If this is released to the public and it is a necessity that I am widely known, and especially if the details of my life are widely known, I should get more money. Being known to the public is a horrible thing for me. It will kill me and I will die over and over, for the rest of my life, as a result of being known. A big need that I have is to control who knows me and what they know about me. This is due to my innate and/or acquired preferences and inclinations, and is also due to the fact that the details of my life are subject to stigmatization. The way to avoid this painful and soul murdering stigma, that has followed me everywhere that I go since age 18, and that has destroyed my life, is to keep people from knowing those facts about my life which are subject to stigma. Once they know, there is no overcoming it. Stigma seems to be an automatic reaction, and not something people choose to have for others.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
