Re: Email for June 2, 2023

To: "Division, Criminal (CRM)" <Criminal.Division@usdoj.gov>, civil.feedback@usdoj.gov

My soul is crushed that I have to send you this email. This situation is about to get horrible. You don't care because you are murderers. It is getting extremely dangerous.

I'm going to take 1 month off of my fight and relax. While I'm doing this, I will try to think of a way to make this work for us all. Wells Fargo doesn't want to pay $10 billion for many obvious reasons. Among those is that Wells Fargo needs to pretend like this never happened, and they can't do that and explain a $7 billion quarterly loss at the same time.

The problem on my end is that it will take an enormous amount of money to make it worthwhile to live for me. If I get some much lesser figure, the chances are pretty high that I move to Switzerland. The chances are quite high that I do that if I get $10 billion too. Part of it is that I suffer so horribly, and another part of that is that $10 billion or some similar monster sized figure comes at a cost, that cost being me being widely known by millions of people. $10 billion would alleviate my pain but it would also come with some horrible pain attached. It is horrifying to think of.

What's likely going to have to happen is I am going to have to get pulled into the scam. I can collude with you to keep quiet about this, and we can work out what ways we might have to make this better for me. I need the most money that we can get away with giving me. I will tell you, however, that under no circumstances will I lie to congress, if this is ever before them. If you want to portray me as crazy, that is fine and would probably work for you. But I'll tell congress about being kidnapped and about Wells Fargo and the justice department taking over 2 hospital corporations and running a healthcare fraud based cover-up. They'll probably go along with you in thinking that I'm crazy and that will suit your purposes. For the media, I don't like lying to anyone, and if they contact me, I will just say that I'm not interested in talking or something like that. I've got it worked out that when I want my story to go to the media, I will be able to do it. I've figured out how to do it. At the current time, however, they're not much an issue.

I need to research how this works with immaterial legal settlements and get an idea of what I can do. I am handicapped and will incur expenses for basic life tasks for the rest of my life. I need a huge house to live in, because of my brain injury. I will probably have to buy several huge houses over my life, because of wear and tear and maybe other reasons that I can't anticipate right now. I tend to not want a mansion. I don't want something that big because it is horrible to upkeep. I can't upkeep a home of any size, but if I had a mansion, I would have to have house cleaning people, plumbers, etc. coming by constantly. I want to be alone and not have hassles like that.

Actually I have changed my mind. I will take a month off of my fight after my next drs appointment. That's on the 10th. From now to the tenth, I will put together my stuff for the media. If you corrupt my provider and take my medication, you're toast. If you don't, then I'll make one last effort to negotiate with you in a way that is remotely fair to me.

My new M.D. costs a fortune and if you take away my medication, I will have to go several days without it. I'm so about to break right now, that I worry what I will do if that happens. It is creating a very dangerous situation. I said "right after" in my last set of emails, referring to that appointment, but that's not literally right after. I've got about a 9 day gap, because that's the earliest that she had available. I'd run out before then.

If we can get me a suitably large figure, even if it is paid over time, then this can be over. Most likely I'd want a large figure upfront and smaller payments over a period of many years, possibly for my expected natural life. When I say large figure, I'm not referring to anything like what I've talked about recently. You will possibly save on the small payments over years, because I'm very likely to move to another country.

I'll add one more disclaimer, that when I say I'm taking a month off of my fight, what I mean is that I'll be working on my personal websites, primarily my website for Leonardclintonwilliamsiii.com, and also studying software development. The other website is my learning courses website, and it is possible that I don't even work on it at all, and devote all my time to the other one instead. That website has a bunch of stuff about my case, and so it's not exactly taking a month off from my fight. I won't put it online with the stuff about my case as long as you settle. It is just to give me something to do and a project to try the stuff that I learn on. I have mechanisms that I can use when working on a website that will prevent anyone other than me from accessing it. This is not a login page, but the use of cookies and ip address checks that are far more secure and essentially impossible to bypass. I will work on my website(s) on my local machine, and then if I upload them to a server, I will block everyone else. Then when I decide to go live for everyone, I can take all of the stuff about my case down.

The qualifications will be something like this:

1. I can talk about my victimization and share my evidence with any healthcare provider, as long as I have a right to privacy with that provider (in the U.S. I obviously do, and I'd assume in most other countries). This is mainly for the purposes of therapy, but will also come into play in other settings.
2. You can forget me signing any contract that has a bunch of requirements for me. All that you will get is me being quiet about this, and if asked, saying that I wish the bank well or something similar.

The reason for this is that I am handicapped. I cannot meet a big list of requirements and it would be hard for me to even read a contract to know what I'm getting into. I don't want you ever having an excuse to pull me into court, and a big list of requirements would be murder on my mind to try to keep track of.

Obviously, you will also escape further civil liability as part of our settlement.

Another qualification is that I will get to write a book about my life, and have it delivered to all the people who are a part of this situation. This will be the people at the justice department, Jenny, my former managers Shana and Courtney, and others like this. It may be necessary for it to be only in electronic format, so that no one who isn't already privy to the situation will ever see it.

I'm going to me moving to another country and part of the agreement will be that you don't interfere with me moving or interfere with my life in my new country at all.

I'm literally about to snap.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
