I made some progress on my nav bar render. I'd say I got 2 hours of actual work done, or maybe 3. That's a good day for me. I will be back on my beta blocker tomorrow. It is likely to make me impaired. I get a lot of benefit out of it too. Things that are depressants seem to increase my impairment and adderall lessens it. It is ditto for my despair, which is driven by my impairment. It is all consistent with neurological damage. I have essentially zero doubt that I have neurological damage.

If I get too impaired, I might to back to working on my letter. We will see.

This dynamically generated nav bar is for the purpose of having the active menu item boldfaced. It is a lot of work for a small effect like that. I've got a working spaghetti code version and now I need to wrap everything into a composite object. Also got some modifications to do. I eventually want to have url routing that interacts with the menu, with the info being pulled from a db table. I'll have all the details for each page stored in my db. It will dynamically load the meta tags, page title, etc. and dynamically generate the menu. It will take me forever and a day to do this. If I get it done in one month, I will be doing good.
