“outcome that it has so intensely pursued from the beginning; that being that Wells Fargo murders a disabled”

- as mean as I'm being, this is accurate. You've damn near killed me, repeatedly, and you ultimately will not let my need to breathe fresh air get in the way of this bank's impunity. I think part of what I need to do is make this less personal. You'd do this to anyone who threatens this bank's interests.

You've made a huge mess. Wells Fargo's on the line. Atrium Health is on the line. Wells Fargo's more minor accomplices are on the line. Novant Health is on the line. And the Justice Department is on the line.

This list could have been a lot smaller and this shit show never should have mutated into what it has. In re me making this less personal, that's a good step, but what ultimately needs to be done is to arrange a system where it doesn't crash the world for this bank to pay consequences for its actions.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
