Update

To: "Division, Criminal (CRM)" <Criminal.Division@usdoj.gov>, civil.feedback@usdoj.gov

I'm trying to control myself. This nightmare is more than I can take. What has been done to me is horrible. I need your help very badly. I am going to try to control myself and not contact you for a long period of time. If my disability appeal gets denied, I will be destroyed. My mother doesn't realize how the numbers do not add up. My life up here is going to get unbearably hard when my food stamps run out, if I don't get approved for disability.

I had a feeling like I'm going to murder my mother again last night. I will likely have these on a recurring basis now, until my disability appeal is approved. One thing that I have figured out is that stress is a trigger for these murderous feelings. There is something extremely bad wrong with me and it terrifies me at times.

I ask you to please consider helping me, while I am away. Another note is that it is not my goal to be a pain in your ass. I just get the sense that I am, because you wish this situation would go away and instead I email you about it 5 times a day. This situation is extremely inconvenient but is not going to go anywhere.
