Settlement offer

To: "Division, Criminal (CRM)" <Criminal.Division@usdoj.gov>

My demeanor towards the people on the other end of this changes. I'm sure you notice this. Part of the reason is that I don't know what's going on or what drives your behavior (the main behaviors I have to figure out are why is this being forwarded to Wells Fargo, why you do not reply, and what is the role of AU girl).

I was able to get about 1.5 hours worth of work done on my website today (the one where I plan to post learning courses). There is a chance that I peek out another 15 minutes before I go to bed. If I had enough money to fund me for several years, I could maybe make enough videos to make a living in the years that follow.

I get angry and feel dejected when I think that you have been prejudiced by my healthcare records. For sure Wells Fargo has them. If they have shown them to you or not is in question. I think you can understand this. I'm sorry for any negative effects my attitude has had on you.

There seems to possibly be a negative construal of me, my behavior, and my motives. That I said some disturbing things 21 years ago doesn't mean anything. I have to engage in gamesmanship and deception to catch Wells Fargo in unlawful behavior, but this is the way that anyone catches people. I tried settling this honestly a million times.

If you are consulting with anyone from the mountains, concerning me, you are for sure getting inaccurate info. I've already said that these people are out to run me into the ground. All of the negative things that these people will say, these just confirm the accuracy of what I have told you. The things they say are not reflections of reality. I will say again that the source of truth is me. I am conveniently left out of the conversation.

My behavior adds up to honesty and to having a very kind heart. That's the accurate take on me. It takes hard work to not see me as kind hearted and honest.

Right now I am terrified of what may happen to my life. I want to settle this in a way that works for me and works for everyone else. What has been done to me is terrible. If I had some money, I wouldn't have to worry about my life collapsing. I could also find a girlfriend. AU girl seemed perfect, and I will miss her if I find another one.

In my estimation, I should get at least $30 million out of this. This is discounted from what I consider a fair figure of $100 million. This is for my suffering, past, present, and future, and also for the lost potential that my life used to have.

Right now, however, I will take whatever they are willing to offer. I will take it even if only $5 million or even if only $1 million. They need to consider that I will need enough money to fuel me for a long time, possibly my entire life. I am severely handicapped. This is on top of my terrible suffering.

Whatever you and they need me to do, I will do it.

I ask that any agreement I sign contain no restrictions on my personal life. By this I mean no restrictions on where I am allowed to move to, who I am allowed to talk to, and things like this.

But in terms of non disclosure agreements, never talking to the media, etc. I will do whatever. I will ultimately do whatever in any context. You may not realize this (speaking to U.S. DOJ), but I am scared of you. This is not because you've ever did anything wrong to me. You overall come across as kind and caring people. It is just that, in the process of trying to live a quiet and nice life, I have found myself potentially in the middle of the global economy, and in the mix with the most powerful people on earth.

I am a very powerless person, and I am aware of all that can be done to me by people that outweigh me a trillion times over. I never, ever, wanted to be in any kind of intense discussion with The United States of America.

In re Wells Fargo, I speak so horribly about them at times. What I can tell you is that my attitude is easy to change. I would not look down on them so much or say such things if I weren't suffering so profoundly. I ask that they do something for me to make things right. There was a time when Wells Fargo and I were great friends. Things were easier then for everyone, and maybe we should go back to that.
