You are still just sitting there and watching someone suffer and die, right in front of you. I've been telling you that I'm dying, and the reason that I'm still here is that I am strong as hell. I'm hanging on a thread and I have been. The thread that I'm hanging on is thinner and thinner all of the time. I might live through another year of this hell and torment. That is extremely unlikely, but I'm so incredibly tough that I might do it. It should come to no surprise to you, however, if I am found dead at any time. This thread I'm hanging on gets chiseled as time goes on.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
