I'm also having a little bit of trouble figuring you out, and I'm feeling amped up about you contacting more people and telling them that I'm "dangerous", a "psychopath", etc. My best take on you is that you're fighting on multiple fronts, and kind of confused too. I get a sense that you are anticipating some possibility that this turns out bad for you, and maybe you feel like you're running out of ways to deal with this. I also get a feeling that you think that settling this on terms like I've mentioned is going to be difficult or cause some huge problem or set of problems. It's like what you really are desperate for is for this situation to go away.

You also seem to either a) have some goodwill towards me; or b) be being nice to make yourself look better if this is known to the public. In reference to item b, I do get the sense that there is some genuine good intent, as of recent times. In the longer term, the way you have acted seems to be influenced by a concern for how others will perceive you if your actions become publicly known.

There is a way out of this. In re this concern about it not being doable, I've got a very good idea and I can do some analysis on this. And I Can't type. Need to make Audios
