It would make me happy to get a good sized amount of money out of this and then have the claims about my character taken back or corrected. You have to realize that everything you do feels like malice to me. I do not see any remotely good intentions in any of it. I understand that you have huge interests and that a lot is at stake. I have blasted you over and over, and I can be very mean sometimes. The asymmetry between your interests and the self-contained life I have is a very significant aspect of this situation. I am defending my little life, which has an extremely small footprint, by fighting back at your gigantic interests.

My lawyer will know more. I need to prepare some stuff for him. He for sure googled me. That's how he learned that I have a civil case. He only scheduled 30 minutes initially, and I think he is skeptical already. If he won't budge, I've got another attorney that might be willing to listen. If all else fails, I will give you their contact info and you can call them and tell them you need to run a scam.

I have offered to help you with your scams for a very long time. I would have said, way back in 2020 or 2021, that my belief that all of this happened is a "paranoid delusion" and that I feel better now. I was in an extremely constructive mindset. I wanted to help the Justice Department any way that I could. I started to figure out that this was a really hard thing for you.

I will still be defending myself online, now that you're once again on the offensive. I really wish I could just drop this whole thing. I am so worn down and I have things that I like to do. Tending to this is terrible.

Here is a P.S., I am proud of my life overall. I am proud of the effort that I have made. I have a powerful story to tell, of my struggle with what it means to be a human being. I am just about as kindhearted as it is possible to be. I have never seen such kindness in someone's heart, as there is in mine. This is excepting my maternal grandfather and my mother. That is where my kind heart came from. I have privately speculated, in my own mind, that we may have some kind of genetic disorder that causes the part of our brains responsible for empathy to overdevelop. It is like I am some kind of mutant variety of kindheartedness.

I will go toe to toe with anyone, concerning my conduct, my life, my character, and my kind heart. When you try to take shots at me or to back me into a corner that is smaller and smaller, from which I seem to have no escape, you do not intimidate me. You often hurt me very badly, but you do not intimidate me. You provoke me to fight back, with everything that I have. I have absolutely zero doubt that I will win. That's my mindset. I will fight you to the death. I will win, and then just maybe I die from the pain you have caused me after the fact.

Trying to intimidate me provokes me. You are dealing with someone who is very different, and you have figured that out by now. You actually figured that out a really long time ago. I am extremely peculiar and I have a quality in which I have to have things a certain way. I am very much set in my ways.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
