"My evidence against you is overwhelming. It's already enough, with my video series."

-you probably keep track enough to know what I'm taking about. If you don't, I'm speaking of the 166 or so videos that I made for my case, the majority of which are on my YouTube channel. I have about 12 that aren't uploaded, because I came up with the idea to take a vacation and then settle this in a way that you could hide. I had intended to upload them. I referenced these videos in a previous email.

Most of them are not listed. I have 24 of them on a playlist, and the rest I intended to share by sending people links. All kinds of media people have a copy of these links. Some of them don't even know it and might have deleted them from their signal or WhatsApp.

I'm sure you've seen those 24 and the evidence stuff that goes with them. The rest are done in a very similar way. A lot of them have materials that I have prepared, to go along with them. My case for what has happened is a combination of 3rd party evidence, my personal account of what has happened, and reasoning. Different crimes/civil law violations have varying mixtures of these elements. I've got some form of 3rd party evidence for all but one claim. The overall picture is very damning. I don't see a way for you to get out of it. It just won't happen.

The project to make those videos was exhausting. I was having this thing that I perceived was trouble with my heart. That was one factor. I made them for the media and anyone else that I aimed to sell on what would happen. The media were the primary target audience.

You appear to be up to it again on Twitter, as of about the past 2 days. I put it at 25% that this last thing is you. If it is, it's not helping your cause at all.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
