"If you have concerns or questions about autism and how it relates to you, it may be beneficial to consult with a clinical psychologist or other qualified healthcare provider who specializes in ASD"

- I have done this twice now. Guess what they both said? Guess who they agreed with on every insight that he has?

And the renaissance men and women at wholesale loan services credit analysis want to do their own assessment, or rather they have done their own assessment, without my consent, and absurdly overruled the conclusions of these professionals. There might be 60 or 70 years combined training and experience among the people I talked to. And I'm not debating. It's not like I ever had a point to prove or a reason to prove it to anyone. I'm pointing out how foolish this is. I have suffered for years over this type of thing.

What, in the qualifications of the junior credit analysts, level II credit analysts, and junior and senior management at WLS credit analysis, has them remotely fitting the description of a "clinical psychologist or other qualified healthcare provider who specializes in ASD."

If you had a child who you suspected may be autistic, would you have him or her evaluated at WLS credit analysis, or would you prefer a clinical psychologist or other qualified healthcare provider who specializes in ASD?

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
