Update

To: "Division, Criminal (CRM)" <Criminal.Division@usdoj.gov>

I will live in terrible suffering for the rest of my life. I am suffering so extremely right now. Your life will go on, but my suffering will never go away.

I intensely crave death almost all day long. I cannot take this terrible pain. What needed to be done was for this bank to make it right. They caused this and they should fix it.

I have offered every win/win I can think of. I offered to help the bank when I am able. I tried my best to work with you and them.

I have no choice about this suffering. It is emotional pain and a feeling of helplessness that comes from my broken brain. It is not a matter of perspective. There is no pep talk that anyone can give me or that I can give myself.

If they would have settled with me, no one would have to know. I am a man of my word and can keep a secret.

Why do you do this? Why can't you be my friend in this fight?

So much I gave and so little I ask for. I killed myself working for decades and now is the time the payoff was supposed to come. But I will not see my payoff, because I got murdered before I had a chance to collect on it.

The convenient thing for you is to ignore the banks conduct and what it has done. I am unable to ignore it because I live in devastation and pain over what this bank has done. The bank is 99% of the picture.

I wish you would reconsider. I wish that you would consider helping me. I need someone's help and you could help me. The life of pain that awaits me can be avoided still.
