To: "Division, Criminal (CRM)" <Criminal.Division@usdoj.gov>

Here is another audio. You are engaging in compulsive reality denial and you are doing it in a cowardly fashion. Call me to talk to me. Set up a 3rd party to render a medical opinion about my condition. If a 3rd party says I am fine and won't need any help to live a normal life, I will accept that conclusion. But we will never get that far. You are scared of the truth and you are a sad example of a justice department.

Reality: Wells Fargo has demolished me with its criminal massacre of me. I am a demolished, broken, and ruined human being. The onus is on Wells Fargo to fix this situation. The only fix to this situation is for me to be paid so that I can fund all of the demands of life that I cannot meet. I have a severe, chronic case of PTSD resulting from Wells Fargo's criminal massacre of me. I am extremely handicapped by this.

Not Reality: I can "get my resolve back". There is a specialist who can heal me (and do it for free, as I cannot pay for anything because I don't have the ability to make income). "Wells Fargo's criminal massacre has nothing to do with his condition". "He can go about life as if all of these crimes did not happen." It goes on forever.

Any and every claim to any solution for this situation that does not involve Wells Fargo making this right is a delusion. There is no solution that doesn't involve Wells Fargo making it right. I cannot overpower reality.

The kid gloves are off for the people on the other end. You are going to sit there and let me die. That is another reality. There is no point in trying to reason with you. You are a murderer. Wells Fargo is a murderer, and you are too cowardly to warn the public of this reality.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
