The only reason that we haven't already settled is that, shortly after I told you that we'd get this over with after I got my medication, I found out that you had told another person this boogeyman garbage. You have told so many people this crap. It is a big deal to me. It was within hours to a few days, after I got my medication, that I found that out. That's what had me second guessing. It's not like I'm going to get a fair process in any event. You're going to pay off any lawyer that I get. I was thinking you would have some interest in being fair to me and we could just do it your way. I could get a decent settlement and make it last as long as I could.

I repeat- I can defend my life. This is even as I cannot defend some of my actions, as I have told you before. My life overall can be defended because of the consistent effort I have made to do what is right, because of my striving. You are not in possession, and never will be, of any novel information about my life. I am a miserly accountant when it comes to my conduct.

This is all a distraction anyways. You say I am the boogeyman, which is a pathetic lie. Even if it were true, which it absolutely is not, what danger would I pose to anyone, as someone who is physically weak and severely disabled?

The man in the wheelchair isn't the danger. Godzilla is the danger. Put those two side by side in your mind. See the contrast? See how foolish this is?

Clint Williams
