This is senseless. Look at what this has come to. I need some kind of way to have some kind of a life and it seems that this bank making it right is the only way. I am extremely damaged. I want to get a brain scan that documents the damage to my brain. I don't think that anything will help all that much, given the severity of my condition. I really hope and pray (sort of, I am not a praying man) that I can get on 60 mg of adderall and this will allow me to have a life. If that doesn't work then for sure I am broken beyond all repair.

If you have heard something terrible about me, it is not true. There are a handful of candidates for terrible things I am said to have done. Of them, only one is even partially true and in that case I didn't do anything extremely wrong. I've told you about it already.

My life is complicated and there is a lot that needs to explaining. It can all be explained. Just contact me and ask.

I am having chest pains right now. Something is wrong with my heart. I am truthfully hoping that I die in my sleep but I'm not that lucky.
