extremely bright or a genius.

58. I had many ideas for what I might want to be in life. Years earlier, around when I was 17 years old, I had gotten my G.E.D. This left the door open to go to college, and going to college was one option I considered seriously. I was, however, also very much interested in pursuing a career playing billiards.

59. I had saved up a large amount of money by age 24. The purpose of this money was to either build a garage and put a professional pool table in it or to go to college. I eventually opted for the garage.

60. Around the time I had my garage built, I went to school to get a real estate broker's license. This was a very cheap license to get, relative to a two- or a four-year degree. I planned on pursuing billiards and also selling real estate.

61. After getting my broker's license, I turned out to not be prepared to sell real estate. Despite passing every test with flying colors, I had no success when I first tried selling real estate in 2006. I ended up getting into debt to pursue this career, and I received no resulting financial benefit.

62. My debts grew as a result of my attempt at real estate. I had gotten an SUV to haul around clients, a computer for the office, and some dress clothes to wear on my days at the office. Gasoline was also extremely expensive at this time, and my courtesy role as a neighborhood chauffeur had my credit cards charged up.

63. I found a way out of the resulting financial crunch. I had been thinking of going back to college again, not long after having the pool table installed in my garage. There were customers at the gas station where I worked who had told me about how much they enjoyed college. They had also told me about all of the cheap financing they were getting. During this same time, at my second job at a resort's security gatehouse the TV was constantly blaring "get up to $200,000 to go back to college". This was my ticket out, I thought. It seemed perfect.

64. Getting into college was about as hard as falling off a log. A local community college had an arrangement with Appalachian State University ("ASU"). In this arrangement you take what are sometimes called your “core” classes at the community college and given that you have a good GPA, you are guaranteed a spot at ASU. You will finish your four-year degree at ASU. I took a two-part placement test at the community college. Despite 8th grade being the last grade that I had passed in middle or high school, I scored in roughly the 95th percentile on both parts of placement test. I was approved to go directly into credit hour producing work. This was instead of having to take remedial classes, as high school dropouts entering this college often had to do. I also cleped out of one or more classes.

65. Going to college was exciting and solved my financial problems instantly. I had at this time, at age 26, extremely good credit. I had been getting loans and credit cards since age 17, and I had less than three 30 days late payments in my credit history, by my best recollection. This made me a great prospect for profit driven private student loan lenders. I borrowed $30,000 the first semester. The check was FedExed fast.

66. I wasn’t conservative in borrowing or spending for that first year. I had left an extremely stressful situation at my job at a gas station before starting classes. This had triggered some mental and emotional problems, and my spending was a little out of control. I say a little, rather than a lot, because although I was spending money left and right, the majority of my discretionary spending was on books and learning courses. I didn’t drink or smoke away stacks of money as some do. The majority of my purchases were for things that were very beneficial and useful. In subsequent semesters I borrowed far less.

67. It seemed clear, by the end of May 2011, that my decision to go to college, even if doing so meant going in debt, was a very good one. I had graduated with a degree in business administration with a concentration in banking and finance. Working up to two jobs and going to school full time, I managed to make it out of college with an over 3.9 GPA. I also scored in the top 1% on the business school exit test.

68. During the time period between getting out of the hospital and graduating college, when I was seemingly making great progress in life, there were some intensely troubling things going on. My progress did bring me some joy at times, but I mostly lived my life in pain and in a private hell for the last five years I had lived in the mountains. To put it bluntly, I spent years wanting to die. I spent years going to bed and contemplating how I might end my own life, every single night.

69. My distress was caused by vicious opposition I faced, and ruthless, behind the back attacks on my character. The opposition was everywhere and largely by people who smiled at me to my face. They had found a great tactic to aid them in their opposition. They would say disparaging things about my mental health history. I am not sure of all that was said, but I have reason to believe that it was things that were exaggerated to a cruel extreme.

70. I was told by the staff at the hospital that the reason I was there was that my mother had said she was worried about me. My mother had asked for someone to have someone examine me. This was a hospital for people who needed help. Unfortunately, this was not how the hospital was perceived by the locals in the mountains.

71. The hospital, called Broughton and which for some strange reason all the locals referred to as “Broughtons”, had a reputation as the place where “crazy” people were kept. In many minds it was a “stay to the right, because Hannibal Lecter is on the left” type of place. My stay at this hospital was used against me and people stigmatized me to no end.

72. There was one particular area where this tactic was used against me in a particularly vicious way- it prevented me from getting a girlfriend the entire time I lived in the mountains. The same situation repeated, over and over. It went like this: I meet a girl and the girl likes me; then the next time she sees me, she hates me and doesn't want to be around me. It became obvious that this was the tactic being used the instant I leave whatever venue I meet the girl in. It had been used once, to my certain knowledge, very soon after I had returned home from the hospital. This tactic worked, and the people disparaging me appear to have stuck with it.

73. Over time, this also created a cruel situation where I was tainted goods. Having scorched my eyes, over and over for years, they mocked me for my blindness. I am certain that this was another tactic.

74. For a period, I had aided others in disparaging me. After returning home from the hospital, I had a bad case mental health hypochondria. I had self-diagnosed myself with every condition under the sun. This included a self-diagnosis that I was some sort of pathological person, just as my father seemed to have been. The people I knew all knew better than this and they all told me so.

75. I eventually brought up my self-diagnosis with John. He told me that I had “first year psych student syndrome”, in reference to a trait where people who study psychology “think they have it all” (I had never gone to school for psychology, but had studied it as a hobby for years, and still do). He told me I was “self-diagnosing” myself with “cancer”. The damage was already done, however, as my speaking of this self-diagnosis had already become more ammo for others to use against me.

76. Then there was another terrible problem I had while living in the mountains. There were people out to kill me. I had deduced that this was tied to a misperception about what had happened when I was hospitalized. I had deduced that it was also tied to a, almost certainly not true, perception that I had “ruined” the business of the man who owned the restaurant I had worked at. The latter of these reasons, involving the restaurant, will not be discussed in this complaint.

77. The former reason was a misperception that I had “snitched” on people while in the custody of the officer who transported me to the hospital. My presumed motive would have been to evade consequences for marijuana that I had in my pocket. This was not at all the case.

78. The officer had merely told me “Clint, we’re going to have to take your weed from you.” He did this as one of his first actions. There was no consequence or threatened consequence.

79. It was for this reason that they had thought I had “snitched” on them. They had thought that I had gotten out of some criminal charge related to the marijuana. I had told the officer about “people at work” who “sell me drugs all of the time”, but at the time I was in very bad condition. I was extremely ill and, as part of my disconnection from reality, I had thought that the people I worked with at the restaurant were undercover police.

80. I had told the officer about the people who “sell me drugs all the time” long after the officer had taken my “weed”. In my mind, at the time, I thought that there would be no consequence to anyone. My coworkers are the police and thus they will not get in trouble. Again, my mind was gone and I was not contending with reality. There is no sense to be made of my behavior.

81. I had a good idea of those involved in this campaign to kill and destroy me, and it was quite a large number of people. This was also something I needed to leave. All in all, my life was a horrible, hellish mess. I had definitely aided in the creation of my personal hell. In the end I do see it, still, as me triggering ruthless, uninhibited opposition from others. The opposition was irrational, extreme, unwarranted, and deliberately malicious.

82. This was my life. It was the life that I hated. It was the life that was a nightmare. It was the life where, everywhere I went, I was stigmatized and treated with disrespect. It was the life where I wasn't important. It was the life where my wishes weren't considered and I didn't matter. It was the life I could not wait to leave.

I.(b) Moving to Charlotte

83. Life was set to begin anew when I graduated from ASU in May 2011. After a brief stint with a real estate company near my local area, I moved to Charlotte in August 2011. I started my life in Charlotte by setting up my healthcare.

84. Around November 2011, I began using the Outpatient Medication Services ("OMS") at a facility then called Carolina's Medical Center Behavioral Healthcare Charlotte. My medicines are extremely expensive and cost more than I can afford, retailing for about $1,200 to $1,300 per month. The hospital that owns the OMS facility currently operates under the dba Atrium Health and is incorporated as The Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hospital Authority. It was a good place to get medicines on a sliding scale. I had trouble finding a job for the first 4 to 5 months after moving to Charlotte, and lack of employment had put me in a hard spot.

85. After having secured a place to get medical care, I finally got to put my business degree to work in January 2012. I got a job working for a contract agency called Pionear Recruiting. I would be working at Bank of America, in a section of the bank called Legacy Asset Servicing ("LAS"). I would be doing the same job as the employees of Bank of America, sitting alongside them.

86. My role at Bank of America would be a position called Process Support. People in this position processed mortgage modification applications. These were applications related to mortgages for which the borrower was asking to have the monthly payment reduced as an alternative to foreclosure.

87. Some of our borrowers had not yet fallen into default but claimed that a near term default was probable. These borrowers had to prove something called "imminent default". We called the modification files for these borrowers "imminent default files" or, for shorthand, "IDI files". IDI means imminent default indicator. The IDI test is the automated test that loans had to pass in order to prove imminent default. The IDI files had tougher documentation requirements.

88. I initially worked for the Fannie Mae investor segment, and then my segment was merged with the Freddie Mac investor segment. At that point, I became a "GSE Process Support" rather than a "Fannie Mae Process Support." Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac were called the GSEs by our section of the bank. GSEs is shorthand for Government Sponsored Enterprises.

89. I later described this job as a highly-skilled job masquerading as an entry level position; it was quite complex, if done properly. During the time I spent working at Bank of America, the GSEs had very tough modification guidelines. Borrowers had to provide a lot of documentation. Further, many of the documents had strict requirements that had to be met in order to be useable for a borrower's loan modification application. Navigating these documents and guidelines made for some tough and challenging work.

90. My role was to work as an in-between between two parties- The Customer Relationship Manager ("CRM"), and the Underwriter. We had a seemingly bottomless supply of troubled loans, and we thus had huge numbers of all staff. This included armies of process support, many CRMs, and many underwriters.

91. The CRM is the person who speaks with the borrower. The borrower asks for a modification application, or one is sent to them in the mail automatically upon default. At that point in the process, they are assigned a CRM who will inform them of any additional documents needed to complete the application.

92. It is my role, Process Support, that determines what documents are missing and then, ultimately, assembles a complete modification application file. We do this by comparing the documents the borrower sends in with his or her original application with the documentation requirements in our guidelines. Our guidelines were a lengthy set of documents that indicate what information a borrower needs to send to have a complete application. For borrowers applying for a modification, submitting documents is typically an iterative process.

93. The borrower will send in documents, and there will be yet another request for more documents. Information received from the borrower will often trigger a need for more information. Once we have assembled a complete package, the people in my role send the file to underwriting.

94. I very soon stand out at Bank of America. Having no experience in the mortgage industry, I quickly rise to the top. I hit the production floor around February 2012. I am given my own loans around March of the same year. By end of April 2012, I am the 4th-ranked producer in Charlotte. By June or July 2012, I am the #1 producer for the whole bank, and I keep this title for the remainder of my time at Bank of America.

95. I gain a reputation among almost the entirety of LAS. I am nicknamed “Clintabulous”, and I become kind of famous. Employees at our vendor, called Urban Lending Solutions, considered me a “Rockstar” and said I was a hot topic around their office on most days. The CRMs adore me.

96. My reputation was well deserved. Our guidelines were extremely tough and quite technical; they were hard for many of us to understand. That I knew them so well made me an asset to everyone, as did my intense work ethic.

97. People on both ends of my processing pipeline were frustrated. CRMs were frustrated because it seemed, at times, to be impossible to figure out what documents a borrower needs to send. Borrowers would say that all they do is send document after document. Underwriters were frustrated, because the files sent to them by people in my role were very often, in the opinion of the underwriters, incomplete. Underwriters didn’t get credit for files unless they were complete, as underwriters couldn’t render a decision on an incomplete file.

98. I figured out pretty fast the way to make this work. 1st is that you want to know the guidelines inside and out. 2nd is you want to develop a network of underwriters. 3rd is that you want to learn how to make use of the documents that you already have.

99. The name of the game is to milk the guidelines for all they are worth. Asking the borrower for information is an absolute last resort. If you have to ask for information, you prefer verbal confirmations over documents. You avoid asking for information if you can. When you do have to ask for information, you ask for the easiest thing to get that will work.

100. The key to having a good file is not about having the most documents but rather is about having the right documents. You get all of the right stuff. You know the guidelines inside and out, and this enables you to ask for the absolute least amount of information that is necessary to make a decision. The easier it is to get, the faster you will get it, and the easiest of all to get is what you already have.

101. I was very respected and everyone loved working with me. The CRMs loved me because I moved their files like there was no tomorrow. I found ways around all the docs others thought we needed. The underwriters loved me because my files were complete and of super high quality.

102. The general rate of “incomplete” files going to underwriting was documented to be around 50% to 60%. I would typically be at something less than 20% to at the highest around 33%. I moved such huge volumes of files that this meant I had mountains of high-quality files at all times. 67% to 80% of 4 to 9 files a day is far, far more than 40% to 50% of 1 to 3 files a day.

103. I was the ultimate expert at my job. Other Process Support were at my desk all the time. I was called a genius. If you have a question about a guideline or a file, I'm the one to ask.

104. My new life was thus far working out very well. I was a superstar. I was not this person who didn't matter, who was to be subtly disrespected and disregarded, and who it was a shame to be seen with if you are a pretty girl.

I.(c) My Job at Wells Fargo

105. As we started to hit the bottom of what was once a seemingly bottomless supply of loans, Bank of America began to lay off its LAS contractors. They did this one group at a time. I survived all such layoffs except the last one, which happened around July of 2013. This put me back in the job market.

106. My goal had always been to find one career track and stay on it, and this goal was very much in my mind as I began to look for jobs. I wanted to stay in the mortgage industry. At the same time money talks, and I needed money. I decided to also apply for financial analysis jobs. Anything I could do to put my finance degree to use was fair game. People who are broke don't always have the privilege of being picky.

107. It was with mixed emotions that I responded to a request for a phone-based interview, from a contract agency, around August 2013. The contract agency had a job open for doing credit analysis, as a contractor, at Wells Fargo. I was kind of bummed out at the prospect of changing industries. On the other hand, the job description sounded interesting and like something I would be good at.

108. The phone interview with the contract agency went well, and I was selected to move forward in the process. The next step would be an in-person interview with Wells Fargo. I would interview with the management from Wells Fargo Wholesale Loan Services (“WLS”).

109. During the interview with WLS management, I was given a rundown of the job and asked a series of questions. I was told that the job involved a heavy emphasis on financial accounting. I was asked some “high level accounting questions.”

110. I believe this description “high level” was meant to soften the blow to those who get the questions wrong. One can forgive oneself for not answering “high level” questions correctly. They were actually basic questions.

111. I apparently made an overall good impression, as I was offered the job. I answered their accounting questions correctly, and my behavioral question responses must have been good enough. I would begin the job in November of that year, 2013.

112. I would work at WLS, an arm of the bank that provides an array of support activities and services to internal Wells Fargo commercial lending offices. The employees of WLS called the commercial lending offices “front offices”, “RCBOs” (short for Regional Commercial Banking Offices), or simply “offices”. I would work for a section of WLS called Credit Analysis, as a credit analyst.

113. At the time I was hired, and in subsequent years, WLS credit analysts had two core responsibilities. Preparing financial spreads was our first core responsibility. Completing a compliance check was our second core responsibility. These core responsibilities served to aid the RCBOs in their underwriting and monitoring of commercial loans.

114. Underwriting is the first of two fundamental activities in commercial lending. In underwriting, the RCBO prepares an approval memo to request for and to document the funding of a commercial loan. To complete this memo, the RCBO will need financial spreads.

115. Financial spreads are financial reports that are prepared by WLS credit analysts. The credit analysts prepare them using information submitted by the company which seeks funding. The financial spreads will have a balance sheet, an income statement, a cash flow statement, and several pages of ratios and risk rating metrics. Financial spreads will later also be used in monitoring any loan that is underwritten.

116. Monitoring is the second of two fundamental activities in commercial lending. Monitoring involves keeping track of the financial soundness of the company after underwriting is complete. Our segment of the bank was responsible for very large loans. On the extreme low end, a given customer would have $1 million to $3 million debt with Wells Fargo. On the high end, a company might have debt up to $300 million, $1 billion, or even more. Due to the size of the loan and the risk the loan poses to both the bank and the customer, the customer will be required to sign a very detailed credit agreement. The credit agreement may be as long as 600 to 900 pages.

117. The credit agreement will stipulate that the company meets certain financial performance metrics on an ongoing basis. The company will be required to provide financial statements on a recurring basis to, in part, be used for testing these financial performance metrics. The testing of these financial performance metrics, which are called financial covenants, is what is completed on a compliance check.

118. My progression to harder and harder work happens fast once I begin the job. After roughly two weeks of training, I hit the production floor in the first week of December 2013. I was first assigned to help a man named Paul who worked with front offices that lend to publicly traded utilities companies. About a month later, I was assigned my own offices. Then around February my manager, who was a woman named Shana de Oliveira (“Shana”), had a meeting with me. She said that the offices I was assigned couldn’t keep up with me. She said she was swapping out the offices I had been assigned and that they would be replaced with some much busier offices.

119. Around the first week of March of 2014, I had yet another meeting with Shana to learn about some new developments. The first development was that WLS was going to be hiring two full time credit analysts. She said that I was one of the two who were essentially guaranteed the job. Myself and another contractor were said to have such high performance at the job that we were far too ahead of the pack; we were sure to get the open roles.

120. Being a direct employee of the bank, rather than working under a contract agency, would confer some benefits. For one, it meant that I would get a pay increase. I would also be able to get Wells Fargo’s health insurance and other benefits, which were much better than what contract agencies offered. I would also get paid time off.

121. The second development was that the food & agribusiness RCBOs needed a new credit analyst. Their dedicated credit analyst in Denver had left that role, and WLS management wanted a credit analyst in Charlotte to replace him. The food & agribusiness RCBOs were known as a notoriously hard to work for group of offices. It would take someone who was up to the challenge. My manager said that in her mind she keeps hearing “Cllliint.....”, as the one to take the group. She asked if I would take the food & agribusiness offices.

122. I was, initially, sort of indifferent to the request to take the food & agribusiness group; then later, my attitude changed. In the beginning I said “sure, why not”. Then I was told that whoever had this group would have year-round overtime. This group was said to be unbelievably busy all year long. The year-round overtime got me very motivated. I wanted this to be my group.

123. This group sounded like the perfect arrangement that I had been looking for. I was deeply in debt, and I have always worked long hours. For most of my life I have chosen to work more and have more money. I like this better than the alternative, to work less and have more free time.

124. My high level of motivation was apparently going to be needed. The next thing, following my decision to take this group, was a high-pressure training and preparation process. The training and preparation came from different members of WLS management and WLS Quality Assurance (“QA”) staff.

125. Management made it clear that the transition of the food & agribusiness group from Denver to me was going to be a crucial transition. The situation with the food and agribusiness offices was said to be a “damaged relationship”, in which the food & agribusiness offices had not been all that happy with WLS for a long time. Further, the food & agribusiness offices were said to have been furious the last time they were assigned to WLS credit analysts in Charlotte. The situation was said to be such that if we injure them any further, our department might be fired.

126. The agribusiness offices’ chronic unhappiness was largely blamed, by our QA staff, on a revamping and standardization of our guidelines that had occurred in years past. Our standardized guidelines didn’t work for their industry. Farmers of any size are not running anything remotely resembling cookie cutter, standardized businesses.

127. I had heard about the food & agribusiness offices, which were called “food & ag” by employees in my department, since my first weeks on the floor. They were said to have impossible and very painful to work companies. I was told that you would sometimes be given 8 or more spreadsheets from which you had to pick a number here, then pick a number there, over and over, to make one financial spread. It was said to be the hardest work to be found in WLS.

128. Then there were the people. The underwriters and relationship managers at the food & ag offices were said to be the meanest, nastiest people you will ever meet. They were said to make nonstop harassing phone calls, where they ask you for illegitimate changes to the work you have sent them. They were said to be a nightmare that you didn’t want to deal with.

129. I was transitioned to the food & agribusiness offices around April of 2014. The companies were pretty much what they had been cracked out to be. I definitely had the hardest in the bank. I didn’t mind this at all. I have a personality trait in which I like to solve hard problems. The people were not at all what they were cracked out to be. They were far from mean and nasty. They were absolutely wonderful from day one. They were my favorite people to work with, of all time.

130. The essential ingredient to the terrific relationship I developed with my group was that I wanted my work to be perfect. Due to uniqueness and complexity of the work my offices sent, perfecting my work required asking the offices questions about the companies they lend to. The offices were very happy that I asked these questions, as one of their largest grievances was that credit analysts would make assumptions and send them incorrect work. My offices couldn't stand it when someone in a supervisory role at their office needs to look at a company, and when they go to their email inbox to pull the financial spread sent by WLS, the work is wrong. The sentiment behind this grievance can be paraphrased as: "why didn't they ask me about this, instead of just throwing these numbers all over the place?"

131. My offices and I were a match made in heaven and, for a good time, so were my department and I. Our senior management was lavished with praise over the work I had done. The damaged relationship with the agribusiness offices was repaired. I had somewhat regular lunches with WLS's chief operating officer, a very kind and competent man named Gray Bennet. I got the overtime I was promised too, and I needed it.

132. My superstar status at WLS was official at year end 2014. I received a performance rating of 5. A rating of 5 was extremely rare and the highest rating you could get. You only get this if you have done something extraordinary. I also received an early promotion to a senior analyst. I would be doing the same type of work but with substantially higher pay.

133. Very early on, I had also cracked the puzzle as to why my office people were supposedly so mean and nasty. It had less to do with the guidelines than was believed. The real culprit was that complete garbage work had been sent to them day and night. Some of the people doing this before me weren't on their A game. It would be generous to say that they were even on their F game, but I have to settle for that; there is no lower grade.

134. I remember thinking very early on that these analysts who complain about my offices don't know the definition of the word "mean" until they send me garbage work like this over and over. It is enough to make anyone furious. It was also strange to me how the department I worked for had allowed this to happen. It seemed like things weren't always managed so well, but I didn't say much about that.

135. The next few years were filled with endless accolades, nominations for awards, and emails from my offices to our management about how great I was to work with. My offices and I never lost our strong rapport and our "peas in a pod" sense of working with one another. I did however, lose my year-round overtime. Losing my overtime was a broken promise. I have begun to sense, over time, that Wells Fargo cares about one and only one entity on earth: Wells Fargo. My lost overtime was to be the least of my problems; I would soon find out.

II. The Bill Vanhoy Era at Wholesale Loan Services

136. Our site manager, Mike Zavala, had taken a new role in 2016, and this created an opening for his role in WLS. He was one level above my manager, Shana. His role was coveted among managers at Shana's level. It was a $30k to $40k+ per year pay increase, I would estimate.

137. Shana was the best candidate in my mind, but she was far from the only one to apply. There were a lot of good choices for sure. There were plenty of good managers in Charlotte and Denver who would have worked out great.

138. The person who got the role, however, was a man named Bill. He didn't get the role due to his education. He didn't get the role due to previous experience in commercial lending. He had no relevant education, in a department where 5% to 10% or more of entry level employees had a master's degree in accounting. I later heard that his previous job centered around printing paper. This was not bond paper; it was literal plain white paper.

139. Bill got the role because he was a great friend to Gray Bennet. Gray had left our department for a senior role in another department. Gray then came and got Mike Zavala and took Mike Zavala with him to Gray's new department. Gray Bennet's endorsement of Bill was all that was needed to seal the deal.

140. I would come to realize that Bill is the poster child for the Dunning-Kruger Effect. The Dunning-Kruger Effect is the name given to a psychological phenomenon in which people who have abnormally low cognitive abilities are unable to perceive their own incompetence. They will instead be deluded by a false sense that they are actually very skilled and effective. Bill's lack of cognitive abilities, his lack of skills relevant to our line of work, and his blindness to his own incompetence make it inevitable that he runs the department into the ground. These also make it inevitable that he and I would have conflict.

141. I didn't want there to be conflict, and I tried to get along with Bill. I did get along with him at first. Then we started to have more and more friction. As this is happening, I make new friend at work. Her name is Jenny.

142. Jenny was a longtime employee of a WLS segment called Loan Documentation (employees of which are referred to as "LDS", short for Loan Documentation Specialists). Her segment of WLS was responsible, among other things, for setting up document tracking in our computer systems. Jenny had decided to move to WLS Credit Analysis. Jenny would be working as a credit analyst, the same job role that I worked as and had mastered.

143. Jenny's decision to move came at an opportune time. WLS had recently, as of this time, moved the responsibility of setting up document tracking to the credit analysts. This would now be a responsibility assigned to me and other credit analysts.

144. I knew Jenny to be an acutely perfectionistic person who was very good at her job as an LDS. She had asked for my help on a very complex customer a month or so earlier, while she was still an LDS. She had needed me to call my offices and find out "what on earth is going on" with a company she was working on (calling my offices to find out "what on earth is going on with this company" was my specialty and the story of my life, after taking over the food & agribusiness offices).

145. Jenny would be the perfect person to team up with and learn my newly assigned responsibility of document tracking. After Jenny came aboard to credit analysis, I sent her an IM on Wells Fargo's internal Microsoft Lync messaging application ("Lync"). I offered her a tit for tat relationship. I explained to her that I was by far the best at and the most knowledgeable about credit analysis work. I would teach her to do her new job as a credit analyst, if she would teach me about setting up document tracking. Jenny liked this arrangement and agreed.

146. Jenny's desk was near where Bill sat, and he would overhear me training her. He seemed to be quite impressed and, I would later learn, intimidated by how thoroughly I knew the job. Jenny once told me that "you know what you're doing and you make him feel stupid." At the time she told me this, it was obvious to me that this was a plagiarized private thought. Bill had expressed this feeling to Jenny.

147. There were a few things at play in the growing tension and mutual frustration between Bill and I. The big factor was that Bill had an obsession with an asinine policy he and his direct manager had adopted about due dates on work. This policy made my life hell.

148. I had asked for an accommodation related to this policy, based on my disability; which I now believe I was rightly entitled. My medications were causing terrible health effects. I was forced to stay and complete work by the “due date”, even though it wasn’t needed by my offices. This was a terrible stress. Due to the extreme over focus on this asinine policy, the last thing on earth any credit analyst wanted was to have a “past due”. “A past due” was the name given to a work item that was outstanding past our system’s autogenerated due date. Bill acted as if though having even one “past due” was the end of the world, and effects of this mentality rolled downhill to managers and then to employees. Before this policy was implemented, if our office didn’t need a work item, we would extend the due date in the system. This was now a banned behavior. My request for accommodations was denied.

149. This policy that everything must be completed by the “due date” would make perfect sense to anyone. To anyone, that is, except someone who had a clue how to do this job and except someone who had a clue about the RCBOs workflow. It was a pointless and counter-productive policy.

150. I was forced to abide by this policy under extreme stress, during a time in which my health had deteriorated to the extreme. My medications were having a destructive effect on my energy. I was very often so tired and lethargic that I felt couldn’t go on one more minute, and yet I would have to use extreme willpower to get my work done. It nearly killed me every time.

151. WLS management had eliminated my overtime by assigning me 3 then 6 then 12 then eventually up to 16, or more, helper analysts to help with my work. These analysts were supposed to outsource their own work and do my work. I had far more work each week than anyone could complete in 40 hours.

152. The reason my helper analysts outsourced their work was that they were trained in my special food & ag guidelines. One thing I had accomplished, after taking over my offices, was to negotiate exceptions and adjustments to our departments standardized guidelines. I eventually wrote a training manual about how to complete work from my offices. My manual was eventually used as a set of guidelines which analysts could be trained on and held accountable to following. There were many general analysts who could work on the general work that all the other analysts were assigned; there were much fewer trained in the guidelines for my work.

153. What happens? More than once, these analysts do not take on the responsibility of sending out their work. They instead take my work and add it to theirs. Then when they don't get it all done, they come by my desk and say they've got some appointment and couldn't get the work done. I end up doing it, as I am feeling like I'm ready to die and can't take another minute. Management did nothing to address this behavior.

154. This extreme emphasis on getting things "by the due date" triggered all sorts of side effects. One of these was that work was being completed too hastily, resulting in bad work constantly going out the door. Jenny told Bill that it reminded her of the environment that caused the illegal sales practices (she was a former teller, who had told me “I didn’t know anyone who didn’t have phony solutions”).

155. The unbearable stress and the hell created by the mismanagement of WLS was on my mind constantly. It was more than I could deal with. This has some side effects as I am going about my typical workflow with my offices.

156. My offices and I had a different way of doing things. Part of this different way of doing things was that we were constantly communicating. We were constantly on the phone discussing customers, sometimes for up to 60 to 100 minutes at a time. We were also on Lync communicating through IMs very frequently.

157. This constant communication, as I am under traumatic stress, creates an irresistible opportunity for me to vent. I vent about the unbelievable stress caused by the mismanagement of the WLS. I would sometimes tell my offices what a joke WLS was becoming. I also told them of the extreme stress the QA staff would sometimes cause me. Relative to me and also relative to my offices, our QA staff were quite far behind the curve on some of the subject matter of my work.

158. One day after a meeting, I send Jenny an IM, saying “Bill hates me.” She replies: “he doesn’t hate you. It just bothers him how you throw the dept under the bus to your offices, and how you bad mouth QA to them.” I ask her “did he say this to you?” She replies “no, I’m just speculating.”

159. She obviously wasn’t just speculating. She has no way of knowing this. She sits 40ft away from my desk. I’m nowhere near loud enough on the phone for her to hear me. I’m for sure not loud enough for anyone to hear me on Lync (typing in a chat window is silent). This is another plagiarized private thought, and the source is obvious.

Bill has told her this. I am clearly a frequent subject of conversation between Jenny and Bill.

160. Immediately following this IM exchange between Jenny and I, Bill calls all of the credit analysts over for a sudden and unplanned trip to the ice cream shop. He says the ice cream is on him. We are then told to go home early and that we would still be paid for a full day's work.

161. The timing makes what has occurred obvious. I tell Jenny that Bill hates me. She "speculates" as to why that's not true, and then she "speculates" as to what Bill's grievances are. After I respond to her, Bill makes this goodwill gesture of giving us ice cream. He's trying to cure this situation he has no clue how to handle. Jenny doesn't hear the grievances I tell my offices, but Bill surely does. My offices wonder what the hell is going on at this place.

162. I don't need Bill to buy me ice cream; I need him to forget about his stupid policies, and I need him out of my life. Unfortunately, later on, the exact opposite is what happens. Bill's pattern of using Jenny to indirectly handle the frustration I cause him and to get information about me gets bumped up to another level, and it destroys me.

III. The Invasion of My Privacy

163. When I got my job at Wells Fargo, I didn't want to keep the hell I left back home a secret forever. I also left open the possibility that I eventually tell some people about some of the other details about my life, like that I went to the hospital at age 18. I would leave small and subtle clues regarding the things in my life that might run others away. This was meant to very slowly desensitize people. I knew I would never be able to just give them my story on them all at once. That for sure would be far too much for them to handle.

164. After I had been working for Wells Fargo for around 4 years, in November 2017, I dropped a hint about the way I was treated back home. I told my good friend at Wells Fargo, named Tunny, that “all kinds of people back home hate me, and some of them are on my Facebook, I am sure.” Tunny, looking confused, says “what do you mean they hate you?”. I cannot remember my reply, but she seemed very confused and perturbed by this. She says “I can look you up (meaning “look me up” on Facebook) by phone number, right?” She said she didn’t previously know I had a Facebook. I told her that my privacy settings were maxed out, and she might not be able to find me.

165. On November 30th, 2017 not many days after I tell Tunny about the people on my Facebook, Jenny and I are talking on the phone. Jenny asks for a link to my Facebook profile. Jenny says she wants a link to my Facebook profile so that she can send me a picture of her friend. I didn’t think much of this request, though it was odd that she would need a link to my Facebook to send me a picture. Our phones would have also worked just fine for this.

166. On the next workday following my giving Jenny the link to my Facebook profile, people at work start treating me differently. They began to have this same reaction that people in the mountains had after they heard the things that go around about me. I am fine-tuned to recognize this reaction.

167. Around the day I notice this reaction, I am on the phone with Jenny and I self-consciously tell her that I’ve only had one girlfriend in my life. Jenny is not surprised and has no reaction to this at all. She clearly has already heard this from someone.

168. I begin to experience trauma and horror over my workplace now turning into the hell I left. I send a text message to a friend named Mei Xie, who goes by Katie Xie ("Katie"). Katie used to work at Wells Fargo and we would also send texts to one another outside of work. In replying to my text message, Katie has this same disparaging attitude towards me.

169. This was it. This was all I could take. I felt surrounded everywhere. My workplace and my life outside of Wells Fargo had clearly mutated into the hell I had left. It had mutated into the hell that made me want to die for five years straight before moving to Charlotte, and it had done so in an instant.

170. In my mind, I thought that Tunny had talked to someone on my Facebook. I thought that I had left open the setting where someone can search me by phone number. I had connected in my mind her bizarre reaction to me saying "people back home hate me" to this new reaction my coworkers had to me. Tunny was the first I had noticed going completely cold on me.

171. Due to the privacy settings on my Facebook, I was pretty sure I knew exactly who had been talked to. The only person visible on the public section of my profile was a woman named Abbey Best. Abbey had clicked the Facebook "Like" button on my publicly visible cover photo. In the three to six months preceding what happened at Wells Fargo, Abbey had also gone cold on me. I had figured that she had likely heard some disparaging things about me as well.

172. I knew that for sure, someone within Wells Fargo had talked to someone I had known or was connected to in the mountains. The logic is simple and straightforward; 100% of the people who think I'm the greatest person ever are in Charlotte; 100% of the people who hate and stigmatize me are in the mountains or are connected to someone in the mountains. This leads to one obvious conclusion as to where the person who was contacted was from.

173. Later, my suspicions would be confirmed. Abbey was, indeed, the person who had been contacted. At the time she would have been contacted, she was a habitual criminal and a fugitive, as a matter of public record. Apparently, whoever was asked to contact Abbey to get information about me wasn't instructed to dig into her life.

174. At the time this occurred, I was certain it would be over soon. People had known me too long. I could be part of the discussion and I could contain the damage. Feeling destroyed, I reach out to Jenny.

175. Jenny seems taken aback when I call her and am in unbelievable tears. She had never seen me like this before. It is the kind of distress that would make you fear for someone's life. I tell Jenny about how people back home used to make up rumors about me. I tell her how it had destroyed me life. I tell her that Tunny has gone cold on me.

176. Jenny is very comforting during the call, but then something strange happens. For the entire call she seems very concerned and also shocked at how destroyed I was. Then at the end, I ask her "will you please ask Tunny who she talked to or what happened?". Jenny replies "I can't because I don't want to save people anymore".

177. Jenny's reaction is very confusing to me. There is no reason for her not to ask Tunny about this. I am so traumatized that I do not contend with her at all. I am broken and just say "okay". I immediately think that Jenny knows something about this.

178. At first, it seemed like the whole world inside of Charlotte had turned on me. Later I reflected, and it had been only Tunny, Tunny's main circle at work, a guy named Ryan and those he knew, Ryan's girlfriend Terra, some of the QA people, and management. This was the beginning of me being traumatized and hating life here in Charlotte. Things were terrible.

179. I was treated as a stigmatized person. It was the exact thing I had always known. I kept it a secret. It's not the thing you tell people, but it murdered me.

180. I felt like I was being treated as less of a person everywhere I went in the bank. The managers treated me as a stigmatized person. Many employees did. It also seemed like at least one manager for a role I had applied for was told disparaging things about me. This was the destruction of my new life, and the events that followed would result in the destruction of me, completely.

IV. The End of My Job at Wells Fargo

181. I had been having cognitive problems for years. They had gotten worse and worse over time, starting from the time I worked at Bank of America. Around January 2018, I spoke with a neurologist. He said that one of my medications was likely at fault. He said I should speak with my doctor to change my medicines.

182. In changing medicines, I ended up on some that didn't have therapeutic effect on my condition. I began to have symptoms of my mental health condition. These symptoms were for sure too severe for me to work. Around the end of April 2018, I went on a medical leave. I received disability payments from the disability insurance I got through Wells Fargo.

183. I returned to work in the first week of June 2018. On my first day back, I have around 100+ past due work items. The past due work items had been allowed to pile up while I was gone. Management had a young man named Patrick working on my queue (we had an electronic queue, where work submitted by our offices would come in). One person, or even two, is nowhere enough for my queue. Patrick had been working himself to death, but it was impossible for him to keep up. The department was not allowing overtime, due to low production numbers from the WLS sites in Charlotte and Denver. This was why I had so many past dues.

184. My offices were furious. The piled-up work meant that in the best-case scenario one RCBO's loan team manager would likely be working all weekend. That's what it would take to meet the deadlines on several credit write-ups they had due.

185. In situations like this my process is to call my offices to find out what they need urgently and what they do not. This extraordinary step was above management's paygrade the entire time I was gone, during which time over 500 past due items had piled up for the department. These past dues included up to 130 solely for my offices (1 full day's production for our senior most analysts was 11 items, at the time in question).

186. In order to get my offices what they needed on this tight time schedule, which would have me against the wall completely in all cases, I had to change the usual workflow. A consequence of this adjusted workflow process was that it would appear that I have 0 production on the reports that management and senior management see. This would be the case until I turned in the work to my department in one big batch.

187. The usual process is to turn in the work to the department and send it over to the offices at the same time. Due to the complexity of my customers, part of my process was also to add lengthy notes in our systems. This was to aid the QA staff, who would often otherwise be lost as to the rhyme and reason for the way I completed my work. Adding lengthy notes was a big part of the way that I had learned, over time, to get along with the QA staff. QA and I had been having a good relationship for a long times at this point.

188. My offices do not care about the notes I leave for QA staff and others. My offices, in almost all cases, know exactly why I put such and such number here and such and such number there in the reports I create. They know this as a result of nonstop communications between myself and my offices about every customer we have.

189. The obvious solution to the then current conundrum is to delay adding notes for QA. Adding notes for QA would take many, many hours, cumulatively, for all of the work I had to turn in. My offices cannot afford to wait while these notes to be entered. They are against the wall, and waiting for me to add the notes for QA will mean that their approval memos will have to be turned in late. I also have plenty of to do for my offices in terms of customer service, etc. This only adds to my workload. Once my offices have what they need, I will be able to add the notes and turn the work in to WLS.

190. A WLS Credit Analysis manager, named Christian Varnado, started to send me communications and do things to put stress on me about my production numbers. A typical practice then followed, where I have meetings and express grievances with management and they immediately go back to doing the same garbage. It was like they enjoyed disrespecting me.

191. I had a total of 4 meetings with my manager Courtney Luce and Christian Varnado. Each meeting has the same purpose: for me to ask them to please leave me alone. I tell them that I am under extreme stress as I try to clean up this mess I have come back to. That my offices are mad at the department. I emphasize that I have never, not even once, let my offices down.

192. I explained to them how I was doing the work. I told them that by the Thursday or Friday of my second week back I would be turning in 70 to 100+ work items at once. My production would even out on that day. Each time they said they would let me be so that I could get my work done.

193. On Thursday, June 13th, having been back to work for then 9 days, I end up staying very late. The reason was that I had an extremely complex company to complete. It would result in several dozen production items by itself.

194. I am used to getting treated like I don't matter at this point. I am used to people seeming to get some kind of pleasure out of disregarding me and my wishes. I have a sense that even though I've had a total of 4 meetings where I beg them to leave me alone, I will be hearing about it if I have no numbers as of Friday morning.

195. I am working on this combined company at 11pm on Thursday night. I think I maybe can get it done by midnight. Then it's midnight and I'm still not done. I feel like I have to stay. I have to have numbers or they will be giving me grief. 1 am- still going. 2am- still going, 3am- still going...

196. Around 3:15 am I am kicked out by the routine "down for maintenance" mode our financial spread software goes into every night. They presumably do maintenance at this hour because the IT department had thought that never, in a million years, would someone be working that late. I finally give in; I will not have any numbers in the morning when management gets in. I can't last any longer. I go home at roughly 3:30am.

197. On Friday morning, while getting breakfast I message Christian to tell him I will be late. I tell him I was at work until 3:30 am that morning. He says "I sent you a message saying you need to turn in some work." I tell him I will be turning in a "mountain" of work that day.

198. I arrive at work around noon. After maybe 30 minutes or so of getting settled in, I see in my email a message from an "engagement committee" member. All of our managers had been copied, because they had directed her email me and to tell me: "you have such and such items past due in your queue. You need to turn them in today."

199. I am extremely offended by this, and by this time I had had it. I had had enough of being disrespected and disregarded. I told myself if they do one more thing I'm walking out. I reply to this email (note that the person who sent it and copied management had immediately afterwards left for a PTO vacation) "Hi, I do not need emails like this. I hope you enjoy your vacation." By default, all managers are copied on this email. I get an instant response from Christian: "These items have been in your queue and past due for over 30 days. We do not expect to see these items in your queue anymore."

200. This was the final blow that did it. Remember that these past due items, which were 30+ days past due, had been on his watch. He sits on his ass and lets them pile up, not making even one phone call to find out what the offices need. I have been back at work for 9 days. For sure, 21+ days are his fault not mine.

201. I am trying to fix the mess that he created, and my offices are mad. They are very upset for the first time in over 4 years. I bat 1.000 for 4+ years, and he messes it up on his first try. His job seems to have no purpose other than to disrespect me.

202. Don't let's forget that this is the "past due" policy for which I have been denied accommodations and which at this point only seems to apply to me. 100 to 130+ past due items pile up on his watch. It's not a big deal for a whole month while I'm gone. As soon as I am back it's a huge deal. I'm even responsible for his screw up.

203. Following this email exchange on Friday, Jun 14th 2018, I get extremely angry and send an email back to him; I tell him I don't care what he "expects". I then get up; throw my chair against my desk, and walk out.

204. Courtney sends me an IM and leaves a voicemail on my personal cell phone. She wants us to "talk about it". I'm not interested in having meeting number 2,227, where I tell my concerns; they say they will respect them; then I am immediately disrespected again, and they seem to enjoy it. They can forget it; I am done.

V. Me and Jenny, Post-December 2017

205. Before all that unfolded in the period around November 30th and the 1st week of December, 2017, Jenny had already left Wells Fargo for a job at New Dominion Bank. It was no surprise to me that she left. She had been increasingly stressed out and had said that she couldn't take it. I recall at least one time that she was crying at her desk. Her last day at Wells Fargo was in July 2017.

206. Following the December 2017 incident, Jenny and I are still friends. In fact, we become better and better friends, up to the point that we mutually consider one another best friends. There is an exception to this happy go lucky friendship however. There is one topic that I can't resist bringing up. There is one topic that I can't let rest forever. This happens to be a topic that Jenny hates. She seems to have terrible emotions attached to this one topic.

207. That one topic is this- this distressing thing that happened in the first week of December 2017. Mentioning this at all causes her terrible emotions. It causes fights as time goes on. I try to get to the bottom off it. I tell her please just tell me. I tell her it will all be forgiven.

208. I want the truth. I want to know who Tunny talked to, and I want to know what they said. I have to have it because I can't let this be a black box. This thing in the mountains destroyed my life there. It destroyed my life in the workplace, and I need to contain this destruction.

209. If I've got people roaming around in Charlotte who believe some terrible thing that is said about me, I need to know who they are and what was said. I also need to confirm who is still being spoken with and what they are being told, as my life is in danger. I have people who have been out to kill me.

210. The next blow comes as my finances slowly start to go downhill. My web development business isn't going as well as I thought it would. I have now a very terrible situation. I feel tethered to Charlotte. Until I can get an answer here and contain this, I can never leave. I felt certain that it will mutate outside of my presence.

211. What I am facing at this point is possibly having to go back to the mountains that I hate. At the same time my imagination will run wild about what is going on in Charlotte: what lies are being spread, what knowledge is being shared, and who is newly on board in this plan to kill me.

212. I become suicidal on one morning in January of 2019. Jenny calls me in the morning and I am breaking down completely. She's comforting me again, and seems very concerned. I ask Jenny to please talk to Tunny and find out what happened. Jenny, again, has a strange resistance and aversion to speaking with Tunny about this.

213. I am deeply hurt that she will not ask and that she will not tell me the truth about what she knows. I am dying as of this day, in my mind at the time. I tell her that everyone else gets what they ask for when they die, so why don't I?

214. I am hurt and heartbroken, and I begin to reach out to other current or former WLS employees. Using Facebook Messenger, I IM a former coworker at WLS named Terra. Terra's behavior had changed in December when everything happened. I knew she knew about it. I offered her $2,000 to tell me. The $2,000 would come from me liquidating some of my possessions. Liquidating my possessions would take a little time, but in my mind, I'm going to die, and I don't need them. I get no response, and later find out that I have been blocked.

215. I make a separate, desperate plea to Katie. I offer to pay her mortgage payment for one or more months. This is again going to come from liquidating my possessions. Katie gives no response and she blocks me on her phone.

216. Jenny later calls me and is crying. She seems worried to death. I ask her to send me some screenshots of her Facebook and phone IMs with Tunny. She claims to have no Facebook chats with Tunny, ever. Jenny sends a screenshot to prove that she hasn't, although she did have plenty enough time to delete her history. She sends me her text history with Tunny. Jenny says the history she sends me is complete and only contains the one text on her screen. The text message, when I look at it in detail later, is very suspect.

217. I feel bad for making Jenny upset and I decide to live. I am temporarily gaslighted into thinking nothing happened. Jenny is a very skilled at gaslighting and I am susceptible to gaslighting, especially at this time when I am destroyed as a person. The gaslighting never has a prolonged effect, however. After each argument we have, I very soon reflect on all of the strange explanations I am given. Once I begin to reflect on all that doesn't make sense, it is inevitable that this one topic she hates comes up again.

218. In February 2019, I tell Jenny that I can't go on living; I will die. She can call me and tell me the truth about what Abbey said if she wants, but she probably shouldn't expect me to be around that much longer. Jenny becomes very upset and yells at me: "Ok, I talked to her and she said that you had been to a mental institution!!! Is that what you wanted to hear!!?". By my best recollection, Jenny gaslights me again after screaming this at me.

219. In any event, it didn't last long until I had an insight. Jenny has made an obvious Freudian Slip. I never, not once, ever said anything about Jenny talking to Abbey. It had always been Tunny that I suspected. I just knew that Jenny knew more about it than what she said.

220. I am initially very mad at Jenny. I send Jenny a message on WhatsApp (this is the application we use to text one another) telling her that I will “burn your ass”, and that I “don’t know who I’ve been talking to for 2 years”. I then make other angry, harsh sounding statements.

221. In the interim time between my sending Jenny this angry text and Jenny responding, I have an insight. This thing she yells at me “...she said you’ve been to a mental institution...” seems to explain why everyone, from her to Tunny to Katie to Terra, is so dead set against talking about this. It is a workplace privacy issue. I thought they must worry that it could harm their careers that they have violated my medical privacy and that they have discriminated against me, etc. I thought that maybe this was also a liability in some way to Wells Fargo. I thought that possibly some liability to Wells Fargo was also behind the resistance to talking about this.

222. I feel like now I will get my answer. I just need to explain that I don’t want to cause any “HR” problems for anyone. This is where the resistance comes from, and I am happy. Now I will get my answer and my conversation.

223. Jenny calls me back, and she is very angry. She has numerous Freudian slips that indicate that she is hiding something. In the end, however, she gaslights me again. I break down completely and tell her I am sorry and that I was abused as a child. I told her that child abuse makes people see hostility where there is none and to not trust others (this is true, and I do have this trait). Rather than the answer I hoped for, Jenny responds with more lies and more gaslighting.

224. Jenny’s least favorite topic on earth becomes a concern again, in the first week or so of April 2019. This time it is that I think I will be getting a job in South Carolina. I had attended a phone interview with an agribusiness bank. It was for a role that I was very overqualified for. I was sure that I would get the job.

225. The concern is that, again, I am tethered to Charlotte. I need to get the truth and contain this hell. If I've got 20 people, or 100, or any number of people in Charlotte who have heard this garbage, I need to know. I need to know what people say, what they have told others, and I need to have a talk with them. I need to stop it where it is at for my sanity and also my safety.

226. At this point, I am starting to be more aggressive in pursuing the truth. Jenny will not gaslight me this time. I've by this time caught her in unrelated lies. It is clear that she will lie to me and that she has been. At one point, I make legal threats to her, Tunny, and others. That they will not lie their way out of this triggers an escalation on the part of Wells Fargo.

VI. April 2019 and The First Crimes

227. Starting around the second week of April 2019, Jenny starts to want to speak with my doctor, and I intuitively sense that she's up to no good. Jenny wants to speak with my doctor alone. Jenny is very concerned that it be private time between my doctor and her. Jenny first asks for my doctor's phone number. Then Jenny wants my doctor to call her. Jenny's pretense for this is that she is worried about me. I know from the get-go that this is a false pretense. I know that Jenny is running a scam.

228. I call my hospital twice, once on April 14th and again on April 16th. On each call, I tell the people who answer the phone and the nurse(s) that my friend Jenny is up to no good. I tell them that I think she is trying to get my medical records. I'm not sure why, but this is my best guess as to what she is up to. My hospital doesn't even make a record of my concern, although they do log that I called in.

229. Around this same time, I decide that I want to have a phone call with Jenny to discuss this situation. The purpose is for Jenny and I to talk about this. I want her to at least concede that I have reasons for believing that something wrong has happened. I'm getting sick of being accused of being "paranoid" and treated like I'm worthless, after what happened has killed me. Jenny agrees to have the call.

230. Our call gets stuck, at about 10 minutes in, on the point "is it possible that someone within Wells Fargo talked to someone outside of Wells Fargo?" Jenny refuses to even acknowledge that this is possible. Jenny also gives a series of nonsense sounding explanations as to why everyone's behavior towards me had changed.

231. In one explanation, she says that Tunny started treating me like I had a disease because Tunny didn't want to take my work anymore. I tell her that I helped Tunny with Tunny's work 10 times more than Tunny helped me with my work. Jenny then replies "Clint, when you help people, it feels like abuse." I tell her this is absurd. She says that: "it's because you help people for what they can do for you. It got to the point that our working relationship felt like abuse."

232. Other explanations follow. They are all absurdly implausible. Each in Jenny's series of nonsensical explanations comes up one after another, and it was clear to me that Jenny was making them up as she goes along. As I am debunking one, she is thinking up another.

233. At this point, I do not realize just to what extent Wells Fargo was behind everything that is occurring. It is now clear at the present, as I am writing this, that

Jenny is someone who suffers from limitations, and she is being forced to handle this situation for Wells Fargo. She is the middle-woman between me and them. These nonsense explanations were the best that she could do.

234. Although I did not want Jenny speaking with my doctor in private, I did very much like the idea that my doctor opines on this situation. I respond to Jenny's repeated requests to speak with my doctor by telling her we can set an appointment where she and I speak with my doctor about this situation. I tell her that first, I will have an appointment where I explain the situation. Then Jenny and I can have an appointment together. This is not what Jenny wants; all she will settle for is private time between her and my doctor.

235. I then have another idea- Jenny and I can talk on a recorded phone conversation. I will then play the recorded call to my doctor, who can decide if I sound like I am suffering from "paranoid delusions" in my thoughts about this situation. This will also give me an opportunity to document some of Jenny's nonsensical explanations.

236. It is at this point that I am starting to sense the possibility that I will never get any explanation. I start to sense that I will also possibly never get the truth. I am hopeful for both, but I start to shift towards building a case against these people, whoever they may be. I would use the legal system to hold them accountable and get the truth I wanted. There would be a dual motive in a lot of my subsequent dealings with Jenny and others. Over time, the balance of this dual motive would slide further and further towards the side of building a case.

237. Jenny's and I have our call on April 16th, 2019. Jenny makes all sorts of implausible claims. Near the end of the call, we go over the text message on the following page, in Exhibit I. This text message was sent to me from Jenny in January of 2019, when I had a breakdown over this incident. It is between Jenny and Tunny.

Exhibit I. Text Message Between Jennifer Cox and Tunny Xongly

238. In reference to this text, Jenny claims that this is their entire text history. According to her, nothing is left out; nothing is truncated. When I press her on “the last thing she ever said to you was ‘Clint been texting me. Has he been texting you too?’ and the last thing you ever said to her was ‘we are super busy’?”, Jenny makes a spurious excuse to hang up the phone and disconnects.

239. I found it interesting how I am a topic of conversation between Jenny and Tunny. One theory I have at the present time is that it was possibly both of them who were put up to speaking with Abbey. In any event, Jenny’s explanations are completely implausible.

240. Jenny and I continue to fight over the next several days. This is accompanied by repeated attempts from Jenny to be given my doctor’s number and to let Jenny speak with her. Jenny also proposes that I give my doctor Jenny’s number and have my doctor call Jenny. In addition to nonstop attempts to speak with my doctor in private, Jenny also started encouraging me to call a local crisis line. Jenny wanted me to call the crisis line on a number that Jenny provides. This request was suspect to me at first, but I eventually agree to speak with the crisis counseling line. After speaking on the phone, two crisis counselors, Allison (“Allie”) Roe and Cheryl Horton (“Sherri”), come to visit me at my apartment.

241. I have to tidy up a bit for the counselors, as my apartment can be quite messy. I am sure I explained to them why. I often hire house cleaners to clean my apartment. My hired cleaners’ rates are very affordable, and hired cleaners are able to get my apartment clean much faster than I can. As I have no one to impress and have to work nonstop in order to keep my financial situation from crumbling, I will let it my apartment pretty out of shape. I cleaned off the couch before they arrived. They had a place to sit there. I sat at the chair next to my computer desk.

242. The counselors get situated so they can begin their work. Allie, a shorter Caucasian woman, sits on left side of the couch (it is on my right, as I am facing her). Sherri, a taller African American woman, sits next to Allie on the right side of the couch. Allie and Sherri then begin to interview me.

243. After they are seated and begin their interview, I begin to explain the background of my story and how it relates to what occurred at Wells Fargo. Allie is listening and asks questions here and there. Sherri repeatedly interrupts. She is focused on two questions, and two questions only: “do you have a mental illness?”, which she would say loudly and with great emphasis in her tone of voice, and “what is your diagnosis?”. Those two items comprised Sherri’s only concerns, and she repeatedly interrupted my narrative to get answers to these two questions.

244. During the interview, I am agitated after having a very bad day, but I am otherwise very coherent. I tell the crisis counselors that Jenny has violated my medical privacy. I tell them that I want them to document that Jenny called them, Jenny’s stated reason for calling, and the time that Jenny called.

245. The counselors clearly seem to think I am doing just fine. At the conclusion of their visit, Allie tells me “You’ve just had a bad day. Eat a cheeseburger or work on your computer. Do whatever it is that makes you relax and feel better.” The counselors then leave some reference materials with numbers to local mental health service providers. I told them I have no need for these references and to save the paper. They tell me that they are required to leave them.

246. After the crisis counselors visit me on April 17th, 2019. Jenny and I continue to talk and argue about this situation over the next several days. The fight escalates on April 21st, 2019. I exclaim to Jenny, on a text: “you fucking whore, why did you have to come into my life? Why couldn’t someone else help you with your spreads?”. I also text to her at some point “don’t call anyone to come and get me; I will be a vegetable”. This was a heated statement and I have made such heated statements in the past. It was in reference to what would happen if I poisoned myself and someone came to interrupt.

247. At 11:03 pm to 11:04 pm that night, there is a knock on my door. By this time, I was completely calm and about to go to bed. I had been texting Jenny, up to that time. I go to the door and an officer of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police is at my doorstep. He asks if he can come in. I tell him no, that I am about to go to bed. He then says “someone has called and they are worried about you, so I’m going to have to.”

248. The officer enters my apartment, and two other officers soon follow. The first officer, now known to me to be Christopher Sean D’Avanzo, explains to me: “you are not under arrest, and you haven’t done anything wrong, but because of the nature of what has happened, we are going to have to take you somewhere to be looked at.”

249. We then begin the process of “taking me to be looked at.” The officers allow me to gather my wallet, keys, and three bottles of meal shakes. I also down one or two meal shakes before leaving. As we get outside, D’Avanzo tells me that “they do expect me to put you in handcuffs.” He places the handcuffs around my wrists, with my hands behind my back.

250. I become distressed when put in handcuffs; they are hurting my wrists and making me uncomfortable. I ask the officer if I could have them moved up front. He says he cannot, and then loosens them a little, with my cuffed hands left behind my back.

251. It becomes clear that the officer is not in possession of the petition when I ask him questions, as he transports me. These questions included: "So she filed a petition?" and "She had it signed?", among other questions. His responses: "there was a phone call" and "whoever fills it out will have it signed", etc., make it clear that he is not in possession of a petition.

252. I knew that I had been scammed from the get-go but wasn't worried. The officer continually reassured me that I would be examined by a doctor before being admitted to any facility. He told me that I was not going to an inpatient facility. He gave vague, negative, answers to my questions concerning: "is this a place where they keep people overnight?"

253. All of his vagueness and downplaying as well as the step by step process, where each unwelcome aspect of the process is introduced one at a time, I imagine is typical procedure for processing a legitimate petition. Looking at it in retrospect, I believe the constant reassurance of that I would be looked at by a doctor was a deliberate part of the obvious scam that he was involved in, as were the repeated suggestions or assurances that I was not going to an inpatient unit.

254. The officer at my door immediately triggered suspicion. Jenny had told me numerous times about her "police officer neighbor". At this time, I thought I had recollected her saying he was a "young guy." The officer who picked me up looked young. I am not the greatest at guessing someone's age, but I would have put him at about 25 to 33.

255. I am certain that I know the reason for the unlawful method of processing of this fraudulent petition. I had told Jenny that if she tries to have me hospitalized, I will contend with the magistrate or judge that she is filing in bad faith. It was likely me who first told her about the procedure to have someone hospitalized against his or her will. I had threatened her to do it. I was sick of her lies, and wanted Jenny to put this in front of someone who can throw her in jail for lying. This method of processing the petition was intended to circumvent me from being able to contend with the magistrate. I would be behind hospital walls before it left the magistrate's possession.

256. I never asked to speak with the magistrate, largely because of the repeated assurances that I would be examined by a doctor. I was sure that any reasonable doctor would see that this was a transparent scam. I was sure this would be over fast.

257. After driving roughly 17 miles at a very fast pace, we arrive at the inpatient unit at 501 Billingsley rd. This inpatient unit is located in the same building where I get my routine healthcare. I am taken out of the patrol car and the officer takes off my cuffs. I am taken inside the unit. The man at the door, who is a larger man, has me change into a gown. He inventories my belongings. He tells me "there is a 99% probability that they keep you overnight". This all occurs starting at some time around 11:40pm, on April 21st, 2019.

258. Several minutes after my arrival, the officer hands the man who checked me in at the door the petition. As they are entering information on the petition, I hear the officer say "we will just make them the same. That way we can just say that we put the wrong time." The man at the door nods his head. I suspect something is not right here, but I do not know what.

259. After I am in a gown, I proceed to the next step. An Atrium Health nurse (Atrium Health is the owner of this facility, then and presently called Atrium Health Behavioral Healthcare Charlotte) does some intake work. The nurse seems amused at the claims Jenny had made to Atrium. She and I laugh together at some of Jenny's claims.

260. I wait over 3 hours, to around 3:30 am, on April 22nd, 2019, before the doctor who is to examine me arrives. The doctor's name is April Morcigilio (I believe she is referred to internally, at Atrium, as "Morci" and I will use this shorthand going forward). Morci enters the room and immediately starts reading me my medical history. She reads it as if she is making a case against a criminal in a criminal prosecution.

261. The reading of the history begins as soon as she passes through the doorway. "Okay Mr. Williams, you have been coming here since 2011. You are diagnosed with Bipolar Disorder, ADHD....." Each condition I suffer from is read as if evidence against me. She mentions "you have made plans of self-harm", if I recall correctly.

262. I begin to explain to Morci how this whole thing is a scam. I tell her how it is ridiculous and false pretense. I also correct her on my diagnosis. I tell her that I have also received a diagnosis for Autism Spectrum Disorder without Accompanying Intellectual Impairment at age 34 or 35.

263. After everything I say to Morci, Morci responds as if I am stupid. She also looks up at me, disrespectfully. She argues with me on my Autism diagnosis. After not more than 2 minutes have elapsed from the time she sits down, Morci issues a verdict:

"You are manic. Your friend says you are speaking incoherently. You are tangential. You are speaking fast. The staff says you are pacing the floors."

264. At the time, I know that I am completely fine. I explain to her that I am acting as I always do. I explain to her that I always talk fast and that this is how I normally am. I tell her that I pace the floor as a result of medication side effects. I tell her that my medication makes me restless and that this has been documented for years by the hospital she works for.

265. I continue to plead my case for a brief time, as I want to go home and this is ridiculous. The evidence that this was a scam could be found at every turn. The privacy violation that I believe has occurred was characterized as "thinking my friends are out to get me" and me being "delusional", on this fraudulent petition, which was strangely taken at face value by Morci. I tell Morci that I can show her the text messages I sent. Morci says that she wants to see them from Jenny. She says she is sending me to observation.

266. I've been in this situation before; I think to myself. When I was hospitalized at age 18, the doctor was biased against me in this same way. In the setting I was in at age 18, the doctor is the one who determines when you get to leave. I learned the hard way then that the way to get out is not to tell the truth; it is to agree with what the doctor says even if what the doctor says is untrue.

267. I ponder on this, and I decide I have no choice but to go along with them. I tell a nurse "I think I have a legitimate problem." I then ask the same nurse for additional medication. My choices, in my mind, are to agree with this doctor or to be here forever. I do not like lying however.

268. To avoid lying, I decide to split the difference. I take the middle ground between the truth and what Morci wants to hear. I decide that my story will be that I am having “brain chemistry issues” but that I also had some legitimate reasons to think that my privacy was violated.

269. From April 22nd to April 23rd, I participate in routine activities with the staff. We have recreational therapy. We also have employees called psychiatrist assistants (“PA”) who come to interview us.

270. In my interactions with staff, I take the middle ground as I had intended to. In recreational therapy, I tell them that I thought things about my friend that were “horseshit”. The friend I was referencing was Jenny. I told the first PA to visit me that I had legitimate reasons to think what I thought, but there were some brain chemistry issues as well. He seemed to be pleased that I had recognized my “brain chemistry issues”. I got the impression that, at that point, he was looking to confirm Morci’s assessment.

271. He told me that, as a condition of my release, they would like to get Jenny’s number and also my mother’s number. They would like permission to speak with them both. In this circumstance, this was essentially a compulsory requirement. I needed to get home.

272. I give a social worker, which was a brown or black-haired girl who was shorter than me, permission to speak with my mother and Jenny. I give them Jenny’s personal cell number. I am not asked to put anything in writing. I give the social worker very limited permission as to what she can disclose.

273. Another troubling development occurs when, immediately after giving verbal permission, I tell the social worker that I want those names and numbers taken off. I tell her I want them taken off immediately following the calls. The social worker dismisses me as if I have no legitimate concern. She says: "how are we going to talk to them again? You're not going to be here after the next few days?". I tell her: "I don't want my regular doctors talking to her either. I get care in this same building". For a second time, I am dismissed. She just shakes her head and gives me a squinted eye type of facial expression; then she walks off.

274. Immediately following this exchange, I believe that this social worker must know something I do not. Her strange reaction to my concern must be based on some knowledge. Perhaps, I think, this inpatient unit doesn't share the same systems or info with the outpatient unit, which is located in the same building where I get my routine care. I do not give refusal to remove the numbers any further thought while I staying at the inpatient unit.

275. The social worker calls Jenny, and Jenny says she thinks I am fine. According to Jenny, Jenny told the social worker: "He seems to be acting more normal. He seems to realize it was a delusion." I had been speaking with Jenny on the phone while staying at the hospital.

276. While in the hospital, I felt very bad for the way I spoke to Jenny, and for the pain and anguish I had caused her. I decided, at some point, to sugar coat the situation to her. I decided that I would stop making the claim that this thing at Wells Fargo happened. I would play along with her version of the facts.

277. This need to play along with her version of the facts became especially relevant after I was visited by an M.D. psychiatrist who I recall going by the name Bob. On April 23rd, 2019, Bob tells me that after the various interviews I had with Atrium doctors and staff and a look at Atrium's internal notes, a group of psychiatrists have determined that there is nothing wrong with me. He says that I am "on my baseline".

278. On my baseline, in context, means that although faster speech and a tangential quality of speech can be signs of an underlying condition, these behaviors have to be measured relatively. They must be compared against one's "normal" self. Although I spoke fast, I didn't speak abnormally fast for me. I have a long-documented trait of speaking tangentially as well.

279. Bob tells me that they are reversing the involuntary commitment process. My stay at this hospital will be marked as voluntary, retroactively. On the record, it will be as if I had checked in on my own accord. This meant that I would be leaving as soon as this process was complete, on April 24th, 2019. I was very happy about this, but I still intended to sugar coat the situation to Jenny.

280. Prior to my departure, another PA visited me to inform me of the hospital's conclusions. She told me, to paraphrase: "when we have these 'he said/she said' things, we bring you into observation. You can interact with people over a period of days, and we see if you have a legitimate problem. It's actually a good thing that you came, because you've been examined, and we've found nothing." This last sentence "it's a good thing that you came. You've been examined and we've found nothing" I took to mean: "You say that this person has violated your privacy. She claims that you have some sort of delusion. We've determined that is not the case, and now you can pursue whatever you wanted in regards to this."

281. Before I arrived at the inpatient unit, I already had an appointment scheduled for April 25th, 2019. This would turn out to be the day immediately following the day of my discharge from the inpatient unit. During this appointment, I explained the situation with Jenny and this privacy violation with my nurse practitioner Kathy Peniston. This situation was mostly a new thing for her.

282. In previous appointments with Kathy, I had only referred to the situation with what happened at Wells Fargo vaguely. I would tell her that I am dealing with things that cause me "emotional pain." This vagueness had a purpose. That purpose was to keep me out of involuntary admission to hospitals. One potential consequence, in my mind, was that the person I told would incorrectly think I had some sort of symptoms. The other possibility, again in my mind, was that the extreme distress this caused me would trigger a safety concern.

283. I had determined, decades earlier, following my stay at the hospital at age 18, to never, ever, ever give anyone a reason to put you in one of these places. At age 18, I had witnessed abuse of patients. I had also dealt with extreme bias on the part of the M.D. there, and I was made to feel that they will never let you go home.

284. It turns out that, my experience at the hospital at age 18 wasn't a perfect barometer. The inpatient unit at Atrium appears to be ran much, much better. The staff there have great compassion. They give you anything you request, on the spot. If you needed some snack, you tell them what you want and it is yours, instantly. If you need water, you get water. They don't say no to much of anything.

285. I considered this to be one positive outcome of this incident. I was happy that I had a place to go to that wasn't abusive at all. I was even more happy with how their doctors had determined that there was nothing wrong with me and that they had done so despite my claims to the contrary. This was an inverted, photo negative of the biased treatment I received at age 18. The people at Atrium appear to have checks and balances, such that one doctor's bias will not doom you to a perpetual stay.

286. Along with the finer details of this previously referenced issue of "emotionally painful things", I did tell Kathy some concerns I had regarding this process. I told her how on this visit, on April 25th, 2019, I had gone through the typical "rundown" with the nurse. In each visit with Kathy, I am first examined by a nurse before sitting down with Kathy. The nurse always goes through the same routine set of questions. The questions will include "have you been out of the country?", "what are your current medications?", "who is your primary care doctor", and then there are several others. It is standard. After coming there for over 7 years, at that point, I had it mostly memorized.

287. On this visit, however, there was a new question: "and we have, as authorized to speak about your medical care, your mother and Jennifer Cox?". This one was a definite no. I told the nurse about telling the people at the inpatient unit to remove them and how I was dismissed. I then watched the nurse mark the phone numbers as deauthorized. The numbers are not taken off in this process; they are simply marked as not authorized.

288. This was very upsetting to me. The social worker at the inpatient unit had disregarded me totally. She acted as if I had no legitimate concern. For reasons to be subsequently explained, in this complaint, I was extremely concerned for very good reasons that these numbers not be authorized. There were potentially disastrous consequences for this.

289. I was taken aback that the staff at my hospital have a responsibility to protect my privacy and that this is the level of concern they place on this responsibility. The not only are derelict in their duty, they are arrogant and cavalier in being so. This is to the point that they will dismiss you when have a concern, as I was dismissed.

290. I try to have mercy, however, and I let this slide. This girl, in my mind, must have just missed some very important trainings. I tell myself that she just needed coaching. I also let go of my concern about Morci's biased treatment of me and of her interview seeming to be a prosecution that was designed to intimidate me.

291. I had brought some items to this appointment with Kathy. This included a data discs I had burned. The discs had my previously recorded conversations with Jenny. They also had the photo from Exhibit I.

292. I wanted Kathy's opinion on this, and I wanted her to help me get the truth. Kathy said that I was "ruminating". She said that rumination is common for people with mood disorders. She said that I "will never get an answer about this" and that I needed to either "accept it and continue my friendship, if it is beneficial" or "disconnect from this Jenny girl." She says that Atrium's policies will not allow her to view my data disc.

293. Still intending to sugar coat everything to Jenny, I tell Jenny that my doctor says I am ruminating, and Jenny and I resume with our friendship. Our friendship goes on for a few days to maybe a week. Then Jenny, characteristically not understanding the gravity of the situation, tells me something that I didn't previously know. She says: "the crisis counselor that came to see you, Allie, she went with me to the magistrate's office. She said ‘that guy is super smart. It was like being in a classroom with one of my professors’.” Jenny is telling me this as a compliment. I take it that way at first, and then what had occurred clicks in my mind.

294. It was clear that this counselor, Allie Roe, was Jenny’s personal friend. In referencing “Allie”, Jenny was very casual and used the type of tonality and manner of speaking you use when you are very familiar with someone. At this point I knew that what had happened with these crisis counselors was a deliberate scam.

295. I didn’t know, at the time, if Allie was the shorter white girl or the taller black girl. I incorrectly assumed that she was the black girl. I assumed this, because the black girl was the one who had a preoccupation with “do you have a mental illness?” and “what is your diagnosis?”.

296. This now seemed to be a very clear and deliberate part of the scam. Having a mental illness is one of the criteria for filing a civil commitment petition. That is why she needed to pin this down; I reasoned. I thought that, possibly, the shorter white girl was not privy to the scam and that the taller black girl had conned her way into riding along.

297. At this point, I start to get furious. I have been scammed from point A to point Z. I’ve been duped by Jenny’s personal friend at a crisis line and then kidnapped by her police officer neighbor.

298. I still, at this point, don’t understand just how much Wells Fargo is behind all of this. In my mind, it is just Jenny with possibly some influence from them, and Jenny has mutated into the scam artist of the century. I begin to think that she has never cared for me this entire time.

299. A large part of her contribution to our friendship was in providing me comfort over the grief this violation of my privacy caused. I was on and off on a downward spiral over this the entire time. She had done plenty else, but that was the big piece.

300. My contributions to our friendship were less intense but far more numerous. They included helping her with her work. They included writing VBA scripts for her to put in her templates at her new job at another bank.

301. The people down the line from Jenny at her new job were editing her spreadsheets when they weren't supposed to. Jenny has a problem of not being taken seriously by others. She told me that her templates are spreadsheets with dozens of pages. I wrote a script that stopped them cold with the push of a button.

302. My contributions also included writing large sections of her sermons. Her sermons had made her a star at her church. I would spend hours helping her with them. She would often be panicking or almost crying as I read my list of corrections. For sure, I invested a lot in Jenny, and I was happy to do so.

303. All of this bothered me, as at this time it was obvious that she had gotten a bunch of rumors from where I used to live. It was obvious that she had then told them to the people at my work, making my life hell in the process. In her next move, she had run the most ambitious scam in the universe to cover her tracks. Then, as a final insult that I wouldn't otherwise care about, she failed to give credit to the unnamed atheist coauthor of her blockbuster sermons. I seemed to be getting the bad end of this friendship in all cases.

304. My sweet little friend is suddenly looking like the world's most ambitious criminal and a con-artist extraordinaire with markedly capitalistic tendencies to profit from my desperate circumstances. Those desperate circumstances seemed to have been engineered, in large part, by her. It seemed to me, if you remove this situation that she caused, the balance of the contributions to our friendship was heavily on me.

305. At this time, I have no clue what the hell I am dealing with, in regards to Jenny. I cannot make sense of this, and Jenny looks, on and off, to be evil to the core. It is at this time that I start having very acute symptoms of traumatic stress. I had been having traumatic stress symptoms for some time leading up to this. It is around May 2019 that they go off the charts.

VII. Analysis of April of 2019 and The First Crimes

306. For reasons that will be elaborated, here and further along in this complaint, I now know that Wells Fargo is behind the entirety of these shenanigans. They use Jenny's proximity to me, as my friend, as a means to execute their crimes. They have induced each respective entity, the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police, Mobile Crisis, and Atrium Health into criminal behavior. The induced criminal behaviors were most likely perpetrated, in each case, for pecuniary gain by the offenders.

307. In recent months, as of the present time, I have obtained Mobile Crisis's internal notes. I have also obtained the civil commitment petition. Both show clear evidence of criminal behavior.

308. The Mobile Crisis counselors, Allie Roe and Sherri Horton, have perpetrated a serious crime. Mobile Crisis's internal notes make this clear. After telling me that I had "just had a bad day" and "needed to eat a cheeseburger or work on my computer", they leave my residence. They then go and prepare a fraudulent healthcare record that is to be filed as Mobile Crisis's internal notes. I will go over the notes in paragraphs that follow.

309. Mobile Crisis's internal notes give the clear appearance of being deliberately designed to put me in the worst light possible. In addition to saying that I am suffering from an "active psychosis", am "paranoid", and have "delusions", they add that I am overweight, have poor hygiene, am covered in sweat even with a cool temperature inside my apartment, and live among piles of trash in a "malodorous" apartment.

310. I am certainly none of these. I was not suffering from an acute psychosis, as Ginger Marsh, another crisis line worker, claims to have concluded based on a phone call. "Paranoid" is not how to characterize someone's belief that his privacy was violated. "Delusions" also doesn't apply, as I was clearly not experiencing delusions.

311. In regards to "poor hygiene", this is not true in any general sense. I have bad teeth, as a result of not taking care of my teeth as a youth. Other than that, at the time they visited me, I kept my nails trim. I wore my hair short and neat (it is cut so short as to not require any maintenance, nearly bald or bald). There is no evidence for "poor hygiene", and making this general characterization is false.

312. I was not covered in sweat. I am biologically a human being. It is typically extremely cool in my apartment. I do not sweat in such temperatures, like anyone else does not (to my knowledge, people do not sweat when the temperature is barely above 60 or 65 degrees, as it is in my apartment).

313. At the time, I was overweight, but this is a pointless descriptor. The only possible function of this detail is to further cast me in a bad light. 70% of Americans are overweight. Do they write this on 70% of their reports?

314. Living among “piles of trash” is very exaggerated and misleading. My apartment was not in that bad a shape. I am sure I also explained to them clearly why it was very messy.

315. I do not have a malodorous apartment. No one has ever complained of an odor in my apartment. Not the maintenance people from my complex, who visit fairly frequently. Not any of my friends or family, who also visit, just more infrequently. I am a single man who cooks extremely rarely. I do not have meat or produce to rot. My apartment is messy, yes, but in no way is it characterizable as “malodorous”. I have confirmed this with my hired house cleaner. She came to clean my apartment not long after the crisis counselors visited. She said that my apartment didn’t smell bad, not at all, and that it never had. She said that the air was just “stale”.

316. All of these forged details and facts strongly beg some questions: why are they doing this? Why are they creating a deliberately fraudulent healthcare record? Why are they diagnosing me, absurdly, with an active psychosis, including merely based off a phone call? Why do they characterize my belief that a privacy violation has occurred as a “paranoid delusion”? Why do they also characterize this belief in these terms on the civil commitment petition? Why do they do all of this after telling me that I only needed to eat a cheeseburger?

317. The answer is that this is all done for the benefit of Wells Fargo. Wells Fargo has had them prepare a fraudulent healthcare record that can be subpoenaed later in legal proceedings and also used to file a false pretense civil commitment petition. Wells Fargo’s plan, for the entire time, has been to make my belief and knowledge that a privacy violation has happened out to be a symptom of my mental health condition. They appear to have, at least in Allie Roe's case, paid a good sum of money for this crime.

318. I have recently searched Mecklenburg County public records to see what kind of real estate transactions Allie has been involved in. According to Mecklenburg County public records, Allie and her husband took out a mortgage in the amount of $189,500 in March 2018. In July 2019, roughly 3 months after visiting me, the mortgage balance was paid in full. There are no additional deeds of trust to evidence any refinance or deed transfers evidencing the sale of the property securing this mortgage. I have estimated, through a simple amortization table, that her mortgage balance would have been ~ $186,000.

319. Where did she get this windfall? The timing of what has occurred and the obvious big money player makes it clear. Wells Fargo has offered her a large sum of money to perpetrate this. She has felt it a good risk and went for it.

320. The civil commitment petition makes it very clear, the meaning of this exchange with Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police officer Christopher D'Avanzo and the man at the door at Atrium. The exchange went like this: "we will make them the same. That way we can say we put the wrong time", said by D'Avanzo, followed by a nod by the gentleman at the door. "The same" refers to the time taken into custody and the time delivered to the examination unit.

321. Both times were entered as 11:43pm for an obvious purpose; that purpose being to provide plausible deniability. The officer and the man at the door both know that if they put the actual times for both events, it will clearly show on the magistrate's audit file that it was impossible for D'Avanzo to get the involuntary petition, drive from the magistrate's office to my apartment, then take me to a location on Billingsley Rd that is 17 miles away from my apartment.

322. This is not a minor detail. The involuntary petition, signed by the magistrate and in the possession of the officer is analogous to an arrest warrant; it is what gives the officer the authority to curtail my liberty. Without meeting this requirement, as the officer deliberately failed to do, the officer had no more right to coerce me into doing something than I had to coerce him into doing something.

323. This means that the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police officers have committed numerous offenses. Entering and then inspecting my residence constituted civil trespasses. Placing me in handcuffs constitutes a civil battery, a civil false imprisonment, and a criminal false imprisonment. Officer D'Avanzo placing me in his patrol car and then transporting me 17 miles to the inpatient unit at Billingsley Rd compounds a false imprisonment and a kidnapping, as all of the preceding actions were knowingly taken as part of and to facilitate a series of healthcare frauds.

324. The reaction and nod by the gentleman at the door at Atrium Health Behavioral Healthcare Charlotte, when he and the officer complete the petition, indicates he clearly understood the context of "we will make them the same". This means that Atrium Health knew that there was no legal basis for my stay there. In light of this fact, my entire stay at Atrium Health was a criminal and civil false imprisonment.

325. Atrium Health, the Charlotte Mecklenburg Police, Mobile Crisis, Jenny, and Wells Fargo have participated in a criminal and civil conspiracy to first have me kidnapped at my residence and to then have me falsely imprisoned at the inpatient unit on Billingsley Rd. I am now strongly of the belief that Morci was involved as well. This would explain her strange way of interviewing me.

326. That I perceived her interview style to be deliberately designed to intimidate me was likely an accurate perception. Her coming to the conclusion, after a 2-minute interview, that I suffered from a manic episode acutely enough to have delusions that “my friends are out to get me”, was likely prearranged. This was done in defiance of established records of the hospital that I had been receiving and cooperating in my care and that I had a lengthy history of being very stable.

327. This would also explain why Morci doesn’t bat an eye at this petition, which is full of evidence of foul play; the least of that evidence not being that I was teleported from my residence to their inpatient unit in less than 60 seconds (Taken into custody at 11:43 pm and delivered to the unit 17.2 miles away at 11:43 pm? Star Trek technology, or a new land speed record for a speed exceeding 1,000mph. Does either sound plausible?). All have participated in this, very likely, bolstered by confidence that my mental health condition renders my word meaningless in court. They feel empowered to do as they please.

328. I am now sure the reason that Jenny wanted to speak with my doctor alone was that Wells Fargo intended to pay my doctor to help Wells Fargo cover up its crimes and other unlawful behaviors. The perpetrators behind Wells Fargo’s crimes wanted her to go along with their plan of having my belief that they invaded my privacy characterized as a symptom of mental illness.

329. Jenny is a victim of Wells Fargo as well, although not nearly to the extent that I am. It has taken me time and reflection on some things Jenny has confided in me to realize this. Jenny has told me that her family would do things that disturb her. Jenny told me that members of her family would walk in the bathroom when she was taking a shower, as if she wasn't even there. She said that they did not do this to her sister.

330. The insight I have is that Jenny's family knows that she suffers from some sort of deficit. They know her far better than I do. This behavior of completely disregarding someone's personal boundaries is a behavior that people will direct at people who are handicapped. It is typical, in my experience, for people with certain deficits or disabilities to not be taken as seriously as others. This is particularly true in regards to the handicapped person's family.

331. I have cried at least 50 times over the pain that dealing with this has put Jenny through. She just wanted to be my friend and to forget about it. She's lived a sheltered life. Her sheltered life, combined with her apparent mental deficit, cause her to not at all get the gravity of the situation. Wells Fargo, quite far from a deficit, holding over $100 billion cash, hides behind her like the despicable cowards that they are.

VIII. May through August 2019; HIPAA Violations and Fraud

332. Following the involuntary commitment, I would be seeing my nurse practitioner psychiatrist Kathy Peniston more frequently. Our previous schedule was to have an appointment once per 3 months. After my April 25th, 2019 visit, I would be scheduled to come for another visit in 2 weeks. I would continue seeing her on a much more frequent basis for some time.

333. In my visits with Kathy in April and May, I told her about the suspect circumstances of the involuntary petition. I told her of Mobile Crisis's obviously suspect behavior. I asked her "what would be the reason..." "...for them to sit there and repeat, very loudly and with emphasis, 'do you have a mental illness?', 'do you have a mental illness?', 'what we need to know is do you have a mental illness?'". I told her of Morci's suspect way of interviewing me. At this point I wasn't fully aware of the extent to which Atrium was already a part of this scam in which I was kidnapped.

334. I have reason to believe that these circumstances have made Kathy suspicious around this time. I had asked her, on one visit: "does this petition have the time the officer took me into custody or just the date?". She replied "just the date." I now believe this was deliberate misinformation given to dissuade me from wanting to see the petition. She knew there was evidence of foul play, and she likely knew that foul play had taken place. She also likely knew that this foul play involved her hospital.

335. My first hints of who is really behind everything had occurred since December 2017 come, around this same time, in May 2019. I begin to ask my last manager at Wells Fargo, named Courtney Luce, for help. I was certain that she knew something about this situation. Her attitude towards me had changed, as had the attitudes of rest of my direct management, in December 2017.

336. The situation between Courtney and I is complex. She had subjected me to stigmatization, as had so many. This created a traumatic reaction, and part of the way I dealt with it was to make her out to be a "good guy". I did this while at work.

337. Courtney was an easy candidate for the good guy. She had done something good for me. She finally addressed this rule we had about "no past dues". She said that I could trade out items. If one of my offices wanted something early or wanted some extra service on some item, they could trade that item for an item currently due. This was all I ever needed, in regards to Bill's asinine "past dues" policy.

338. I made her the good guy because I couldn't bear the thought of the reality I was facing. That reality was that the entire management team and a large number of employees were biased against me and treated me as less a person. I rationalized that she was a good guy as a means to mitigate my trauma.

339. In speaking with Courtney, I try to communicate with her in what might be called "safe terms". I try to make the conversation sanitized and non-threatening. In service of this method of communication, I give her no hint that I believe she knows something about this.

340. The other tactic I use, to make this a safe discussion, is to use the term "HR", speaking of "HR violations" and "HR rules". This is meant to distract from any potential legal consequence for Wells Fargo. I wanted to make it clear that I had no intent whatsoever of doing anything other than getting the truth that I was after. I felt that using phrases about legal consequences may create the wrong tone. I give her a clear and unambiguous statement to the fact that I do not aim to get anyone in trouble.

341. During our chat, I repeatedly emphasize that I do not want to get anyone in trouble. I tell her that I'm not overly sensitive to "HR rules". I tell her that the purpose of such rules is not for people to beat one-another over the head. I tell her that the conversation will not make it past us unless she gives me permission. I made it completely clear that there is no consequence at all to her or to Wells Fargo for telling the truth.

342. Courtney responds with lies, stating that she does not know anything, but the truth starts to reveal itself as I talk to her. In the conversation that ensues, she makes many statements that hint of what has actually happened. She speaks in terms of her “not knowing anything about your past.” She, at one point, says that Jenny likely meant no harm in “inquiring about your past.”

343. “Not knowing anything about my past” is a response to a concern that I have never expressed. All I had ever said was that bad things were said about me at my former place of living, and that someone inside Wells Fargo had heard them. I said that Jenny had heard them, and that Jenny knew what had happened.

344. This all starts to click. The idea that someone has “inquired about my past” is entirely hers. Jenny had also repeatedly framed this in those exact terms, responding to my concern that someone had heard things that used to be said about me with: “I don’t know anything about your past”, “I don’t know anything about your past except what you had told me”, and similar statements.

345. It was constantly “...your past”, “...your past”, “...your past” in all cases, from everyone, except me. I start to think about this, and it seems more and more likely that Jenny was put up to this by Wells Fargo. Who would want to “look into my past”? Why would whatever had been said be confined to management and a certain group of employees? Why did Courtney, as a Wells Fargo manager, know exactly what had happened?

346. At this text conversation ensues over many days, my traumatic stress symptoms begin to go off the charts. I begin to even more frequently be hit with more intense emotional pain. This emotional pain is accompanied by a feeling of hostility. I make harsh and hostile sounding statements to Courtney, on and off, for a period of weeks. She eventually asks that I not text her. This was likely at the direction of Wells Fargo.

347. On June 6th, 2019, I learn that a lady named Shirley from Atrium Health is trying to get in touch with me. Shirley had been trying to call me on my cell phone; I later realized. She was unable to get me to answer. She was also unable to leave a voicemail. The reason for this was that I didn't answer my phone for numbers I didn't recognize. My voicemail was also full as a result of my being deluged with debt collection calls.

348. What is really discomfoting is that it is Jenny who first informs me that Shirley needs to speak with me. Jenny tells me that Shirley has left a voicemail at Jenny's work number. According to Jenny, Shirley says that I have left Jenny's work number as an alternate contact number. Jenny says that Shirley has a petition for some services and wants me to call her.

349. I am immediately angry and also, privately, suspicious. I do not know Jenny's work number. I call Shirley and yell at her.

350. At this point, I do not know what I am dealing with, with Jenny. I need my hospital to stop speaking with her. I've deauthorized her countless time (to the social worker at the inpatient unit, twice, to Kathy and the nurse, repeatedly) and now Atrium magically has a number that I do not have.

351. Jenny's subsequent behavior gives me further reason for concern. I tell Jenny that I blasted Shirley. Jenny claims to be very angry. At one point, Jenny calls me, and says, in a very calm and measured tone: "Clint, I am soooo angry with you right now. I mean I am furious with you...". This measured tone is not Jenny's normal way of speaking when angry. This suspect situation is, at this point in time, getting more suspect all of the time.

352. I know something is up, and I tell Jenny I will call Shirley back the next day if that will make Jenny happy. Jenny says that she wants me to call Shirley immediately. Jenny has an urgency that I call Shirley. Jenny has an unusually high level of motivation that I speak with Shirley. At this point, it is more than clear that this is yet another scam being ran by Jenny. I suspect, again, some attempt to get my medical records. The events that follow are what begin to make it clear that Wells Fargo is behind everything that has occurred. Following the next set of events, I have less and less doubt of that fact.

353. Wanting to get to the bottom of this, I call Shirley on June 7th, 2019. I call her in the morning hours (around 9 to 9:30 am) and she returns my call at around 10:30 am that morning. Unbeknownst to her, I am recording the entire call.

354. Shirley explains to me that she works for the finance department at Atrium. She says her department fills out applications, on behalf of patients, for something called Charity Care and also fills out applications for Medicaid, again, on behalf of patients. She explains that Charity Care is available for patients who are not eligible for Medicaid. She explains that part of the process of completing a Medicaid application is that she will use my social security number to pull my medical records. My medical records will be sent along with the Medicaid application.

355. As Shirley is explaining these facts, primarily in response to questions I am asking her, I grill her. By "grill her", I mean that I subject her to a somewhat intense, cross examination style of questioning. I am clearly, to any reasonable person, suspicious of her.

356. Over and over I question her, sometimes with an intensity in my demeanor. I grill her as to if she, personally, has access to my medical records. I ask her if she is calling from Davidson, N.C., which is the location of the caller that shows up on my phone when she calls. I ask her how it is that she determined to call me. Did she have me on a list? Where does this task, for her to call me and offer help to pay for my hospital stay, come from?

357. In the events that follow, it is important to note that at the beginning of this call with Shirley, I explicitly deny any interest in Medicaid. I tell her, unequivocally, that Medicaid is not an option that I am interested in. I tentatively deny interest in Charity Care.

358. The real purpose of this call becomes clear when, as I grill her, Shirley asks for my social security number. She doesn't ask for "the last 4 digits". She merely asks me to "give me your social security number", which in the reasonable interpretation means the full number. Her stated purpose for getting my social security number is to remove Jenny's phone number from my alternate contact number on Atrium's systems.

359. There are a few things wrong here. One is that she had told me, the day before, on June 6th, that she was removing Jenny's number "right now." The other is that no one in this hospital has ever asked me for my full 9-digit social security number. When I made a request, around the end of April 2018, to get my medical records sent to a disability insurance company, I only had to provide the last 4 numbers.

360. It is more than odd that Shirley is also the only person, ever, to ask for any of the digits to my social security number to pull up my information. Every other person, every single time, without fail, gets my last name and birthday. I decline, on this first request, to give her my social security number. I then continue the grilling process previously described.

361. Following the first failed attempt to get my social security number, Shirley makes two more, very motivated and almost desperate, attempts to get my social security number. In one such attempt, she tells me “I don’t want to have to go back to my filing cabinet and pull the information from that paper.” By this, she seemed to be implying that she had my full social security number on a paper in her filing cabinet.

362. After about 20 minutes of speaking, the call comes to a conclusion. I decline each and every attempt Shirley makes to get my social security number. I tell her goodbye. My phone recording app automatically turns off and saves the call when I hang up.

363. On my next appointment with Kathy, my first item of business is to tell Kathy about this suspect behavior. According to what I knew at the point in time I am having this appointment with Kathy, this is the first overtly criminal act Atrium has been involved in. I do not yet realize that Atrium was involved in the fraudulent civil commitment petition and the kidnapping. Kathy cuts me off fast. She says “I think Shirley is just doing her job.” I press her just a little “they need my full social security number to remove a number?”. Kathy thinks I am overanalyzing, and seems to think my level of interest in this situation is excessive.

364. I make another call to Shirley, on June 13th, 2019, with the intention to record her and get her to confirm that she was asking for my full social security number. I wanted to snuff out any subsequent possibility of her trying to say she only meant the last 4 numbers. I am, at this point in time, still convinced that this is suspect behavior. I see no reason she should want or have any use for my full social security number.

365. Shirley confirms that she “asks for all 9 digits”, and gives an explanation. She says that someone else may have the same last 4 digits as me but that having all the numbers will allow her to get the right record. We exchange some further talk. I, at one point, tell her that maybe I would be interested in getting charity care. My intent in saying this was to make a false pretense excuse to contact Shirley at a later time. I want to keep her talking and get more evidence to use against her.

366. I tell my nurse practitioner Kathy on a subsequent appointment, again, about this suspicious thing with Shirley. I tell her how Shirley has said that I would have given this alternate contact number at intake. At around the end of this appointment, I tell Kathy: “I don’t recall seeing an alternate contact number anywhere on the systems here”, with “here” referring to the systems Kathy and Atrium’s nurses use.

367. A turning point occurs when Kathy looks at her system. She sees that there is no alternate contact number in the medical system. At this point in time, I do not know how these numbers get in Atrium’s systems. Kathy obviously does, as she is a long-standing employee of the hospital. Perhaps this is the reason for her strange reaction.

368. As Kathy looks at her screen, she gets a very disturbed look on her face. As I am leaving, she has a very strange demeanor. She reaches out to shake my hand, and there is a strange look on her face. It is as if something about me, or something about something, is disturbing her. I do not think much of this strange reaction for a while.

369. Around the first week of August 2019, I am speaking with Jenny, and yet another cause for concern erupts. Magically, things I have discussed with Kathy are on Jenny's mind. I instantly peg this as another one of Jenny's plagiarized private thoughts. I am sure, at this point, that Jenny has somehow penetrated my hospital. I believe she has somehow gotten a screenshot or a printout of my clinical visit notes.

370. When I try to figure out how Jenny has gotten access to my information, I recall a time when Jenny called me and asked me how much Adderall I am taking. Her stated reason for wanting this information was that she had started taking Adderall. She said that it didn't completely restore her ability to concentrate. She said she was still distracted by her phone, and needed advice. I didn't think much of this when she asked, and I told Jenny my daily dosage.

371. As I am trying to figure out, in August 2019, how Jenny has gotten my info, I recall that call from Jenny, the one where she asks about my dosage. It occurs to me that, while in the hospital, one of the questions staff could ask to get into my record was "what is your dosage of...?" I immediately suspect that this is the means by which Jenny has gotten my information.

372. On August 6th, 2019, I call Atrium Health Medical Records. I want a list of the people who have accessed my chart. After a series of varying answers as to how I might get such a list, Atrium Health Medical Records directs me to Atrium Health Corporate Privacy.

373. On this same day, August 6th, 2019, I call Atrium Health Corporate Privacy. I speak with a woman named Laura Shumate. Laura explains to me that I can't get a list of the names of who has accessed my chart but that they have measures to address my concerns. She says that they have a team that goes in and examines access to records, using human judgement as well as software, to detect any improper access of medical information. She says she will have this team determine if there has been any improper access to my information. I tell her that I am concerned about the range of dates beginning on June 24th, 2019, and ending the first week of August 2019. I assumed this was the time period in which Jenny had gotten my information, based on my last appointment date being June 24th, 2019 and the then present time being in the first week of August 2019.

374. On this call I explain, to Laura, Shirley's suspect behavior. I tell her about being asked for my full social (for some reason, I recollect in my mind Shirley telling me she gets "the full 10 digits". There are obviously 9 digits in a social security number.). I ask Laura questions about how the entering of contact numbers in Atrium's systems works.

375. On this call, I learn some things from Laura Shumate. She tells me that the contact numbers would have been provided by me. They would be entered on the medical system. They would then be distributed, from the medical system, appropriately throughout the hospital. "Distributed appropriately", Laura explains, means that alternate contact numbers are sent to billing and finance. Contact information for people authorized to speak about a patient's healthcare do not go to billing and finance. They also do not go to other departments. I disconnect from this call to Atrium Health Corporate Privacy after speaking with Laura for approximately 44 minutes. I let Laura get her team on the matters I have called about.

376. I am antsy and eager to find out what has happened, immediately following the call with Laura Shumate. I call back, shortly after the first call, to ask some more questions. On my call back, Laura explains that she was just about to call me. She says she has results. Laura says that there has been no improper access to my chart. She gives me a list of the roles of the people who have accessed along with the dates.

377. In this same call, Laura says she looked into the issue with Shirley and the finance department, and she gives me her findings. Laura says that she asked a senior official in the finance department about Shirley asking for my full social. She says that the senior official in the finance department couldn't think of any reason they would ask for my full social. He told Laura that the finance department does not even have access to my full social anywhere. A potential reason is given, that Shirley was "proactively collecting information for a Medicaid application", to paraphrase Laura. Laura confirms that Charity Care applications do not require a social security number. Laura says that, per the senior finance official, there was a note of a call being made to Jenny on June 7th and a note made that Jenny's number has been deleted on that same day. Laura cannot confirm if they have a record of Jenny's work number ever being entered. That question was apparently never asked.

IX. May Through August 2019 Analysis

378. Here we have evidence, at every turn, of criminal behavior. I will start by addressing the June 6th and June 7th calls. I will first lay out the facts concerning the usefulness of my full social security number to Shirley, in Exhibit II. I will then reconstruct the events surrounding the June calls with Shirley, in Exhibit III.

Exhibit II. The Role of My Information in Atrium Health's Finance Department

a) Atrium Health's finance department (for and from which Shirley is calling me) helps patients with two financial assistance programs:

1) Charity Care (Atrium's funds, used for Atrium's "vulnerable populations")

2) Medicaid (the well-known, government funded entitlement program)

b) Charity Care applications do not require a social security number. To fill out a Medicaid Application, you do need a social security number. The social security number is used to order your medical records. Your medical records will be sent along with the application.

c) The sole use of your full social security number for Atrium Health's finance department is to order your medical records. If you are not filing a Medicaid application, there is no need for or use for this information.

Items a through c, which are all facts provided by Atrium (either Shirley or Corporate Privacy) on my calls with them, make it clear why Shirley wants my social security number. The only thing my social security number is good for is to order my medical records. Full social security number = order medical records- end of story. Atrium Health's finance department doesn't have your full social security number anywhere. Saying that the finance department has any use for it to remove a contact number is a false claim; the finance department has a use for the last 4 digits only.

Exhibit III. Reconstruction of Key Events Involving Shirley from Atrium Health

1. June 6th: Jenny texts me and explains to me that a lady, named Shirley from Atrium Health, is trying to reach me. She says that Shirley has left a voicemail on Jenny's work number. She says that Shirley claims to have gotten Jenny's number as an alternate contact number. I do not even know Jenny's work phone number at the time this is supposed to have occurred.
2. June 6th: I call Shirley. I curse at her. Shirley is calm and collected as I curse at her.
3. June 7th: I call Shirley and she calls back. On the return call, I deny, outright and completely, any even remote interest in Medicaid. I do this near the beginning of our call. Subsequent to my rejecting Medicaid, outright, Shirley makes 3 attempts to collect my full 9-digit social security number. Each attempt appears to be highly motivated. It is as if Shirley has something to gain by getting my full social security number. On one attempt, she tells me "I don't want to go and get the information off the paper in my file cabinet", a clear insinuation that she has my full, 9-digit social security number on a paper in her file cabinet. The function of this blatantly false claim (later confirmed as false by Atrium Health Corporate Privacy) is to disarm me and make me feel as if there is no consequence for me if I provide Shirley with my full, 9-digit social security number.

379. The Exhibits, combined, make the case for what has happened and make it conclusively. Exhibit II lays out the logic that makes it clear what Shirley is after. Exhibit III makes it clear that she has something to gain. That she has something to gain is made apparent by her tonality as she makes motivated attempts to get my full social security number, over and over. That she has something to gain is made apparent by the fact that she does this despite my seemingly extreme suspicion of her as I am grilling her.

380. Shirley also has something to lose. I presume that in obtaining my medical records for no valid purpose, she intended to file a fraudulent Medicaid application to cover her tracks (it would otherwise have the clear appearance of a purposeless ordering of my records). She would be committing two crimes. One is Medicaid fraud, which has penalties of up to 5 years in prison. The other is a HIPAA violation, carried out under fraudulent pretenses. This is another up to five years in prison. These penalties are in addition to potential fines in excess of $300,000 and the obvious end of her career in the medical field.

381. Yet, for some reason, she is motivated to commit these crimes. Her motivation exceeds her inhibition, in the face of these penalties. Her motivation exceeds her inhibition in the face of these penalties, even as I am already clearly suspicious of her. Her motivation exceeds her inhibition enough that she blatantly lies to me and tries to say she has my full social security number on a paper in her file cabinet. Her motivation exceeds her inhibition in a setting where there is an electronic trail and/or a paper trail of everything she does.

382. What is the value of my medical records to Shirley? Is there enough info in my medical records relevant to Shirley's life, in some way, to offset these risks? I think not. Who else may want my medical records? Who can possibly offer a suitably large offsetting reward to balance with this risk, a reward big enough to trigger this intense motivation?

383. The answer can be found by stepping back to when I am speaking with my former manager, Courtney Luce. I mention to Courtney that Jenny's petition has been deemed invalid. I had also mentioned this fact to Jenny. I wasn't fully aware, as of the first time I mentioned this to Jenny, that everything I say to Jenny goes back to Wells Fargo. Wells Fargo, at this time, has already engaged in healthcare fraud. They have paid the Mobile Crisis counselors to make a fraudulent healthcare record. They likely expected this fraudulent involuntary commitment petition to be further, falsified, evidence in their favor.

384. The situation Wells Fargo now finds itself in is that apparently that my healthcare team has caught Wells Fargo in the act. They have called foul play on this petition. In my conversations with Courtney, I had characterized my hospital in a way that would suggest that they were very suspicious of Jenny's actions. My hospital's conclusions could be found in my records.

385. In light of Wells Fargo's interest in my healthcare records, it is obvious they are the party behind this new instance of healthcare fraud. Wells Fargo wants this for purposes of seeing what kind of case it now had, given this new information, and for purposes of seeing what evidence of criminal behavior my healthcare team may have. Wells Fargo is a large, multinational bank. Wells Fargo has well over $100 billion in cash, at almost any given time. Wells Fargo is the only party with a stake in this who can afford to pay someone enough to commit such serious crimes.

386. It is also clear, as of August 2019, that my hospital and its staff are repeatedly breaking the law. They have no interest in helping me fight Wells Fargo. They are not at all appalled by this $2 trillion in assets strong, criminal bank abusing their patient. They are not at all appalled by this bank using their facilities and their government provided funds to perpetrate crime.

387. What they are apparently appalled by is the thought that they may face consequences for the crime they are so obviously now involved in. They seem to have clearly gone into the same pathological self-preservation state that Wells Fargo seems to live in. Like their friend Wells Fargo, Atrium's self-preservation instinct is accompanied by uninhibited criminal ambition.

388. Kathy has clearly begun, at least as of June to August 2019, to speak to Jenny and the people at Wells Fargo. She has done this to protect the hospital. Her behavior makes this clear. Her behavior subsequent to my telling her about criminal behavior at my hospital has to be put in context. Then it can be better why she has committed crimes and thought that she would get away with them. There was a change in how she viewed me that occurred over several months previous to June 2019.

389. I am considered by many and consider myself a competent and capable person. I have developed many complex skills, such as computer programming and financial analysis, that are indicative of relatively high ability. In the beginning of our professional relationship, I believe Kathy saw me this way.

390. Over the years, since I had started going to Atrium in 2011, I had experienced increasingly severe cognitive impairment. My cognitive impairment had progressed to dementia-like symptoms over time. I would find out that this impairment was the result of my medications. The problematic medication was addressed and my impairment has been much less severe since.

391. This impairment seems to be one of several factors that had influenced Kathy's perception of me. During the period in which I had cognitive impairment, I without a doubt would have seemed "not all there" at times, to others. As I had increasing traumatic stress symptoms, I was less and less capable of taking care of myself. This also affected my work/life balance.

392. The situation that I was in for a good time was that I had no one to impress. I rarely went out. 99% of my business interactions were conducted on the phone. I did however have bills to pay, and was increasingly against the wall with work I was unable to do. In these circumstances, I devoted much more time to doing my programming work. I devoted less hours to maintaining my hair. I paid less attention to the clothes that I wore. I paid less attention to my clothes being clean.

393. Then there was my posture. Since June 2018, I had worked from a computer all day long, each day that I worked. I had developed a hunched over posture. This is normal for people who work from a computer desk; I would later find out. I had slowly developed this posture over time without being conscious of it.

394. In the months leading up to June 2019, I had begun to notice that Kathy was having a reaction of contempt towards me. By this, I mean she saw me as a kind of pathetic person. Without a doubt, my increasingly disheveled appearance, my posture, which made me seem to look down with my head tilted forward, and my behavior during the time I was impaired had a role in that.

395. During the time when I was more severely impaired, there was one specific behavior that seemed to trigger this type of reaction from Kathy. At one point, I got highly confused during speaking. I went on a monologue, speaking very fast and seemingly incoherent. I noticed a reaction of contempt from her at this point. This, in general, is the type of behavior that can make others think less of you.

396. In Kathy's case, as a mental health provider, this is downright despicable. With very few exceptions, every patient that walks through Kathy's door has a disability. Each of her patients is limited in a way that the patient cannot help. I have noticed, in my providers over the years, a strong inhibition against seeing their patients as somehow less than them. They have this inhibition out of compassion. They have an awareness of the limitations of those they treat and a sense of the dignity of their patients.

397. Kathy seems to have no such inhibition. I have come to see her as someone who is in this business for her career. The "vulnerable populations", Atrium Health is so prone to referencing in its financial statements, are a means to this end. They are a means to this end, and nothing else. This perception of Kathy is driven by her recent behavior as well as some reflections on her past behavior.

398. One thing I reflect on is that very early on, after I had begun to see Kathy, there were some UNC medical school students in the facility. These students were there to sit in on visits with patients. I have had this situation before. It is something that medical professionals in training will frequently do. Having been through this before, I knew that these people could not sit in on my appointments without my consent.

399. I was somewhat disturbed when, as we went through the door and down the hallway, Kathy tells me “we have some UNC med students who will be sitting it with us.” I was disturbed by her lack of respect for my privacy. This lack of respect was in her approach, which I refer to as “the assumptive close”. In this assumptive close, I am not given a choice to allow or to not allow the UNC students to sit in. I am instead informed that they will be sitting in with me.

400. I let this slide, when this happened, in an effort to be reasonable. It felt like an uncomfortable boundary violation. I thought that maybe she just had a bad day and had forgotten. It was a no harm foul, as at this time I had no issue with them sitting in. I also knew that I have the right to refuse. To her credit, in more than one subsequent medical student sit in Kathy asked for my permission. I do not know the extent to which any hint I had given of my previous displeasure at her assumptive close played any role in Kathy’s behavior change.

401. This uncomfortable and disturbing assumptive close was out of sight, out of mind for a good while. Then recently, in the past 6 to 9 months as of the present date, I saw a placard in the lobby at Atrium Health Behavioral Healthcare Charlotte. It had a large face shot of Kathy. Below Kathy’s photo, it had a block of text that lavished praise on Kathy and Atrium for their participation in UNC’s med school program. This was apparently a big kudos to both Atrium and Kathy.

402. This self-promotional placard brought back some of the discomfort I had previously felt over the assumptive close. I immediately wondered how many other patients Kathy had pulled the assumptive close on. I was well aware that many within Atrium's vulnerable population of patients would likely not know their rights.

403. Kathy, potentially, seems to have played the game in her favor. The more people she asks for permission, the more people that may say no. In her drive to get this kudos for her career, it seems possible that she has used the assumptive close more than once. I am only speculating that she may have pulled an assumptive close on others. I however do think it is likely.

404. In reference to the timeline and series of events I have described, I told Kathy, around June of 2019, that Shirley from Atrium was involved in criminal behavior. Being skeptical the first time, it is the second time that she realizes that indeed, something is up. At this time, she gets a disturbed look on her face. She is clearly not liking something.

405. That something is that, as both Kathy and Laura Shumate know, if Jenny's work number had been entered as an alternate contact number, it would have been entered on the medical system and then distributed to the billing system. Shirley, being an employee of the finance department, cannot delete numbers from the medical system. Had this number ever been on the medical system it would have still been there on the day I asked Kathy to look. This number had never been entered and Shirley was lying when she claimed that it had been.

406. Following this, Jenny magically has things on her mind that I have discussed with Kathy. I tell Jenny that it's strange that I discuss things with my doctor and then Jenny talks about it. I become suspicious as to how Jenny has obtained my health information. I then contact Atrium Health Corporate privacy, who sees no unauthorized access between June and August 2019.

407. At my next appointment with Kathy, I ask to see my clinical visit notes. I look and don't see anything related to the things Jenny had on her mind. I then continue through the routine questions and line items of the appointment.

408. During this appointment, which was not very long, I notice some things about Kathy. As I speak about the healthcare fraud involving Shirley and Wells Fargo, Kathy has no reaction. She doesn't react with shock. She doesn't react with confusion. She doesn't react with anything. She has a calm and unaffected demeanor when I speak about this. She has obviously accepted this reality. It is not shocking or controversial to her. She also, strangely, doesn't ask why it is that I want to see my clinical visit notes. She doesn't ask why, I believe, because she already knows why. She knows that I am suspicious because Jenny has told her.

409. Following this appointment, as I realize my hospital is involved in committing crimes against me, I have more profound traumatic stress. I am at this point in a situation where I am surrounded. This is particularly troubling, given that my hospital (and anyone on my hospital's employees' cell phones as a contact, through my hospital) has the de facto ability to imprison me.

410. They can do this through the civil commitment process, where doctors' and clinicians' word and opinions are held above that of "mentally ill" patients. The magistrates will always trust the professionals' judgement. The same people for whom I have evidence of criminal behavior, and who are facing years in prison if caught, have the ability to imprison me at any time they wish.

411. It is also extremely troubling that at this time, when Kathy blatantly violates my rights and the law, I am already showing signs of acute traumatic stress. This is the context in which she chooses to wantonly violate my rights, and my privacy, which I valued above all else.

412. What is also troubling is that my hospital has apparently been committing HIPAA violations since at least May of 2019. One thing I began to sense between May and August 2019 is that my mother has been talking to Jenny. This is the last thing I wanted. It was what I feared. It was this reason that I wanted those two numbers gone when I was in the inpatient unit. I knew that my mother, at the very least, would be trying to get in touch with Jenny.

413. The situation with my mother and I is complicated. My mother, for one, has an unhealthy level of concern for me. For two, she is very concerned with the abuse that I suffered as a child; she is especially concerned about the possibility that I tell others about it. It reflects very poorly on my family, and, out of protecting their image, she denies that some of it occurred. This creates a drive to get in my life and exert some control over it.

414. She handles this situation the same way at all times. She gets in contact with people in my life. She talks to them without me knowing. She takes the role of an insider. She will deny all day long that she speaks with these people. There has been a consistent pattern to all of this for my entire life.

415. My mother is naïve and seems to think that these others in my life share her excessive worry and concern for me; they do not. They are instead concerned with other things, like killing me. They are instead concerned with the criminal punishment liability I represent, as they have committed crimes against me. They are instead concerned with an irrationality driven campaign to run me into the ground.

416. I knew that this would be what happens the second my mother gets the name and number of anyone in Charlotte. I had protected against this the entire time I was in Charlotte. I didn't need her trying to run my life and creating more liabilities for me by contacting people here. I succeeded in keeping her out of my life here for over 7 and ½ years, without fail. *It all went astray immediately, when I was forced to provide my mother's number and Jenny's number to Atrium Health, my healthcare provider.

417. Both my mother and my sister have given subtle signs that they are communicating with Jenny. Both deny it, over and over. They denied it then, and they deny it now. They have been speaking with her, and I have evidence. I saw the first piece of direct evidence when my mother visited my apartment several months ago. My mother had been eager to show me her phone records. She was going to prove that she didn't call Jenny.

418. I had long before this time deduced that Jenny and others involved in these crimes and unlawful behaviors have been using Facebook. They are using Facebook to perpetrate their law violations and other secretive communications. This is presumably based on the belief that it will be harder, or impossible, for others to track their criminal behavior if they use this medium.

419. It seemed clear to me that my mother's motivated interest in my seeing her phone records was a distraction. When she gets to my apartment, I do not look at the numbers she has dialed; I look in her Safari website data. What do I find? I find cached Facebook data from the domain facebook.net.

420. My mother is very technically illiterate. She cannot send an email or fill out an online job application. When she tries to send an email, it is with me on the phone. I will sometimes have to coach her for literally up to 6 or 8 hours. I have to try to find out what she's doing and where she's at. I then try to tell her in the simplest terms what to do. It is very tedious.

421. My mother has no use for Facebook. She would not have gone to this app on her own. Her explanation for the Facebook data on her phone was that "I go to this Tomorrow's World website. They put cookies on your phone." Tomorrow's World doesn't dump cached data from the domain facebook.net on your phone. When I pressed her on this, she became hostile and said, with emphasis, "I'm not on Facebook."

422. My mother almost never gets hostile, so when she does, you know something funny is going on. She was defending against this reality. This all makes my mother sound deceptive; and she is, at times. She is not so in a despicable way, however. It is largely, I think, a consequence of her childhood. My mother was raised in a dysfunctional and abusive family.

423. When one is a child in an abusive family, he or she doesn't devote all of childhood to development as the focus of childhood should be. It is rather that part or potentially even all of the focus has to be diverted into another task: survival. It is a matter of fact that as a child in a world where everyone is bigger than you, everything is on the table. If it helps you survive, deception certainly is on the table, and this will become a tool in your toolbox. My mother is tackling life with that same toolbox she started out with in her childhood.

424. My mother didn't have the benefit of an outpatient psychologist for 16 years, as I did, beginning when I was 13 years old. She had a child at barely age 19, born to her and to a man who, I am sorry to say, was a liability. Her responsibilities and her life lived against the wall have robbed her of time and opportunity for any further development.

425. Everything my mother does is out of desperation. She is extremely naïve. She is a pushover to the extreme. One cannot but have mercy on her. One may feel less inclined to have mercy on the people at Atrium Health. Your information would be safer on a billboard at a racetrack than it is in the computer systems and in the psyches of the employees at this place.

426. In the next visit with Kathy, after I had figured out that Kathy and my hospital were up to no good, Kathy's demeanor had changed. The contempt was gone. It was a very enthusiastic "how are you?" at the beginning. Then followed a very cooperative and seemingly compassion driven interaction. This was, I feel certain, her wanting to be my friend for her benefit; I believe this was the impetus for this behavior.

427. Through her ongoing illegal contact with Jenny and others, Kathy has figured out that I am not so worthy of contempt. She has learned, as Jenny had, that almost nothing they do gets by me. She has learned that what does get by me doesn't get by me for long. She knows that I know she's up to no good.

428. In this same visit, I also notice that Kathy is very wary of going near the topic of my hospital's crimes. At one point I said "my mother is talking to Jenny and I'm sure this hospital is the one who gave her the number." In reaction to this, Kathy is dead quiet. She reacts as if she is scared to engage in any discussion about this topic. It is a heightened awareness of my nailing every sign of deception or culpability that they put up that drives this reaction; this is my strong belief.

429. Then there is yet another set of oddities. In recent months, I have obtained screenshots of my younger sister sending my mother the number to my hospital. My sister does this by using google to search for the phrase “kathleen psychiatry charlotte nc”, and sending a screenshot of the results to my mother. How on earth does my sister know that my doctor’s name is Kathleen, when I have never told her or anyone else in my family? Why does my mother send my sister texts that read “I told Clint’s doctors that I think they need to put him on the same medicine they had him on a few years ago”? Why does she send texts that say this when I’ve never given her any of my doctors’ numbers? Why does she send texts that say this when I have deauthorized Atrium’s speaking to her more times that I can count?

X. September of 2019 to the Present Day

430. I had to handle this situation where I am a prisoner at will of my hospital, Wells Fargo, and anyone else with an employee of my hospital on their contacts list. To that end, in August, 2019, I reached out to my old psychologist from the mountains, John Monguillot. John is extremely smart and capable. He is also, crucially, not a member of this Charlotte-Mecklenburg cabal of criminals, formerly known as my coworkers, the healthcare system, and the police.

431. I needed a few things from John, all of which I eventually got. The main thing was that I needed him to intervene in the civil commitment process. Atrium’s medical staff cannot be evaluating me. They are far from an impartial and unbiased. They are facing prison time. I cannot have this tactic of kidnapping under the guise of civil commitment used again. The prospect of this happening is terrifying. The other thing I needed from him was medical treatment.

432. Then things take another downturn when, in September, 2019, Discover Bank sues me. Then around the beginning of November 2019, Discover records a default judgement on the local county clerk's records. Part of the remedies available to them to enforce their judgement is to attach their judgment to my assets and sell them. In December, 2019, they pursue just this. At this point, I am in a very bad situation.

433. Discover Banks (now discovered to be unlawful) attempt to sell my assets would not have been a problem had I not been disabled with traumatic stress. My state, North Carolina, allows a debtor to exempt property. The allowed exemptions include one vehicle + $12,500 personal and business property + health aids. In my case, the effect of this is that 100% of everything I own is exempt.

434. There is one hurdle, however. If my property is to be exempted, I have 20 days from the date Discover Bank pursues attachment to fill out paperwork that lists my exempt property. I will list my exempted assets and their value. If I do not send in the paperwork by the due date, everything I own is eligible for sale (and will be sold, I am certain, at this time). By this time, my traumatic stress symptoms are through the roof. I am far past the point that I can fill out paperwork. I am in such acute distress that I cannot concentrate enough to complete any paperwork.

435. At the point in time where Discover Bank begins to pursue attachment, I have a very strong intuition that there is some process for disabled people to halt Discover Bank's litigation process in my county. I am also certain, and the same point in time, that without a doubt I am in the throes of severe post-traumatic stress disorder.

This means I should be able to get this process halted. The problem with this is that I have diagnosed myself. I have not been diagnosed by a professional, and I cannot go to anyone at Atrium to get diagnosed.

436. Atrium would love nothing more than to use the legitimate distress I am under as an excuse to say I need inpatient care. They could then, once I am behind their walls, make me say that my belief that they have engaged in obvious criminal behavior is false. They could have this statement documented on their records. They can have me declared incompetent, in effect. In short, they have an array of options, with which they can use to further victimize me for their benefit.

437. John has many responsibilities. He has a busy career as a psychologist for the N.C. Department of Corrections. He is still able to help. He provides me a letter to hand to any officer processing any civil commitment and also to any medical facility. The function of the letter is to direct the evaluation to him.

438. John is also able to conduct multiple diagnostic interviews, after which he issues a diagnosis of post-traumatic stress disorder, chronic. The timing, unfortunately, was too short for me to seek relief from Discover Bank's actions through the local court system.

439. I filed an emergency petition for Chapter 7 Bankruptcy on January 15th, 2020. This was 14 minutes before the clerk's office closed, on the day that the exemption paperwork related to Discover Bank's fraudulent attachment process had to be turned in. I averted a sale of everything I own by 14 minutes. I did so in a state of being a broken mess of a human being. I was disheveled and in a state of complete panic.

440. I have continued to see Kathy for medication refills, and she is, at this point, a full-on coconspirator with Wells Fargo. In our appointments, she asks questions which are designed for Wells Fargo's benefit and which have nothing to do with my medical care. She has asked me "what is the charge?" related to what I aim to sue Wells Fargo for. She has asked "what is the trustee's name?" in relation to my bankruptcy case. Why would, one might ask, my nurse practitioner ask for the name of my bankruptcy trustee?

441. I had told Jenny and others about a not entirely well-known feature of the bankruptcy process. The trustee, who is responsible for my estate, can liquidate any and all nonexempt assets. This includes obvious assets, such as collectibles, home furnishings, or other personal or business property in excess of the $12,500 I can exempt. My estate also includes less tangible personal assets, like accrued causes for civil litigation. The trustee can litigate Wells Fargo and others who have harmed me and use the non-exempt portion of the proceeds to pay my creditors. I told Jenny of this threat, and I hinted it to others.

442. My purpose for telling Jenny this was to try to prod Jenny into coming clean. I alert her of this threat in hopes she will tell the truth and join my side. I don't want any painful consequences for her.

443. This tactic ends up being no help to me, but it apparently puts Wells Fargo on point to buy yet another soul. They appear to be asking Kathy to get this info. What other reason would she possibly have to ask for this?

444. I have often come to my visits in a state of extreme distress. This distress is either absent or discounted in her notes for my clinical visits. This is obviously for the benefit of Wells Fargo. I have zero doubt that all my records and everything I tell Kathy and Atrium are being shared with Wells Fargo.

445. Atrium Health knows exactly what Kathy and everyone else is up to. Everyone at the behavioral health center knows very well what has happened. Everyone at Atrium's corporate privacy office knows what number not to answer.

446. Atrium, and in particular Kathy, appear to have fallen into a behavior pattern that is common among people who are facing stiff consequences. Facing a loss, they are compounding their problems by engaging in more extreme risk taking. Their risk taking is in the form of additional criminal and civilly unlawful behavior.

447. In my desperation, there was one more potentially life altering step that I took. I needed someone to vet the evidence I had compiled. I needed someone with more credibility than this increasingly disheveled man I have become.

448. I have valued my privacy above all else. I hate the thought of being known to the masses in any way. I especially hate the masses knowing the very hard to explain and incredibly painful details of my life.

449. I have realized, however, that I have nothing to lose in becoming known to the masses. It is closer to reality to say that I have no choice. The stewards of my private information behave like out of control demons.

450. In a world where over 80% of all human communication is gossip, once your information gets out there to enough people it will be wherever you go. Any hope you have for privacy is over at some point in this process.

451. My choices are thus to either let the entire world become stigmatizing hell, one city at a time, or to get it over with fast. Both options feel like a nightmare. I do not have a third option, unfortunately.

452. There is an entity out there with the ability to reason and the other capabilities needed to understand my evidence. They have exposed crimes before, and they have done so on their own dime. This entity, crucially, for sure is not and for sure will not be bought by Wells Fargo. I reach out to them.

453. The entity in question is known as The Los Angeles Times. They are a very big megaphone. They have infinitely more character and infinitely more objectivity, it seems, than the increasing number of smaller megaphones that are out there sharing my private information.

454. It was not a tough decision; it was made out of pure rationality. It was made knowing that the criminal carelessness of my healthcare provider and the wanton, demonic behavior of my former employer have robbed me, forever, of any hope of privacy.

455. I had nothing to lose and I stood to gain the credibility I needed. I have been speaking with The L.A. Times and sending its encrypted tip line bits of my long, complicated story for nearly a year at this point. They are in possession of most of the evidence I have accumulated during my investigation. Through this media outlet, though it will be a close call, I may have beaten my employer and my healthcare provider to the punch, in the endeavor to spread the unbearably painful and very private details of my life to the entire world.

X. Final Thoughts

XI.(a) Final Thoughts on Atrium Health

456. My relationship with Atrium started when I came to their behavioral health center in 2011, and it worked out for both of us for a long time. I had moved to Charlotte and had no job when I found them online. I later had a job working at Bank of America under a temp agency. Following that, I had a very good paying job working at Wells Fargo. During the time I was at Wells Fargo, I had very good insurance. I had insurance that paid the bills, for Atrium.

457. After I walked out on Wells Fargo, I became part of what Atrium so often refers to as its “vulnerable populations”. I had lost my insurance, and I had little income. At the time I was not part of any Medicaid or disability program.

458. To the end of serving these vulnerable populations, Atrium has received, in the past 5 years, well over $1 billion in public funds through Medicaid GAP funding. This is in addition to the implicit funds received through reduced rate government bonds. They have also taken in billions of dollars of government-funded gross revenue during this same time period.

459. With these funds Atrium has generated huge, positive operating cash flows to put to use. The ever-expanding healthcare corporation has produced such cash flows for each year it has received this funding. Atrium has deployed these dollars by gobbling up real estate in my area and others.

460. Atrium’s various business units have clearly not deployed any significant portion of these funds to protecting the rights of their vulnerable populations. After all I have witnessed and described here, you cannot tell me that the employees of Atrium’s behavioral health units have had as much as one single meeting about the importance of patient privacy. It is possible they have had one or more since they accrued some dozens of felonies related to me. If so, this unfortunately came too late.

461. This is a great way to beef up Atrium's cash flows and Atrium's balance sheet. If all you have is some software and one team invested in patient privacy, the remaining $0 expense keeps your capital expenditures budget fat. This has some very real consequences.

462. The consequences of all of this have to be put in the context of economics. There is not an unlimited amount of real estate in my county. There is not an unlimited amount of government funds, funded by taxpayers like me.

463. Atrium has gobbled up a lion's share of all of this. The onus is on Atrium to act out the purpose for which its nonprofit status is given, or to turn its corrupt employees in and then to surrender what it has acquired with public funds to someone else. Plenty of potential "someone else's" are not in business, due to the funds and real estate getting gobbled up by Atrium.

464. There are a lot of nice people at Atrium, and it always seemed to have so much going for it. I've always liked the people at the pharmacy. The majority of the inpatient staff at that unit (save their disregarding my privacy) knocked the ball out of the park. Atrium gives the appearance, at times, as having been corrupted out of nowhere by an obviously corrupt entity to be addressed later in this complaint.

465. Sadly to me, at the present moment, I shy from making the case that Atrium's staff and management have been corrupted by anyone other than themselves. I have offered them to speak. I offered to talk to their media department. I wanted them to turn on and fight this corrupt bank, and in return I planned to do what I could to help save their image. I am, sadly, left to characterize them as follows: I, after having lived a nightmare of being stigmatized for years, have found myself in the “care” of a hospital that, overall, takes a lesser view of me, just like so many of the people outside of its facilities.

466. Rather than having an excess of compassion, the staff members at Atrium are really pumped up by the spot I am in. They are really pumped up by the fact that I am broke. They are really pumped up by my perceived lack of credibility in a courtroom. This all pumps them up about what they can get away with. They think they can get away with it all, so they act like the law doesn’t exist, and they act in their own interests. Their vulnerable populations appear to be a career, a load of government funds, and a potential bonus for staff if a friend like Wells Fargo needs a favor.

467. Atrium, in its financial statements, mentions its “vulnerable populations”, over and over. I’m sorry to say that this appears to be nothing but a marketing gimmick. It gives Atrium a good image, an image it can use to continue to hoard funds that others may be competing for.

468. The vulnerable populations Atrium provides services for appear to have one very serious vulnerability that isn’t mentioned in Atrium’s financials; that being that they are prisoners at will of anyone in the extended social networks of the numerous pumped up, out of control healthcare criminals that work for Atrium Health. The people in this city deserve a list of these people. That way they can be prepared for the day that they are teleported to Atrium’s inpatient unit to be treated kindly, served peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, and then leave saddled with a $7,000 bill. Maybe Medicaid will foot the bill for their kidnapping too, as it ultimately did mine.

469. Atrium will offer some defenses; I am sure. I will preempt some of the expected defenses, with responses, in paragraphs that will follow. For so long, I wanted to defend this hospital, but I cannot; the ongoing criminal behavior of its employees gives not one reason to.

470. I offered the people that work and manage Atrium the opportunity to turn against this bank, and to help me. I lavished them with praise that they didn't deserve, even after they had already violated my rights. They are only concerned with themselves. They have even chastised me and said they will not deal with the less comfortable aspects of my PTSD, which I developed over theirs and Wells Fargo's abuse.

471. One defense that I will offer on their behalf is that they have helped me tremendously. Some of my medications are extremely expensive. I get them at huge discount, filled by the kind people at their pharmacy. I have done so for years, even when I had good paying jobs (insurance doesn't get you far with some of my medications).

472. The next expected defense will be how I kept mostly silent, only referring to this privacy invasion by Wells Fargo as "emotionally painful things I am dealing with". This situation caught the hospital off guard, they are likely to say. I would like to know how my telling them the full details of what happened with Wells Fargo would have helped, given the facts I have laid out.

473. If at any time I told them, what would be different? Would Wells Fargo's cash account be empty? Would Wells Fargo be less vicious in perpetrating crimes? Would these medical professionals run wild be any less pumped up about what they can get away with? Will they have less desire for a healthy bonus from a friend like Wells Fargo? This clearly will never work out.

474. The only thing that had a chance of helping in any case, in my opinion, is for this hospital to have had controls that are enforced. This would need to be added to a culture where patient rights and privacy are taken seriously. By this, I mean taken seriously as reflected in Atrium's actions, not as reflected in Atrium's marketing materials.

475. The final defense that I anticipate is that I "brought them all this trouble." This is my intuition based on my feel for human psychology. This is the saddest and also the most ridiculous excuse conceivable, but I do see it coming.

476. When I am kidnapped, in a scam perpetrated by your hospital and Wells Fargo, and I then arrive at the door to your hospital in handcuffs, I have to tell you that I did not bring you anything. It is a very comfortable place for Atrium to be in, to put the blame on me by saying that I "brought them all of this trouble." What is less comfortable is the following, much more reasoned and evidence-based conclusion: Wells Fargo brought them all of this trouble.

477. The statement "Wells Fargo brought us all this trouble" is far less convenient to the staff at Atrium. They can offload the blame to Wells Fargo, but then they are left to fight this $2 trillion behemoth. That's a tough battle to win. I sometimes feel as if I am the only one on earth who will take on that challenge.

478. Atrium seems to not like even the thought of a battle with Wells Fargo, and blaming Wells Fargo for what has occurred will create all sorts of unpleasant side effects. Who will be their new counterparty to interest rate swaps, as Wells Fargo currently is? Who will underwrite and finance Atrium's bond debt once Atrium boots its current financier, Wells Fargo? It's far easier to take advantage of my relative powerlessness and to beat the hell out of me.

479. Faced with such an inconvenient reality, there is an all too human tendency to depart from reality and make absurd statements like "our kidnapping victim brought us all this trouble. The freely chosen behavior of our corrupt and out of control healthcare professionals is his fault."

480. That last sentence has a hint at who is to blame. In fact, it, just maybe, has more than a hint; it may have the answer. Where is the number one source to go to if one is looking for primary party to blame for the consequences of one's behavior? This absurd sounding question has an obvious answer. Atrium Health has chosen to operate in a certain way. The way Atrium has operated worked out great for Atrium and its management for a very long time. It has come back to bite them, possibly, in my case.

481. The nice thing, from a financial perspective, about serving "vulnerable populations" is that by definition those populations are mostly powerless. Powerless people in many cases do not know their rights. In most cases they lack any means to enforce their rights.

482. This all means that there is no probable consequence for not taking the rights of vulnerable people seriously. By seriously, I mean seriously enough to dump some of their $600 million operating cash flow, reported on their fiscal year end 2018 audited financial statements, into protecting the rights of these vulnerable populations. Keeping all this cash works, for Atrium.

483. In me, they have found a possible outlier that alters any projected financial outcome of this method of operating. That they had no substantial complaints filed from members of their “vulnerable populations” until I came along, this is not evidence that I caused them problems; it much more likely the case that I am the first from within these populations to have the technical know-how and ability to go home and conduct a criminal investigation on my healthcare provider, and report them to the F.B.I. I cannot believe these words, as I am typing them.

XI.(b) Final Thoughts on the Charlotte Mecklenburg Police

484. There is little to say here. I have lived in this city for going on 9 years. The interactions I have had with the Charlotte Mecklenburg Police, save the one that is included in the subject matter of this complaint, lead me to believe they are very ethical and hardworking people. The officer who kidnapped me has participated in some terrible wrongdoing. If, however, he is my friend Jenny’s neighbor, as I expect he is, I had long considered him a friend. This was without him even knowing who I was. Jenny often asked her “police officer neighbor” for advice about people who were causing her trouble. Her asking for advice was often done at my implied or explicit direction. I liked it very much that someone with a gun lived next door. Sadly, all the good he has done for others and that he treats others fairly does me no good.

XI.(c) Final Thoughts on Mobile Crisis

485. These counselors have participated in a high-risk criminal transaction, with a correspondingly high reward. I have some terrible feelings towards these people.

They have participated in the destruction of my life. As to my opinion, I tend to want them to be punished very harshly. It would seem to me that the cost of engaging in these transactions has to be enforced.

486. You can't have a free for all, with $100s of thousands being paid, and a slap on the wrist punishment. That just causes the same behavior to run wild in society. I hedge my bets, however, based on the fact that this girl is Jenny's friend.

487. Wells Fargo has, typical of its despicable behavior, used Jenny and her social network to commit crimes. They have done her massive harm. It has been hell on this girl, and I make no bones about the fact that I have been hell to deal with during this downward spiral. I don't like the idea of compounding this poor girl's trauma.

XI.(d) Final Thoughts on Wells Fargo

488. Wells Fargo is the most unbelievably corrupt company I have ever seen in my life. This glazy-eyed megabank offers a composite picture of everything not to be, if you are a company. If you listen to the words its executives speak, Wells Fargo seems to be fond of "doing the right thing", to give one variation of a buzz phrase that is repeated over and over. They forgot the other half of that sentence, which reads: "...for Wells Fargo". It's about doing the right thing for Wells Fargo. It's all about them. This is the bottom line. I have lived the reality of who this bank is; I am saturated in it. That's it, in one sentence. They act in their interests, period, not concerned with what is right, but instead concerned with what they can get away with.

489. "their interests", from the immediately preceding sentence, has to be defined. When they act in this their interest, what are the interests and who is taking the actions? One might be tempted to say that it is the shareholder's interest, reflected in the numbers listed on Wells Fargo's financial statements. Although this is indeed Wells Fargo's legal mandate, I shy from making that statement. The rampant crime this bank engages in and its boundless ambition to get away with the next thing leaves Wells Fargo's shareholders hurting.

490. "their interests" refers to the interests of the incompetent, shortsighted cabal of criminals that this bank seems to inevitably attract for or create out of the people who manage it and the people who pull the levers of its moral behavior. It's about them and their desire to do as they please, unconstrained by concerns about what is right and what is wrong.

491. In my case, I feel as if I am dealing with a singular entity with nightmarish qualities. This entity I am dealing with is immoral to the extreme. It is as if I am contending with a demon. This demon is most likely composed of a collection of people who are extremely privileged and also extremely despicable.

492. This demon has no decency. It seems to have no conscience. It has no bravery. It seems to be composed, solely, of a self-preservation instinct combined with wanton criminal ambition.

493. This demon's complete lack of decency is apparent in its actions and its motives. Wells Fargo has plotted to use my health condition as a weapon against me. Wells Fargo has cold-bloodedly hijacked the social infrastructure of my city. Wells Fargo has diverted funds intended for the most vulnerable populations within my city to cover up Wells Fargo's crimes. Wells Fargo has used hospital facilities intended for the vulnerable populations of my city as if they are toys which belong to Wells Fargo.

Wells Fargo has done this while hiding, like a coward, behind a pitiful little woman who was my best friend.

XI.(e) Final Thoughts on Me

494. My life has been destroyed. My soul has been murdered by this bank and by those whom they have colluded and conspired with. I have been treated as a man with no dignity. I have lived a nightmare. I have lost what I valued most, my privacy, and it will never be regained. It is irreversible.

495. After killing myself for years to be the best person I can be, I have found myself in the company of people who do not share this ambition. I have found myself pulverized by people who see life in terms of their own interests and what they can get away with. Just as I killed myself to be the best person I could be in life, I killed myself to be the best employee I could be for Wells Fargo. They repay me by destroying my life, and then declaring war on me when I ask to be told the truth and to have a simple conversation.

496. It will never be ok for me. Please do not suggest that it will be. It only hurts further when people make light of or don't understand the gravity of the destruction I have been dealt. I cannot put into words the pain I feel and the damage I have been caused. There is no amount of anything that I wouldn't give to take this all back. My life, now, is mostly a question of how much I will suffer and for how many more days.

497. What do I want? I want this bank, and also those it has conspired with and corrupted, prosecuted. I am turning them over to the criminal authorities and I want them civilly pursued.

498. I want them pursued civilly because I want them to pay me. I want them to pay me so that I can stop listening to my mother cry when I ask her for money because I am disabled and cannot make any. She has none and her credit is running out. Further, I want them to pay me so that I can defend myself. I do not trust anyone but me to take on this bank when they do it again.

499. They will be terrorizing me again. No one will never convince me that it is over. For sure, they will never convince me that it is over. If they promise, they will break their promise; their word is worth nothing. I need to be able to defend myself and to be in a position to inhibit their wanton criminal ambition.

500. This is so that I don't have to sit here and be pulverized by them and an entire city they corrupt, all while I am disabled and am about to lose everything that I own. I cannot live like this anymore. I cannot live like anything as I had a chance of before they destroyed me, but I especially cannot live like this.

I have compiled a partial list of crimes and civil law violations that I believe may have occurred. Filing this complaint has recently become a more urgent matter, and this is the best I can do at the moment. I intended to make a complete list before submitting my complaint. Note that I am fully aware that criminal law enforcement authorities have no interest in civil matters. Civil matters are still included, if only for the sake of completeness.

In both lists, "Wells Fargo" refers to the parties related to the economic entity that does business as Wells Fargo and who have also committed unlawful acts described in the complaint. All parties are not known to me and I am not certain of who (or what entity or entities) would ultimately be legally accountable for their actions.

I believe the following criminal law violations are likely to have occurred:

- a) Violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1347 by Atrium Health, to the extent Atrium intended to file a fraudulent Medicaid application to cover its tracks.
- b) Violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1349 by Wells Fargo, who conspired to obtain my healthcare records through the means stated above. This offense would also include Atrium Health as a coconspirator.
- c) Potential violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1956 by Allie Roe, to the extent she has deployed funds received for her criminal behavior or has otherwise conspired to conceal the nature of the proceeds obtained for her unlawful behavior in a manner that meets the elements of 18 U.S.C. § 1956(a)(1)
- d) Potential violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1956 by Wells Fargo to the extent that they have cooperated or conspired in the preceding offense.
- e) Violation of N.C. Gen. Stat. § 14-39 by Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police officer Christopher D'Avanzo. D'Avanzo, not being in the possession of the civil commitment petition, did not have any legal right to do any of the following:
 1. Enter my residence, against my consent
 2. Handcuff me, against my consent
 3. Transport me to Atrium's inpatient unit, against my consent

In a deliberate violation of my constitutional right to due process of law, D'Avanzo committed each action in this numbered list. These were engaged in as part of a conspiracy to commit healthcare fraud and as a means to facilitate the commission of healthcare fraud.

This item is accompanied by a conspiracy to commit a felony involving the following:

- Atrium Health
- Allie Roe
- Cheryl Horton
- Ginger Marsh

- Christopher D'Avanzo
- Jennifer Cox
- Wells Fargo

It is also accompanied by a criminal false imprisonment involving D'Avanzo and a separate criminal false imprisonment involving Atrium Health.

f) Violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1621 involving the following:

- Allie Roe
- Jennifer Cox

This item is accompanied by a conspiracy to commit a felony, potentially involving Wells Fargo, Atrium Health, and Christopher D'Avanzo in addition to Allie Roe and Jennifer Cox

g) Ongoing violations of the HIPAA Act involving Atrium Health

f) Unlawful conspiracy to obtain healthcare records involving Wells Fargo.

In addition, I believe the following civil law violations may have occurred:

(a) The original intrusion upon seclusion, perpetrated in roughly the first week of December 2017 and also the accompanying ADA of 1990 violation.

(b) Personal injury for the emotional distress caused by Wells Fargo's disparate treatment of me

(c) Negligent hiring, perpetrated by Wells Fargo

(d) Constructive fraud perpetrated by Mobile Crisis counselors Allie Roe, Cheryl Horton, and Ginger Marsh

(e) Civil constructive fraud perpetrated by Atrium Health, for each instance in which Atrium Health has used my personal health information or betrayed its responsibilities to me for Atrium or its employees' gain

(f) Repeated civil torts of negligence related to HIPAA violations.

(g) A civil trespass perpetrated by the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police by entering my apartment against my consent, having no legal right to do so.

(h) A civil battery perpetrated by the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police in the act placing me in handcuffs

(i) A civil offense of false imprisonment perpetrated by the Charlotte-Mecklenburg police by placing me in handcuffs

- (j) A civil tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress perpetrated by the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police.
- (k) A civil false imprisonment, perpetrated by Atrium Health, by keeping me in its inpatient unit on 501 Billingsley road against my consent. Atrium did this having full knowledge that there was no legal basis to do so and that I was delivered to their unit by means of kidnapping
- (l) A civil conspiracy, including and perpetrated by all of the following for their participation in the civil conspiracy to have me kidnapped and falsely imprisoned by the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police and then subsequently falsely imprisoned at the inpatient unit on Billingsley road:
- Wells Fargo
 - The Charlotte Mecklenburg Police
 - Mobile Crisis
 - Atrium health
 - Jennifer Cox
- (m) A civil tort of abuse of process perpetrated by each of the parties listed in (l), for their using the State of N.C.'s civil commitment process to avoid consequences for or otherwise cover up criminal and/or civil wrongdoing, or alternatively, for personal gain
- (n) Independent acts of civil intrusion upon seclusion in each and every case where Wells Fargo has attempted to obtain my personal information through any means. This includes through asking my friend Jenny or inducing her to obtain information to be delivered to them

I. FINDINGS

The Court finds from the petition in the above matter that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the facts alleged in the petition are true and that the respondent is probably:

(Check all that apply)

- ☒ 1. mentally ill and dangerous to self or others or mentally ill and in need of treatment in order to prevent further disability or deterioration that would predictably result in dangerousness.
☐ In addition to being mentally ill, the respondent probably is also mentally retarded. (If this finding is made, see G.S. 122C-261(b) and (d) for special instructions.)
☐ 2. a substance abuser and dangerous to self or others.

II. CUSTODY ORDER

TO ANY LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER:

The Court ORDERS you to take the above named respondent into custody WITHIN 24 HOURS AFTER THIS ORDER IS SIGNED and take the respondent for examination by a person authorized by law to conduct the examination. (A COPY OF THE EXAMINER'S FINDINGS SHALL BE TRANSMITTED TO THE CLERK OF SUPERIOR COURT IMMEDIATELY.)

- ➔ IF the examiner finds that the respondent IS NOT a proper subject for involuntary commitment, then you shall take the respondent home or to a consenting person's home in the originating county and release him/her.
- ➔ IF the examiner finds that the respondent IS mentally ill and a proper subject for outpatient commitment, then you shall take the respondent home or to a consenting person's home in the originating county and release him/her.
- ➔ IF the examiner finds that the respondent IS mentally ill and a proper subject for inpatient commitment, then you shall transport the respondent to a 24-hour facility designated by the State for the custody and treatment of involuntary clients and present the respondent for custody, examination and treatment pending a district court hearing.
- ➔ IF the examiner finds that the respondent IS a substance abuser and subject to involuntary commitment, the examiner must recommend whether the respondent be taken to a 24-hour facility or released, and then you shall either release him/her or transport the respondent to a 24-hour facility designated by the State for the custody and treatment of involuntary clients and present the respondent for custody, examination and treatment pending a district court hearing.

The following findings and recommendations are made based on this examination. For telemedicine evaluations only: ☐ I certify to a reasonable degree of medical certainty that the results of the examination via telemedicine were the same as if I had been personally present with the respondent OR ☐ The respondent needs to be taken to a facility for face to face evaluation. (*Statutory Definitions are on reverse side)

SECTION I - CRITERIA FOR COMMITMENT

- Inpatient. It is my opinion that the respondent is:
- 1st Exam - Physician or Psychologist) ☐ mentally ill; ☐ dangerous to self; ☐ dangerous to others 2nd Exam - Physician only) ☐ in addition to being mentally ill is also mentally retarded
☐ none of the above
- Outpatient. It is my opinion that:
- (Physician or Psychologist) ☐ the respondent is mentally ill
☐ the respondent is capable of surviving safely in the community with available supervision
☐ based upon the respondent's treatment history, the respondent is in need of treatment in order to prevent further disability or deterioration which would predictably result in dangerousness as defined by G.S. 122C-3 (11*)
☐ the respondent's current mental status or the nature of his illness limits or negates his/her ability to make an informed decision to seek treatment voluntarily or comply with recommended treatment
☐ none of above

COPY

- Substance Abuse. It is my opinion that the respondent is:
- (1st Exam - Physician or Psychologist; 2nd Exam - If 1st exam done by Physician, 2nd exam may be done by Qual. Prof.) ☐ a substance abuser ☐ dangerous to himself or others
☐ none of the above

SECTION II - DESCRIPTION OF FINDINGS

Clear description of findings (findings for each criterion checked above in Section I must be described):

No acute suicidal, homicidal or assaultive ideation.
No psychotic symptoms.
Willing to comply with voluntary services.
No longer meet criteria for involuntary commitment.

STATUTORY DEFINITIONS

"Dangerous to self". Within the relevant past: (a) the individual has acted in such a way as to show: (1) that he would be unable without care, supervision, and the continued assistance of others not otherwise available, to exercise self-control, judgment, and discretion in the conduct of his daily responsibilities and social relations or to satisfy his need for nourishment, personal or medical care, shelter, or self-protection and safety; and (2) that there is a reasonable probability of his suffering serious physical debilitation within the near future unless adequate treatment is given. A showing of behavior that is grossly irrational, of actions that the individual is unable to control, of behavior that is grossly inappropriate to the situation, or of other evidence of severely impaired insight and judgment shall create a prima facie inference that the individual is unable to care for himself; or (b) the individual has attempted suicide or threatened suicide and that there is a reasonable probability of suicide unless adequate treatment is given; or (c) the individual has mutilated himself or attempted to mutilate himself and that there is a reasonable probability of serious self-mutilation unless adequate treatment is given. NOTE: Previous episodes of dangerousness to self, when applicable, may be considered when determining reasonable probability of physical debilitation, suicide, or self-mutilation.

"Dangerous to others". Within the relevant past, the individual has inflicted or attempted to inflict or threatened to inflict serious bodily harm on another, or has acted in such a way as to create a substantial risk of serious bodily harm to another, or has engaged in extreme destruction of property; and that there is a reasonable probability that this conduct will be repeated. Previous episodes of dangerousness to others, when applicable, may be considered when determining reasonable probability of future dangerous conduct.

"Mental illness": (a) when applied to an adult, an illness which so lessens the capacity of the individual to use self-control, judgment, and discretion in the conduct of his affairs and social relations as to make it necessary or advisable for him to be under treatment, care, supervision, guidance or control; and (b) when applied to a minor, a mental condition, other than mental retardation alone, that so lessens or impairs the youth's capacity to exercise age adequate self-control and judgment in the conduct of his activities and social relationships so that he is in need of treatment.

"Substance abuser". An individual who engages in the pathological use or abuse of alcohol or drugs which produces an impairment in personal, social, or occupational functioning. Substance abuse m

Memo on Atrium Health Healthcare Records

Atrium Health is involved in ongoing, serious criminal behavior. They have been engaged in criminal behavior since April of 2019. As of recent, an Atrium Health provider named Patrick Murray is making notes in my healthcare records that I “think the banking system and the healthcare system are cooperating”, and that I say that “I was kidnapped”, to paraphrase.

I did not and I never have claimed that the banking system and the healthcare system are cooperating. I have claimed that I have been kidnapped and that Atrium Health was involved. An explanation will be provided in the succeeding paragraphs.

I have claimed and do continue to claim that I have been victimized, both civilly and criminally, by numerous entities. I make this claim because it is categorically true. A partial timeline of events is as follows:

November 2013 - I begin to work at Wells Fargo.

November to December of 2017 - during my tenure at Wells Fargo, a former employee named Jennifer Cox “inquires about my past”, at what would be discovered to be the request of Wells Fargo management. Jennifer Cox “inquires about my past” by getting me to give her a link to my Facebook profile and then contacting a woman named Abbey Best. Abbey is presumed to have told Jenny many facts and untruths about me, including that I had been sent to a “mental institution” in the past.

In doing this, Wells Fargo perpetrated a civil intrusion upon seclusion. I was subsequently subject to discriminatory and stigmatizing behavior by my coworkers at Wells Fargo. It is a fact that I have a history of hospitalization for mental health issues.

December 2017 to April 2019 - I beg, plead, and eventually make legal threats, in attempts to get Jennifer Cox (hereafter referred to as “Jenny”) to discuss what had happened. I wanted to be told the truth and to have a conversation. I didn’t initially know that Wells Fargo was behind what had happened.

April 21st, 2019 - In response, Wells Fargo initiates a wave of crime directed at me. This includes abusing the mental health system. They have a fraudulent healthcare record prepared by a local group of crisis counselors. They then have one of these crisis counselors accompany Jenny to the Mecklenburg County Magistrate’s Office. Jenny and the crisis counselor prepare a false pretense, fraudulent civil commitment petition. On this petition, my claim that a workplace privacy violation had occurred was characterized as me believing that “my friends are out to get me.”

April 21st, 2019 – Officer Christopher D’Avanzo of the Charlotte Mecklenburg Police arrives at my door, at roughly 11:03 pm. He enters my residence against my consent. He places me in handcuffs against my consent. He then places me in his patrol car, against my consent, and transports me to Atrium Health Behavioral Health Charlotte. He says that he does this because “someone has called and said that she is worried about me”, and that “we’re going to have to take you to get looked at”, to paraphrase. As the officer is transporting me, he admits that he doesn’t have the civil commitment petition in his possession. Note that I have strong reason to believe that D’Avanzo is Jenny’s neighbor and personal friend.

April 21st, 2019 – I arrive at Atrium Health Behavioral Healthcare Charlotte’s inpatient unit located on 501 Billingsley road, Charlotte N.C. Several minutes after I arrive, D’Avanzo brings the petition to the gentleman at the door. D’Avanzo and the gentleman have an exchange where D’Avanzo tells the gentleman at the door “we will just make them the same. That way we can just say that we put the wrong time.” The gentleman at the door nods and the officer fills in information on the petition.

When I later retrieve the petition from Atrium Health, I discover that both the time taken into custody and the time delivered to the inpatient unit were entered as 11:43pm. This makes obvious the meaning of the officer’s communication with the gentleman at the door. The gentleman at the door very obviously knows that this petition was processed unlawfully, and that in fact this entire process was a kidnapping.

This series of events constituted a kidnapping per the following:

- 1. The civil commitment petition in the officer’s possession is what gives the officer the right to curtail my liberty against my consent. The officer did not have the petition in his possession.
- 2. Further, there is no legal right conveyed by a known to be fraudulent petition. It is a reasonable presumption that D’Avanzo knew that this petition was fraudulent. He appears to have knowingly participated in a series of unlawful events.
- 3. Having no right to do so, the officer placed me in handcuffs, placed me in his patrol car, and transported me 17 miles. He did this in a process of a series of healthcare frauds. In this context, his actions meet the elements of the crime of kidnapping, under North Carolina law.

4. Note that even in the event the officer was not aware of the fraudulent nature of this civil commitment petition, and even in the event that he did not knowingly participate in healthcare fraud, he has still committed a felonious restraint. This is a side note because he has quite obviously participated in the fraud.

This is the reason that I say that Atrium and Wells Fargo cooperated in committing crime (not the banking system and the healthcare system). Wells Fargo is quite obviously behind the healthcare fraud and the kidnapping, and the gentleman at the door at Atrium clearly knew what was happening. The gentleman at the door at Atrium clearly played a role. This is evidenced by his nodding and understanding the meaning of what is said when D'Avanzo says "we will make them the same."
