You are just going to let me die

To: "Division, Criminal (CRM)" <Criminal.Division@usdoj.gov>, civil.feedback@usdoj.gov

I have trouble not emailing you. My profound helplessness and my profound suffering are intolerable, and you are the one who can help me. It is your rightful place to help me.

It is looking like you are just going to cruelly let me die. I have never seen such cruelty in my life, as how I have been treated by all of you people. There is not one sign or gesture to indicate that I matter at all. This bank has caused me so much pain. I can't take it.

I do not forgive you for what you have done to me. Your cruelty is inexcusable. You have massacred a kindhearted man for no reason. I will die as a result of your cruel abuse and your decision to not help me. I have begged you for my life for over 1 year, and you are going to let me die.

I can't take this. I will probably die when they deny my disability appeal. That will be the final blow that is too much. Financial stress, resulting from my being disabled and unable to make an income is the main thing that has been killing me this entire time. Every demand life makes of me feels like a hammer blow to a helpless man. I killed myself doing not much else than working for my whole life, so that I could be murdered by the cruel murderers at Wells Fargo and the United States Department of Justice.

I dreamed of the day when the United States Department of Justice helped me. Instead, I got caught in a spiders web, spun by the cruelest, most rotten, and most pathetic people on earth. You people are not like me. You are not concerned with the kind of person that you are. I will die and go into the ground in terrible humiliation and pain, but I will be proud of the person I made of myself. I would rather die than be like you.

Clint Williams
