What I'm doing now

To: "Division, Criminal (CRM)" <Criminal.Division@usdoj.gov>, civil.feedback@usdoj.gov

I'm going to keep trying to get this in the media. For that outcome, one of my next projects is to do some analysis materials for wrongdoing the bank has done outside of me. This includes wrongdoings to congress.

My reason for doing this is that I predict your next move, if this comes to light, is to character assassinate me (or at least attempt to). I'm going to have to preempt you on that. I can tell you right now that any character assassination attempt at me will fail. If not in the short run (I don't even see you winning there) for sure in the long run.

It would be so much easier if you would be my friend like I asked you. We have a mutual interest in resolving this situation, and I'm not a bad person at all. I don't want anything bad to happen to the economy or to the US DOJ, and I want Wells Fargo to fix their business, as long as Wells Fargo makes it right for me.

If you would have given me AU girl and a settlement in January or February of 2021, this would have worked out well. Instead, this got dragged out and I was under more and more horrific stress all through 2021 and up into most of 2022. That horrific stress and particularly the horrific stress that caused me to lose 30 lbs in 4 weeks is what has fried my physical body. Then you continually treating me as a man with no dignity has destroyed my sense of self and made it a taboo for me to be happy.

Im good at some things and not too good at others, and I think I could help you smooth this over with the public. That sounds insane to you, probably, but I think it can be done. If I have to report this to the media and get it in the public eye that way, you can expect a hellacious beating. You are very powerful people and may end up beating the hell out of me some more, but this will do nothing to the fact that you're going to get creamed. Your behavior towards a kindhearted man who did you no wrong is despicable.

I sensed, in the beginning, that smoothing this over with the public would be a task that we had to handle, and I offered to help you with that then. My concern then was that I was disabled for life and I didn't want to lose my new life in Charlotte. That's what I wanted, and I was willing to do whatever it took. I also expected a lot of money. I thought that I would get a decent settlement and AU girl. That's what I wanted and I figured that I had some negotiating power. I thought that the US DOJ was compelling wells

Fargo to help me, but in fact Wells Fargo appears to have been in charge the whole time.

I didn't expect anything remotely like $3 billion then. I would have been happy to take what I could get, which I pictured being maybe $20 million + AU girl or $50 million + AU girl at the most. I have believed the whole time that no amount of money can make me better. There is no price that I wouldn't pay to go back in time, and there never has been.

Wells Fargo, and perhaps the US DOJ too, has left the planet, it appears, in not accepting responsibility for what it has done to me. These people appear to be denying or trying to deny that I have PTSD or that I ever had PTSD. That's the sense that I get. In this, as a part of it, they are probably holding on to something about the DSM criteria not seeming to precisely match my circumstances. I could speak a lot for why this is not an issue and why this is not the way to think. I will save that for later though.

The next thing they appear to be doing is saying that, even if I have PTSD (or whatever condition that I do have), they did not cause it. This is silly in a million ways, but I will try not to beat you up about it.

We are in a very familiar situation, the situation where I am completely right and my facts are the game winners. It ends up this way almost every time.

What I want out of this situation is $3 billion + possibly seeing some people punished. After I get that, I can talk to AU girl on my own and see what she wants and what I want. It is likely that I choose to move to another country, quite possibly just me alone. I have lost everything in this victimization and in this battle. I seem to not be welcome in the United States, no matter how hard I try to do right. I can move somewhere else, where people don't know me and where most people don't speak English, and then I can live and die in peace.
