I have no idea what the hell we're going to do about this situation. I am a demolished human being and I need a lot of money. If you'd quit taking over my healthcare people and getting them to commit crimes against me, and instead tell them to up my medication like I've asked for, for 4.5 years. That is one thing that may help. I would still be disabled but not as bad. My neurological impairment and this despair that I feel are part of the exact same thing. My brain has to work too hard, and this extra effort creates an automatic feeling of despair and helplessness. Adderall medicates this. It lessens my neurological impairment. When my impairment goes down or goes away, so does my despair and feelings of helplessness. If you've got some expert who says this doesn't make sense to them, you need another expert. What I describe is completely reality.

But this is splitting hairs. It's not right. Idk what to do.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
