I am having a little bit of despair. I'm staying up as long as I can, to try to get my sleep turned around. I hate this thing where I've got to fix my sleep.

I would kill to be able to work like I used to, and to study. I have lost so much.

I'm getting very angry and pissed off. I'm sick of making you audios and you just go through everything that I send you looking for ways to commit crimes against me and to abuse me. What you are doing and have done is despicable.

I've got the upper hand, I think it is safe to say. You murder me and you will just be publicly known for being a murderer, and also being a pack of cruel, indecent people who mercilessly abused a disabled man and covered up your crimes in the most despicable ways.

This doesn't change how mad it makes me and I would rather not be murdered. Everything you've got up your sleeve, I've planned for. I try to reason with you and it is futile. I've got a backup medication provider. It would damn near kill me to have to go without medication for even a few days though. I may not live through it, if that's what you try. It's all futile. I say this knowing that anything can happen, but the probabilities do not favor you. I'm very bad off. Anything you do is likely to kill me.

I'm up to audio #17 now. You've already got 1 through 4 or 1 through 5, or something like that.

You may not even care what's right or wrong. You may not care about what's true. I still make my case and I still blast you as if you do. That is my territory and that is where I know how to fight and how to win.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
