The climate crisis is adding to the horrible circumstances that I face. We are going to have to live much differently, to address this crisis. I've already got way too much to contend with. I love my newest computer. I love AWS. I love my electronics.

I am worried that revolutionizing our energy sector is going to be a disaster, if and when we do that. My torment is so much greater without electricity.

Which speaking of electricity, I decided a long time ago, that if I was ever on the national or international stage, in any way, say like being in front of congress, I would make it a point to publicly thank and acknowledge Duke Energy for what they did for me in 2020 and 2021.
