I am working on my website here and there. Updating my meta data. It will be a little bit of a hard thing for me, to determine how I will present myself, after this is over. I have fought this bank for so long, and it has consumed my life the whole time. In a given week, I probably spend 90% to 100% of the time I have available to do anything on this fight. It has become who I am, this person who fights this bank. I will have to find a new cause for my life, a new way for others to see and understand me.

I will never forget though. I will be different to others, in what I talk about and my concerns, but this will be on my mind every single day.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
