I contacted this Metro guy on his X Platform timeline. You saw that I'm sure. I have wanted for a long time to show him that I am right. I had forgotten that he presents himself as a mortal enemy of yours.

I am open to anything. If someone wanted to make a case that the FBI is an evil organization, I might be willing to hear it. If I weren't willing, it would have nothing to do with being committed to seeing things the way that I see them. If I were willing, I'd hear it until it becomes implausible. At some point you have to cut your losses. When people are wrong, it doesn't take you an infinite amount of time to figure it out. If it never did become implausible and the facts supported the case the person is making, I would accept it as true.

As for my personal take, I think well of the FBI. I thought better of them in 2019 and 2020. I dreamed of the day that an agent came to help me with my case. I had such good evidence, and I thought to myself "these are people who are so good at this that they can smell when something is fishy from a mile away." I knew that a real pro and I would be on the same page.

They never came to help me. It was a real disappointment, to understate it to an extreme. I have still seen some very compelling things that they have done for others, that give me a very good feeling about the FBI. I think our country is much better off because of them.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
