Re: Montage of me being right

The point of page 1 of that pdf, where I copy and paste communications that go back to January 2021, in which I reference this bullshit narrative about “we saw signs that he might be dangerous”, is that it is awfully strange how I know exactly what they did. It wouldn’t surprise me if those weren’t their words verbatim.

Why is it that I know this? I could have told you this in March 2020, had you called me instead of emailed me back, about my complaint. I would have told you that “they’re trying to get my healthcare records from this hospital that I was at when I was 18. I don’t think they’ll get them, but if they do, what they’re going to do is make up some narrative about seeing signs that I’m dangerous, and it’s total bullshit. They may even go as far as to tell you this narrative and show you those records, even though you are the authorities.”

I could have predicted their behavior before they even did it. Why is this? I again ask you, what is going on here?

What is going on is that I understand this situation in, in its entirety, from point a to point z. My understanding is so complete that I know what these people do even outside of my presence. My facts are the game winners, and they have been the whole time. I am the victim. They are the perpetrators of the worst crime spree in the history of American business. The perpetrators have not one point in their favor. Every point favors me, the victim. That is the business as usual outcome when crimes are committed against innocent people, for no reason. Look at the major cases you have had. Where else did you do a balancing act, to see how much of the culpability is held by the victim?

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
