Part of why I haven't had as many positive feelings is that I haven't taken a break from this situation, like I had planned. If I could somehow forget about it, I could get more satisfaction out of life. In 2020, I got a good bit of satisfaction studying software development and working on my websites, my learning courses website being the main one. I think I worked on it a little in 2021 too.

But I am getting sickly with my physical health, and my chances to have what I could have had out of life are over. I signed my death warrant when I took the job working for this bank. If someone has to die, to pay the cost of this bank not managing its business properly, neither the Justice Department nor Wells Fargo care at all. You're perfectly fine with this bank being a murderer.

Clint Williams
