It would be kind of terrible if I died. I think I'm probably about to get something out of my fight soon. I don't know when exactly. But my condition is such and the thread I am hanging on is so thin and I have so little affection for life, that nothing would be a surprise to me. $10 billion wouldn't make me smile. That's the condition that I'm in. I've had times when I believed that I was completely or almost completely better. Had those for years, on and off. This neurological damage hasn't went away, ever, though, not that I can remember. It seems like my ptsd symptoms make the impairing effect it causes worse some times. I won't be fooled like that again, hopefully.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
