

Leonard Clinton Williams III [REDACTED]@gmail.com>

Jul 12th, 2021, 1:04 PM

I'm sorry

To: "Division, Criminal (CRM)" <Criminal.Division@usdoj.gov>

I'm sorry for the unkind things that I have said. I don't know what's going on and sometimes I think it is something not good. I think that you care about me. I think that all of my talk about you being prejudiced and hearing rumors is incorrect. I need these people to make it right. I am suffering so extremely. I sent Atrium an offer earlier. The LA Times probably has no interest in me and probably never will. If I do get the ball rolling with them, I will do my best to think about you and Wells Fargo.

Wells Fargo has tried to help me, with AU girl and things like this. I have responded by being unfair to them and saying grotesquely horrible things about them. This is wrong. What drives this is that I am never sure that I am getting any help. It could all be a scam. The other much larger driver is that I suffer so unbelievably and they could take much of my suffering away by making it right. This whole time I have been suffering and it is on and off terror.

I say that I don't want them criminally prosecuted if I can get some relief outside of that. I mean it when I say it and I'm also factoring in that it is easier for the other side. It seems like the win-win way to go for everyone.

Wells Fargo's latest concern seems to be that I should take them to court if I want some settlement. They seem to be deferring me to the business as usual process.

I do not mean this in a derisory way at all, but the business as usual process is off the table. That the whole point of how things are being done. The business as usual process, when someone commits a crime spree like this and leaves an open and shut case, is to criminally prosecute the individuals and entities responsible. Once they are in jail and their crime spree is curtailed, the victim can come after a settlement.

What happens next in this case is the whole globe melts and the chances for prosperity for the entire world are likely to almost vanish.

I am mentally ill. Lawyers won't take my case because they don't believe what I say. They would believe it if these people are prosecuted by the authorities. Such a horrible victimization deserves a criminal prosecution. But again this is not an option.

I obviously don't feel comfortable taking WFB to court anyways, due to their ability to rig the process behind the scenes. I don't want to think in these terms. I want to see them in a much better light. Seeing them in a better light is warranted, but because of what I have suffered, I feel totally powerless and I feel like I'm playing a game that I cannot win

The fair price for what has happened to me is the end of the economy as we know it, as well as an enormous sum of money, as well as something like a dozen people or more people going to prison.

In lieu of this, I'm asking that we do things a little differently than the business as usual. Everyone agrees that we cannot do the business as usual. I desperately need help.

I have felt terrible for a while now, over my griping about AU girl not having enough time for me. I am very sorry. I am suffering horribly and I find that I often behave as a rotten human being.

You and Wells Fargo did something wonderful there and I thank both of you from the bottom of my heart. I want you to get full credit for what you have done and I am deeply sorry if I have ever been ungrateful. I am crying as I type this.

I think it is possible, at times, that you have heard that i committed some horrible crime. I promise you that I have not, and every situation that might be construed that way I can explain.

If I am accused of some horrible crime, please hear my side of the story. Send the F.B.I. to my apartment to investigate me. Polygraphs are pseudoscience but I will take one of those (or two or ten). I will give them permission to search everything that I own on an indefinite basis. In the last one, all I ask is that they do not deprive me of my electronics. I live in torment much of the time and my computer, iPad, etc. are my main sources of comfort. I don't want my stuff sent to some lab that I get it back in 6 weeks or 6 months. As I understand it, they should be able to make a system image of any of my electronics and use that image for their search. It would probably take no longer than 2 to 6 hours to make one of my notebook, and I've got some backups of some of my other electronics. The other option is for them to give me a nice computer to use while mine is in the lab. Then they can look at my car, my building in TN, my apartment. I don't know where else there is to look but in all cases I will sign without hesitation.

I will also sign whatever they need to get my records from Verizon and spectrum internet. I'm not sure if I'm subscribed to anything else that would have useful data about me, but if there is they can have it.

Send the best of the best to catalogue every molecule of my existence. All I ask is that my side be given air time and that efforts are made to verify my side, just like there is for everyone else.

In a process of cataloguing my existence, you will not find perfection or anything close. You will see that this man typing this right now has done wrong in his life. But I want you to hear my story and let me show you how honest I am and how hard I tried, and after that, I want to see the bastard who is so cold blooded that he could not look up to the kind hearted man that I have become, and that I have been for so long.

The crucial missing piece for my whole life is that I do not get to respond. That's what I want. Everything about my life is sitting in the National media's messages inbox, waiting to be found. In doing this I am inviting the scrutiny of the entire world. If I can defend my life and the effort I have made in my life to the whole world, I can defend them to you. This should be self-evident.

Thank you again and I am deeply sorry for my volatility and unkind behavior.

--

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams

(980)-