I've almost got my sleep turned around to where I need it to be. I think I'll have it starting when I get up next. I drank some 5 hour energy earlier. My letter is not moving fast. I might have to cut some stuff out of it, meaning skip some of what I intended to write.

I want to put it in your face what a crock of shit this is and how ridiculous and inhuman that you are. I'm still not fully certain as to what extent you believe your own bullshit. It seems possible that you have an "the ends justifies the means" mentality, and that you are aware that you are deliberately lying and being indecent and ridiculously cruel. On the other hand, you've been really fruity and you seem to be digging your heels into the ground over and over.

Your whole enterprise rests on this fruitcake notion that I'm the boogey man. And I mean this is just a load of shit and I'm sure it gets harder and harder to maintain this bullshit as time goes on. On one hand, the evidence against this claim just piles up more and more. On the other hand, you get to the point that you have to concede that there was no evidence for this in the first place. Your game winning ace in the hole, with my illegally obtained healthcare records, is a big fat joker that does nothing more than expose you to more prison time, or alternatively gives the justice department something else to explain.

Your experts, if you have them, are some combination of chicken shits and whores who have sold their souls. They are also incompetent.

The situation is that Wells Fargo massacred me with a crime spree involving scores or hundreds of felony counts. Wells Fargo did this in response to my request to have a consequences free conversation. Then Wells Fargo committed a very serious crime by illegally obtaining my healthcare records. Then Wells Fargo waltz's into the Justice Department's office and shows them evidence of a very serious crime. Then I email the Justice Department a complaint, and in the email and the attachments, I make repeated offers to help the Justice Department. The justice department responds to this kind gesture, from a disabled man, by launching all out war against said disabled man, for absolutely no reason. The Justice Department tries to torture said disabled man to death, through ruthless crimes.

Do you see how this works? The above set of facts creates a situation where I can just beat you to death all day long. None of the facts favor you, and when you try to use deceit to compensate for this, you just create more facts that do not favor you.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
