I am just telling you what will happen. I don't mean to be rude or imposing. It is this stress. What will help me is my rent being paid and having money for food and things. The ER is worthless and will tell me I'm fine. I'm also not going because that will be another Bill that I cannot pay. I need my life to not collapse. That is what will make it better. Until then the stress is going to kill me. Going to the er will cost more money and make the stress worse. I know exactly what I need and I need people to do what I ask. Anything else is going to murder me further. I am not guaranteed to make it through even one more night. There is no point in calling atrium or any other hospital. I am dying as a result of this what has happened and I need people to listen to me. Kicking the can to some hospital does nothing but push me further into the grave. Please do something to save my life and please do what I ask. Atrium damn near killed me today and I'm about to die right now.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
