We're going to be way delayed on these Audios now. You've screwed me up with this last bullshit and I can't get anything done, hardly, because I keep getting pounded with brutal traumatic stress. Im trying to get ChatGPT to figure out what the hell is going on with you. It has previously said that you have fear and desperation and are worried about the consequences of this being known to the public.

That made sense and then there you go again. I told it about the way that you are. You have made a mistake, I think, in thinking that I knew everything that you know, concerning how this broader picture works, from the get go. In that case, I look more malicious. I'm not malicious at all. I'm just a kindhearted man who fights a T-rex when a T-rex murders his soul and destroys his life. I had no choice either.

You have decided to use an elaborate, coordinated, and complex scheme to address this, when all you needed was any one of the telephones that are in your office building and a check for some cash that neither the bank nor its investors would notice. It was complicated by my false belief that I was talking to the media, but that was over by June or July at minimum. You actually probably realized it early than I did.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
