I can't wait for today to be over. If I can stay up a little bit later (I got up at 4 pm yesterday), I can sleep until 1 am to 5 am and then have a whole day by myself. It will be a huge relief if we can make it one day without a new snake. Those baby snakes can get in through our old door. There was a tiny gap they could crawl under. Our door has been replaced. If another one shows up, that probably means that we've got some in the walls here. I think they might be coming out of the wall in the living room opposite my closet.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
