I haven't gotten anything done today. It's been a bad day for productivity. I am impaired. I was able to control f my bank statements and get a list of the money my mother has withdrawn from my account, and I got at least one thing she paid for. She also deposited $100 one time.

The net result of the debits and credits is that she has spent $2,304 of my money. This is almost entirely money that she told me she would pay back, and she has taken some of it without my permission. I am severely ill and I am handicapped. I don't need to have people taking my money when I'm helpless to keep track of what they're doing. That money was for my medical care.

I've started to want to do something to make money, but I feel so helpless because there is nothing that can do. I can work on my own website a little, but I can't do anything for anyone else. The least little bit of stress kills me.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
