My neighbor called me names many times. He's a 2 times convicted rapist. He calls me the f word for gay people and the n word for black people. The first time he did it, I was outside and I felt myself getting hostile. I had an involuntary reaction (it seems involuntary) where I yelled at him. If a professional or even a layman saw what I did when I yelled at him, it would be obvious that something is wrong with me. I have this reflex like reaction and I appear as if I'm mentally retarded.

He did this again several more times. He would yell at me when I'm taking a walk. I sort of built up a tolerance where I don't get so hostile. I'd call him a rapist and say things to him about him being on the sex offender registry. If he caught me at the wrong time it might be dangerous, and if he came in my house and said those things it wouldn't go over well. I'd be probable to try to kill him. He'd likely get away. I'm clumsy and can't run fast. But that's an example. I'm not totally out of control of myself. The landlady talked to him and he's toned down his name calling.

The big danger is with people living with me. I know for 100% fact that I can manage this problem if I am allowed to live alone. I also have to be careful about where I go out to, and it's not a good idea for me to go to other people's houses. Right now my car is broke, but even if it wasn't I would almost never go out. If you will help me, I can have a good life. If this makes it to the media, it will be a massive blow to my life, although it will be a necessary one. I would much rather settle this without that. $3 billion is a very fair price (far too fair, in fact) for what I have suffered and lost. If you want to settle this before it goes to the media, I will take far far less. We can discuss the particulars. I am very easy to do business with.
