Hi Meredith,

I have an appointment with you on the 26th. My purposes for seeing you are 1) to get further confirmation of my diagnosis (I am applying for disability benefits); and 2) Talk about setting up a brain scan so that I can get a physical image of my brain injury and/or its effects.

I have some notes I have taken regarding my symptoms. I have severe PTSD. I also have 2 large documents, 1 that gives an account of the events that have caused my traumatic stress brain injury and another that is a printout of a conversation that I had with a former manager. This conversation may be helpful, I think, because it has evidence of bouts of hostility and accompanying emotional pain. I intermittently become hostile with my manager in this conversation.

Should I send to you online or would you prefer I print out these documents and bring to the appointment?
