I am getting so sick of this fight. What I want to do is work on my gender dysphoria projects. Today, I'm in the mood to start building my app to do an analysis on Reddit posts. All I would have to do is copy the class files from my Facebook project onto a new app and then modify them to work on Reddit. Instead, I'll end up doing something for this.

It is occurring to me, that if I'm this sick of this shit, you are way sick of it. It has been my favorite thing to talk about, at any hour of the day or night, for over 5 years, minus a tiny number of weeks or maybe months. You've got to be to the point that you are about to vomit every time you think of it.

I'll still fight you to the death, as if this is the only thing that ever has or ever will matter. We need to have a constructive tone and get a constructive outcome. This thing where I will fight is just who I am. I find it hard to betray who I am, even when it would seem to be in my rational self-interest. Let's get this over with.

Warmest Regards,

Clint Williams
