"they know about as much about being an investigator"

-there is no party in the mix that remotely knows how to do an investigation of a Wall Street bank as well as I do. Relative to me, everyone else is just hopeless. This assumes that you even do an investigation. You didn't do one on my complaint. You didn't investigate my claims, because the bank just flat out told you what they did, after hand delivering you illegally obtained healthcare records. They made a bunch of ridiculous, bullshit claims about me, including that I am "dangerous." Those claims weren't investigated either. The action and the inaction share the common goals of hiding the truth from everyone else, and hiding yourself from the truth.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
