This situation is extremely dangerous. I've told you this before. When Wells Fargo doesn't want to be a part of the solution, Wells Fargo leaves a gap that is too big for anyone else involved to fill. I need very badly to have my own place, where I can live by myself, and money to pay people to do the things that I can't do for myself.

We are verging on getting in arguments here. Over money and other things. I've been arguing with my mother over iPhone text messages. If we get in an argument inside this apartment, I will lose control and she will die. I am not a dangerous person as long as I am allowed to live as I need to. All that I need is to live by myself and not be dependent on anyone else.

This emotional pain and hostility that I get triggered into feeling is very tormenting. The emotional pain will be prolonged until I murder the person causing it, but I have an ability to be strategic. I can wait to make my move. This is how I imagine myself being and is partly based on real life experience. I am not sure what the maximum is that it will be prolonged, but the sense that I have is it is quite likely days. For sure it is many, many hours. It is very hard to describe and I am conscious of the fact that I may not be articulating this in the best way.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
