I have been feeling helpless. I feel that way a lot. I feel helpless to some degree every single second of the day. I feel my impairment always, even when I'm laying down on my bed and doing nothing. I can feel how hard my brain has to work and how it has trouble keeping up. Sometimes this feeling will have a fear attached to it. The fear is me being intimidated by life and feeling like I can't take any more. A lot of times when this happens, I have a sense that the more that I can't take is coming, that life will mercilessly dish out more, not caring that I can't take it.
